A Touch of the Orient In Northern Florida

ALL THROUGH recorded history gardens of various kinds have been featured and dramatized in song and story. The hanging gardens of Babylon . . . one of the seven wonders of the world . . . have never been matched in their exceeding beauty. The ancient Greeks and Romans had their noted gardens accented with fabulous pieces of statuary. The great South West has its incomparable rose and cactus gardens. Florida has also been famed for its outstandingly beautiful gardens . . . among them the Oriental Gardens of Jacksonville, an eighteen acre estate devoted to the development and beautification of exotic plant life.

New in name only are the Oriental Gardens of Jacksonville! For many years local residents knew them as the private estate of the late George W. Clark. The gardens are now the property of the Panama Investment Company, of which George W. Clark, Jr., is president.

Focal point of interest here is the matchless sunken gardens, depicting the glamorous Orient at its best. Exotic fountains, cascades, lanterns, a summer house, several small lakes and arches vie with the Asiatic plantings for supremacy of beauty.

An interesting feature is that each section contains the flowers for which it is named. For instance: Japanese Iris, Hererocallis, Azalea, Gardenia, Hydrangea, Lantana, Cape Jessamine, Butterfly Lily, Crinum giganteum, Canna, Amaryllism Malvaviscus, and a multitude of vines and ferns.

Another interesting innovation is the hourly program of music which visitors may enjoy reclining in comfortable seats scattered throughout the expanse of forest.

On either side of the garden, steps lead up the hillside to groves of century old Southern Pines and several magnificent specimens of Live Oak trees which range in age from 500 to 1,000 years. Also adding to this extraordinary scenic view are several varieties of sub-tropical and tropical trees, plants and shrubs.

Of interest to tourists is the citrus grove, where hundreds of Orange trees laden with fruit and blossoms attract scores of visitors daily. Also included are trees such as Dogwood, Grapefruit, Limes, Kumquats, Magnolia, Oleander, Banana, Flowering Plum, Camelia, and Sweet Bay. Flowering shrubs and wonderful collections of Palms also add their color and charm to this glorious tribute to Florida's flaming beauty.

Masterful landscaping and a knowledge and love of plants and trees have gone into the planning of this picturesque "Garden of Eden". The many kinds of shrubs and tropical plants growing abundantly in the gardens include Oaks, Hollies, Bamboo, Night-blooming Jessamine, Angel's Trumpets, Cortaderia with silvery plumes, Sisal Hemp of Mexico, Chinese Rice-paper plants, Moses' Bulrushes from Egypt, Eleagnus Long-pipes, and Alpinias.

A startling study in floral beauty may be noted at every turn! Lazy streams . . . perfect for informal canoe trips . . . flow into the somnolent lagoons which are over-hung with Spanish Moss. Rustic bridges cover the silvery streams that moodily reflect the borders of vivid flowers and foliage . . . adding a touch of old world charm and environment to a scene constantly displaying the tremendous importance of modern scientific care.

County Population Sets Auto License Prefixes

THERE'LL BE some changes made no doubt when 1951 auto license tags are issued for the Florida system fundamentally as good as ever is passe from a statistical point of view. Licenses issued with prefix numerals one through sixty-seven, according to the population of the states' counties will no doubt have a shuffling of order when the official United States census is taken this year.

Palm Beach County for example now sixth on the list, may very likely be upped to third place.

However tags for 1950 changed this year to orange color with blue numerals remain in the old order in respect to prefixes and for the benefit of those who would know the sequence are as follows:

- | | |
|------------------|----------------|
| 1. Dade | 34. DeSoto |

The Romance of the History of Florida

PONCE DE LEON had heard of the fabled island of Bimini, through the Bahaman natives. The fanciful legends and myths that had been spun about the land, enchanted his imaginative mind, lured his romantic nature to a search for the miraculous waters which would restore to man the freshness and strength of youth. A fact that has since gone down into the realms of folk lore was that De Leon was searching for the waters in the hopes that they would be of assistance to him in winning the affections of a young lady who was thirty years his junior.

Don Ponce may have missed his imaginary rejuvenating fountain, but in his search, he stumbled upon something very real and infinitely more precious. It was on Easter Sunday (in Spanish, Pascua, or the Feast of the Flowers) in 1513, that he came upon the coast of what is now Florida, somewhere near the mouth of the placid Saint John's River.

De Leon lead the way for exploration, and Miruelo, Navarez and De Sota followed, only to conclude that "the island" extended northward to the limitation of the Cabot discoveries, or modern Canada. While Spain was placidly considering the future of usefulness of this land of flowers, a menace presented itself when the valorous Jean Ribault, the Huguenot leader, landed at the mouth of the St. John's River in 1562 and unfurled the standard of France. It was Sir Francis Drake and Captain John Davies, with their followers the "Hounds of Hell" who harried the coast in pillage and ransom and succeeded in ridding Florida of her French intruders.

Gradually, Spain began to establish settlements. St. Augustine and Pensacola sprung up, and were immediately obsessed by disturbances from the Apalache Indians on one side and the English colonists on the other. During the course of her history, Florida has been ruled under five flags; Spain, England, France, the Confederacy and the United States. It was in 1763 that Florida was ceded from Spain to England and in 1783 reverted again to Spain. The Republic of West Florida was then annexed to Louisiana; the latter being first under the French rule of Napoleon, and finally under the United States. All of Florida finally passed into United States hands in 1821. With the advent of the Civil War, the Southern Confederacy had it, and then the States again in 1865.

Florida possesses more than four and a quarter centuries of history, a record longer than any other state in the union. Bald facts and dates tell very little concerning the true history of the state; but we have only to dwell on the everchanging scene through her contrasting groups to understand the living flesh and blood behind those bare statements.

There were missionaries and heathen Indians; traders and Seminole fighters; planters and wreckers; blockade runners and scalawags; filibusters, carpetbaggers and warmongers; pirates, school-masters and legislators; rum-runners and empire builders; migratory workers and economic royalists. An analytical consideration of these types brings us to a realization, if not an extensive knowledge, of the romance embedded in Florida's history.

MRS. LEO FRANCIS READY

Of St. Louis and Palm Beach, who with Mr. Ready has been a winter resident of the resort for a number of years. They belong to the Bath and Tennis, Everglades and Gulf Stream Golf, of Palm Beach; the Racquet and University Clubs, St. Louis; Harvard Club, Boston, and the University Club, of Chicago.

Cottage Colony

Society Life

AS THE CURTAIN RISES for the first act of the Palm Beach story, spectators settle in their seats to view a production unequalled by any play brought forth from Hollywood sound stages. Featuring a cast of glamorous socialites and world renowned celebrities, the Palm Beach Story is as traditional as New Year's Eve and as new as next year's fashion forecast.

The setting is lush Palm Beach, the time the present and the story is anyone's guess. Anything can happen here and something always does. It's new and different, but always glamorous. Weddings, engagement parties and social events highlight the daily social calendar and as early January sweeps into view, the approaching peak of the season finds resort hostesses arranging dinners and dances to be given in the truly magnificent Palm Beach manner.

"Amado," the celebrated ocean front villa of Mr. Charles A. Munn, has been the setting recently for numerous evening gatherings. Mr. Munn returned early in the season from Europe and has entertained house guests, among whom were Mrs. Dorothy Spreckles who arrived from New York. Mr. Munn's brother, the equally popular Gurnee Munn is at "The Lodge" after several months spent in California. Their sister, Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury who has become a year-round resorter, spent most of the summer at her home on Pelican Lane. With her is her son, Mr. Reginald Boardman, Jr., and her brother, Mr. Ector Munn of New York.

Mr. Herbert Pulitzer of the publishing family was a December arrival at his home on Wells Road, coming from France where he was for the summer. Mr. Pulitzer and his step-daughter, Miss Grace Munn Amory, entertained friends for dinner Christmas Eve.

The largest gala of the early season was the New Year's Eve dinner dance which Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman gave at their ocean front villa. The Wrightsmans are prominently identified with the Palm Beach smart set and entertain extensively while here.

The Christmas season was celebrated in Palm Beach by numerous dinner parties. Among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Webb who had friends in at their home at Gulf Stream, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, who entertained at their home on Barton Avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Milliken, who gave a Christmas Day luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus W. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip C. Kauffmann.

Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff entertained 20 friends for Christmas dinner in the patio of "Casa Marcheta," her home on El Brillo Way, and Dr. and Mrs. John Stewart Tanner were hosts at "Tanalani," their home on Wells Road.

Complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dulaney Hunter, Mr. Alfred V. Leaman was host at a tea and cocktail party at his home on North Ocean Boulevard. Formerly social secretary at the Everglades Club, Mr. Hunter is now in government service and spent sometime in the resort prior to reassignment.

More than 100 members of the cottage colony were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney King Russell recently at their home on Sea Breeze Avenue where they had as their guest, Mr. John Boles, of the films. Mr. and Mrs. Russell are spending the winter here after a trip around the world which occupied their summer.

Mrs. Francis L. V. Hoppin of Newport, R. I., and Palm Beach was married November 30 at the Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea to Judge Alfred Hudson Townley of New York. The ceremony was performed by the rector Rev. Dr. Tage Teisen and was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride.

son of Dr. Harry G. Thomas, formerly of the American University of Beirut, Syria and New York University; and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Philip Ryan of Denver.

Mr. Thomas recently participated in an expedition to Tibet with his father, the well known radio commentator. The wedding is planned for June.

Of interest to Palm Beachers was the marriage in New York December 12 of Princess Francesca Rospigliosi, daughter of Princess Laura Rospigliosi of 332 Sunset Avenue and the late Prince Francesco Rospigliosi of Rome to Mr. Alexander Schmidt, son of Mrs. William H. Schmidt of New York.

Mrs. Schmidt was educated at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Roehampton, England, and made her debut in 1939 at a dinner dance given by her mother at the Savoy Plaza. Her husband, who is an Eastern Air Lines captain, attended Lawrenceville. He is a member of the Everglades Club, Palm Beach, and the Racquet and Tennis and Tuxedo Clubs of New York. The couple honeymooned in Canada and are living in Manhattan. They are expected here in May when they will visit Mrs. Schmidt's mother, Princess Laura Rospigliosi.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shevlin left in mid-December for East Africa where they will conduct a fishing expedition. The couple will begin at Mombasa and work southward 600 miles to Zambique. Mrs. Shevlin will make a photographic record of the trip in still photographs and movie film while Mr. Shevlin will preserve skins to be sent back to the United States. On the eve of their departure they were honored at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman.

Palm Beach was the setting for the marriage of Miss Nancy Langhorne Anderson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Claude P. Anderson of Whippany, N. J., to Mr. John Charles Mackerer, son of Mrs. Joseph E. Mackerer of Masapequa, L. I. and the late Mr. Mackerer.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ryan L. Wood of the Memorial Presbyterian Church at West Palm Beach and took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Arthur McEwan, 111 Sea Breeze Avenue.

On Christmas Day Miss Lilian Stephanie Koslow of Maspeth, L. I. and Mr. Robert Gordon Sonquist of New York City were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell on Middle Road. The ceremony was performed by Judge Richard P. Robbins and was followed by a reception for a number of friends.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Esmond Sonquist of Chicago. A vice-president of the Standard Railway Equipment Corporation of New York, he is a member of the Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh, the Atlantic Beach Club of Long Island and the Everglades Club of Palm Beach. The couple will make their home at the Waldorf - Astoria.

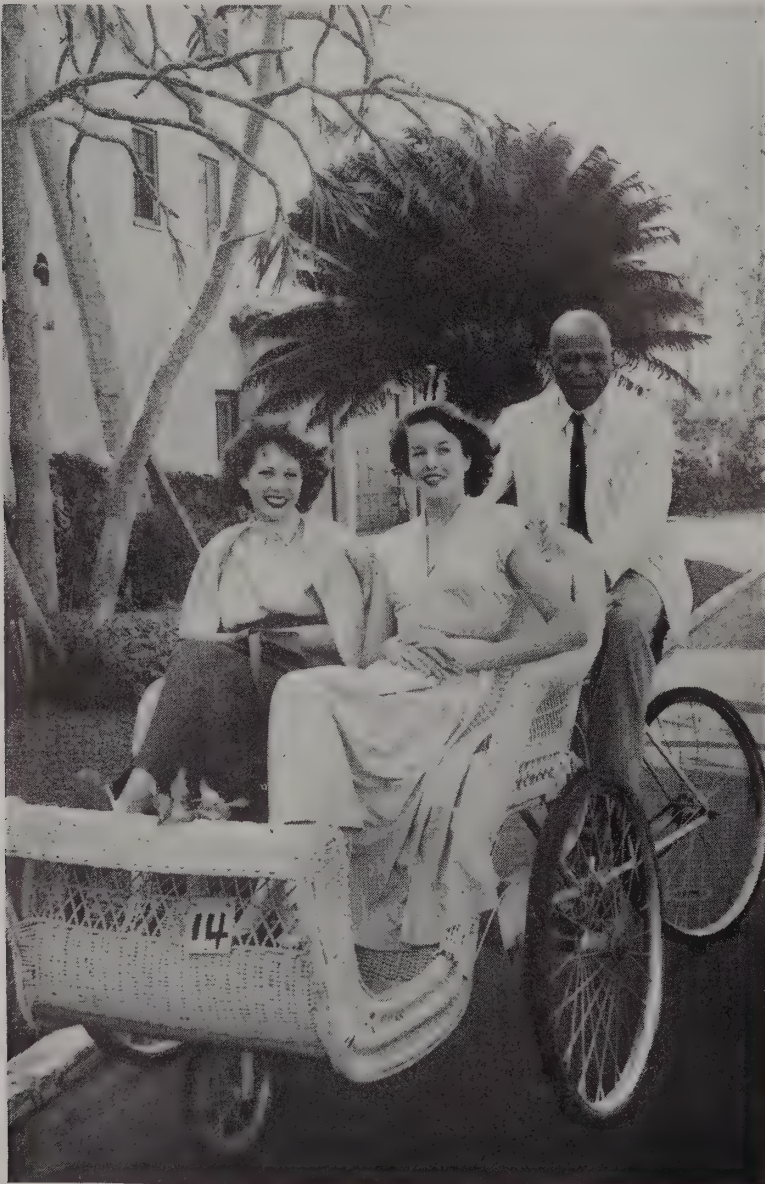

Mrs. Stewart McDonald of New York and 1497 North Ocean Way has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Signa Lynch, to Mr. Alexander Duncan Read, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Read of Purchase, N. Y. The wedding will take place in August.

Miss Lynch is the daughter also of the late Edmund Calvert Lynch. She attends Sarah Lawrence and is well known in Palm Beach circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Grace are additions to the young married set and are at their new home on Nightingale Trail. Before her marriage this summer, Mrs. Grace was the former Mrs. Jane Watson Rovensky.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont of Far Hills, N. J. are at their home on North Ocean Walk. They plan to make several fishing trips to the Keys this season.

The formal opening of the Everglades Club, which also marks the inauguration of the social season in Palm Beach, took place on New Year's Eve with a gala dinner-dance in the Orange Gardens. A capacity crowd danced the old year out and the new year in, to the rhythms of two new orchestras . . . the Populaires and a new Everglades Club Orchestra, which alternated until the small hours of the morning, to insure continuous dancing.

The glittering decorations were deemed by the guests, to be the most beautiful and extensive that ever embellished the smart club. From the impressive foyer, marble patio, dining room, main lounge and Bali room, the entire club was in a holiday mood. The columns and archways were entwined with laurel and spotlighted white Christmas trees adorned with silver, red or blue metal balls, added glitter and dazzle to the scene. Further enhancing the picture were tall silver standards of Oregon holly, white phlox and red carnations in artistic arrangements. Silver vases of white gladioli added a festive touch to the Bali lounge and dining room.

Even the famous Orange Gardens were given a gala accent . . . echoing the decorations used for the club rooms. From the canopied ceiling over the dance floor, hung showers of varicolored balloons which were released at midnight when the New Year was ushered in with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the usual clever noisemakers provided by the club.

Dinner was served in the Orange Gardens and in the dining room, at candle-lighted and red and white flower-decked tables. Large and small dinner parties were much in evidence in both settings. Dancing took place in the Orange Gardens. It was all very merry and gay and the majority of guests remained long after the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Enhancing the brilliancy of the occasion were the beautifully gowned and jeweled guests. One of the most dazzling assemblages to attend a formal New Year's opening at the club. The conventional white and black, mostly of the popular bouffant styling, vied with bright colors and muted pastels.

Society of The

THE SOCIETY OF THE FOUR ARTS now in its twelfth year as an institution dedicated to the promotion and presentation of the highest values of art, literature, music and drama in Palm Beach, is a non-profit incorporated organization under the laws of the State of Florida.

Through generosity and loyalty of its members the Society maintains a library that meets official standards, and in its new building on Royal Palm Way presents an annual series of art exhibits, lectures, music events and movies that need no adjectives to explain their worth.

Beginning with the Four Arts Annual, this year on Dec. 16, with Dr. Matthew T. Mellon, president of the Society and Mrs. Mellon, chairman of the art and sculpture committee presiding at a preview reception, art exhibits of metropolitan standards will be held monthly in the galleries.

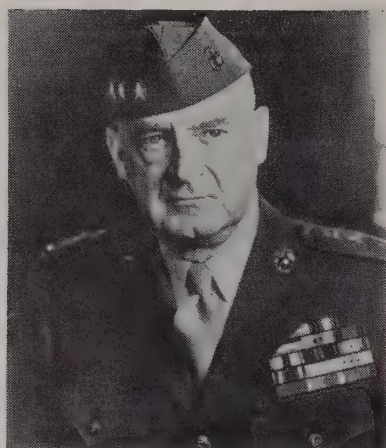

Shows include: Jan. 14-Feb. 5—"European Masters of the 17th and 18th centuries; Feb. 10-Mar. 5—"From Plymouth to the Armory Show;" and Mar. 10-Mar. 31—"From the Armory Show to the Present."

The lecture series comprising a roster of eleven speakers is here presented pictorially. Chairman of the committee in charge is Mr. John H. Perry.

Rounding out the musical program which will present Templeton and Steber will be the London String Quartet on Feb. 15. Mrs. John S. Pillsbury is Music Committee chairman.

Drama confined to a movie series of French, Mexican, Audubon and J. Arthur Rank films presented weekly, Jan. 12-Mar. 31 is sponsored by the movie committee headed by Mrs. James de Peyster.

With greatest emphasis placed on art and the lecture series, both subjects are represented on a broader scale this season than at any other time during the Society's existence.

Art exhibitions of purposeful significance, to bring to Palm Beach examples of the world's greatest painters are attracting special attention this season. Of particular interest to art lovers, gallery goers and to Americans will be the two shows covering American art from Plymouth Rock to the present.

This presentation covering more than three hundred years of art in America is the first such exhibition ever to have been presented, it is understood.

The Four Arts Annual which drew on a wide membership of artists, many of them Floridians, and also presented a fine collection of the works of internationally known painters, awarded the young American artist, Gertrude Schweitzer,, A.N.A. its William H. Donner, Jr., first prize of $100 for the best oil. The painting entitled "Girl in Green," was completed by the artist last spring before she left for Europe where she exhibited by invitation at galleries in Milan and Florence.

Mrs. Schweitzer (Mrs. William P.) is an intuitive and sensitive artist. There is freedom of brush work, persuasive color and mastery of technique in her work that makes it at once alive and vital, dreamy and ethereal—like the ballet from which she turned to become a painter.

Also an oil winner was John Franklin Hawkins with an impressive tribute in jewel-blue, symbolizing the one hundredth birthday of the Swedish writer and philosopher August Strindberg.

Other annual awards went to Jeannette M. Genius for "Umber Harmony," (oil); Constant Ray-Millet, "Birds," watercolor-first award; Lorrie Goulet, (Mrs. Jose de Creeft) sculpture first prize; Ulfert S. Wilke and Keith Ingerman, second and third awards respectively for work in watercolor.

Second and third sculptural awards were presented to Joseph Benson Bishir, Lake Worth and Frank Ring, West Palm Beach. Bishir's work was a massive head of coquina stone—title "Ruth,"—Ring's a small compact granite bird, "Pelicano."

Members of the art committee in addition to the chairman are Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell, Mrs. H. Downs, Mr. George Duplaix, Mrs. Harold

New York Letter

Dear Dora:

New York Society is warming its weary dancing feet by the fire after a long-term holiday season of endless gaiety. And if you don't think we've been patriotic about the water shortage, just ask a few of the bright boys who have been taking champagne chasers with their whiskey!

Society maestro Lester Lanin seems to have the corner on music this season. He's been busier even than the debutantes for whose parties he has been wielding the baton, that in addition to his music-making at the Sherry-Netherland's new and popular Carnival Room where he has introduced the new Mexican dance "La Raspa," which might well replace the energetic Samba.

Two of the best private coming-out parties were those of the Chrysler granddaughters, Gwynne Garbisch and Cynthia Foy. At Gwynne's party at the Ritz three young men with social and champagne aspirations tried to put on a genuine act of surprise when the secretaries in charge of the guest list failed to find any of their names on the roster. "Well," ventured one of the determined young men haughtily, "and to think that we gave up our aisle seats at "South Pacific" tonight."

The Byron Foys party for their daughter two days before Christmas in their Gotham mansion got the unanimous vote as being the best the old town has seen in many a year. Guests were treated one and all as kings with vintage Champagne, food, fun and music until the early-late morning hours, and even then reluctant to leave. Cynthia's statuesque beauty and poise puts her right in line for joining her mother up there on the best dressed list. As for admirers, there are already several in evidence who are hard at work trying to persuade Cynthia to give up her Sarah Lawrence studies and social whirl, and retire to the vine-covered-cottage life. Among those dancing attendance are suave Bert Rupp of the Chevrolet family who has the inside track, and young Truman Talley, Jr., whose late father was the Movie-tone News mogul. New Yorkers remember that it was just two years ago that Truman lost out with Cynthia's pretty sister, Joan, who upped and married Raymond French just a month after her fashionable bow to society—so now it is just a question of how far history will repeat . . .

New York's Bal Masque in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf, still a topic of conversation, was such a roaring success that the Hollywood colony is adopting the theme next month with Maureen O'Sullivan in the driver's seat. There is already gossip afoot that the package insured and airmailed to Joan Crawford the other day by Walter Florell contains a specially designed masque destined to take an award. The prize remark, by the way, at New York's masked ball is credited to designer Ceil Chapman. Eyes were far too awed for conversation as one of our perennial best-dressed women glided into the ballroom in one of the masterpieces of Dior's Paris collection reputedly worth a mere seven thousand crisp pieces of green paper. Ceil broke the silence with a raised eyebrow and "My dear, that's not a dress, that's a costume."

John "Cosmo" Talbot has been in evidence at any places where he is welcomed, and veddy veddy conspicuous with a cigar, and those gold-rimmed dark glasses, of course. He has switched his preference from blondes to dark-haired Denise Darcel, latest French import to this country. John's playboy pal, Dick Cowell, is making the same kind of eyes at actress-singer Lina Romay.

At Sherman Billingsley's Stork Club, Ezio Pinza's daughter, Claudia Boller, proudly shows Gladys Swarthout and husband Frank Chapman the amusing little $5,500 trinket her husband dropped into her Christmas stocking—a jeweled eye-watch with ruby tears, from Salvador Dali's collection of “jewelry in a grand and surrealistic manner.” Then there's Howard Hughes' Christmas gifts to oilmen—gold tie clasps with miniature reproductions of his famous patented rotary drill. Those miniature drills are rapidly becoming charm-bracelet fads thanks to a pretty and enterprising young debutante who snatched her father's! For Christmas Mr. Billingsley gave us a new entrance to his club, twice as large as the old, eliminating single-filing in and out.

Less than a year ago banker's daughter Peggy Rabe (now of Panda-Bogart fame) was holding hands with Chuck Jelke in Palm Beach. Today she's holding hands with another Jelke, brother John, in El Morocco. Also, less than a year ago, June Hunt Clarke was honeymooning in Palm Beach with newly-acquired husband Blaine Lucien Clarke of Washington society. Today June is in the West Indies awaiting the parchment that will make Lucien her ex-newly-acquired. Mimi Keresey Holmes is again lending her beauty to the New York scene while her ex, William Dayton Holmes, tends the cattle on his Nevada ranch. Mimi's interest these days is divided between her constant escort, Billy Bartle, and her fashion career at Harper's Bazaar.

Pert Joan La Roche and Jack Adler are still dinner and dancing partners and still saying “no” when quizzed on the possibility of a future merger. Young George Rinehart of the publishing clan, and Sharon Bonner, daughter of Mrs. Foeko van der Laan, are at the unofficial engagement stage, blance to his ex, Faye Emerson. The Regency Club contingent is all set to follow Canasta queen Otilie Reilly down to Palm Beach where she house-guests this month with Mrs. Lelia Hattersley.

With the Marquess of Milford-Haven out of the running, the visiting title most in demand these days is charming twenty-five year old Baron Raffaello de Banfield, composer of the French Ballet “Le Combat,” now playing to SRO at the Winter Garden.

As Ever,
Jaye.

THE BILTMORE

THE PALM BEACH BILTMORE, scintillating star in the galaxy of luxury resort hotels in Florida, is receiving acclaim at home and abroad for its new magnificence. This 550-room hotel, completely refurbished and refurnished at a cost of more than a million dollars during the recent summer months, has added distinction to Florida hoteldom, and has brought greater hospitality to Florida's Queen Resort... Palm Beach. Here guests can enjoy the usual facilities available at any top-flight hostelry, as well as many other facilities featured only in exclusive membership resort clubs.

Daniel E. Taylor, head of the West India Fruit and Steamship Company and a member of the Board of Directors of the Waldorf Astoria, New York, is president of the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel Company, and the marvelous improvements in the Biltmore were made under his direction. James J. Farrell, a national figure in managerial hoteldom, is general manager of the Palm Beach Biltmore. During the summer months, Mr. Farrell directs the destinies of the famous Monmouth Hotel in Spring Lake, N. J.

The gala opening of the Palm Beach Biltmore early in December was really a three-day house-warming party. Gracious hospitality greeted the many distinguished guests, who arrived from various parts of the United States, and a large delegation arrived from Cuba aboard several Clippers. Entertainment and various diversions were keyed at high tempo during the entire interlude.

Christmas holiday season was celebrated in traditional manner at the Palm Beach Biltmore. Scenic beauty of the hotel grounds was enhanced by the vivid coloring of the many red poinsettias in full bloom, glimpsed among bamboo and traveler trees in the Tropical Gardens. This setting formed an exotic backdrop for guests at the daily cocktail dances during the Christmastide. Two bands, Walter Feldkamp Orchestra and the Bill Doherty Orchestra, presented dance programs at the various affairs in the Tropical Room and the West India Room.

The gay holiday spirit at the Palm Beach Biltmore gathered increased momentum as the New Year weekend approached. With the Regatta of the Palm Beaches set for January 1st, and the arrival of the crews of Yale and Pennsylvania, star contenders, in this classic, social affairs at the Biltmore through New Year's Day were given a colorful collegiate impetus by the presence of crew members and dates. An Aquacade with star performers staged in the Biltmore Olympic Pool before the race classic and directed by the internationally known Steve Forsyth, was a sport highlight of the Regatta program. Other colorful entertainment was presented between races, including a fashion show, a display of fabulous gems worn by glamorous models, and a spectacular jet flying exhibition by Col. Haviland and his Sky Demons.

New Year's Eve gala dinner dances at the Palm Beach Biltmore were marked by many smart parties, when hotel guests and members of the Palm Beach winter colony entertained in the various air conditioned dining rooms. Beautiful favors were presented to the diners. The coming of the New Year was greeted at midnight in merry manner by the colorful assemblages in the Tropical and West India Rooms. A highlight of the entertainment program was an exhibition by the internationally famous dancers, Carlton and Juliette. Jimmy Thomas, Irish tenor, who sang a group of songs, was the master of ceremonies of this gay New Year's Eve celebration at the Biltmore.

Guests at the Palm Beach Biltmore include Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brown, Englewood, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Oliver, Bridgeport, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Kane, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dyer, Miss Cynthia and Mr. Thomas Dyer, Dover, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Mans-

Spare That Sailfish!

A SINGULARLY distinctive campaign in practical conservation today is being intensively waged on the world-famous sailfish grounds off the Palm Beaches. This unusual campaign, originally launched here nearly two years ago, then sharply accelerated through a revamped, stepped-up program activated last January, now is rolling in high gear.

Its success in this area today appears assured. Further, the program now also seems slated to spread rapidly to other sailfish grounds along the coast, even to effect angling ethics employed on the trail of many other types of game fish.

This is the project currently sponsored here by the Sailfish Conservation Club of the Palm Beaches, a non-profit, loosely-knit organization formed by a small group of prominent sportsmen of the Palm Beaches.

Among the enthusiastic sailfish addicts who initially banded together in this move, and who since then have contributed generously of both their time and money to assure the success of this program, are: John Rybovich, Jr. president, C. F. Johnson, vice president, Herbert Bedford, treasurer, and B. Davis Crowninshield, chairman of the executive board. Original members of the board of directors also included: James B. Bell, Jr., Oswald Crotty, and Gilbert Drake, while elected to the board within the past year were: Gene Dyer, Kenneth Foster, and Robert Kleiser. L. "Bounce" Anderson is secretary of the organization.

Based on the tremendous strides already made by this group, with the help of scores of other anglers who now recognize the merits of the program, the name of the organization in due time, as its program is broadened to cover an extended area along Florida's East Coast, quite likely will be shortened simply to the Sailfish Conservation Club, Inc., rather than limited to the Palm Beaches.

That is the definite promise of tomorrow. The organization's outstanding work in this field already has received wide recognition throughout conservation circles, and especially in the outdoors columns written by rod-and-gun editors in the nation's press.

In the many hundreds of fishing contests conducted all across the country it is customary procedure for those anglers entering the heaviest fish to collect the contest prizes. The obvious deduction of course is that every angler must lay his catch—a very dead fish—on the scales before he possibly can pocket an award. Under the circumstances, his tendency naturally is to lay every single sizable fish he catches on those contest scales.

An unusual angle of the Sailfish Conservation Club program is that this conventional procedure is quite reversed. To qualify for a Sailfish Conservation Club trophy, the angler instead must leave his conquered-but-still-lively-sailfish at sea, free to fight again another day. As a result, during the past year alone, more than five hundred individual anglers were presented one of the highly-coveted trophies posted by this organization.

After feeling their way slowly for a year or so, carefully analyzing the sailfishing situation in these waters, the executive committee made their big move last January. A hard-hitting campaign urging greatly increased sailfish releases, designed to perpetuate sailfishing in this area at its present high level during the years to come, then was launched in grand style. Key points in their ambitious program included:

1—An individual, inscribed trophy awarded every angler releasing a sailfish when trolling Gulf Stream waters on any fishing boat sailing from this area.

2—A special Certificate of Angling Sportsmanship officially attesting each angler's sailfish release.

3—Colorful placards, directing attention to the SCC program, prominently displayed aboard all fishing craft in the area.

4—Pamphlets, held in a pocket-rack on the placard, detailed the long-range benefits accruing from increased sailfish releases, rather than boating these spectacular game fish unless expressly wanted by the angler for a mount for his home or office.

5—A large sign erected at the inlet, in full view of all anglers heading for our famous sailfish grounds, urged them to fly sailfish release flags, the triangular red flags now so popular in this area, rather than the conventional white flags denoting sails which have been boated.

The program swung into full operation coincident with the starting gun in the 1949 Annual Silver Sailfish Derby of the Palm Beaches. Invitations to a big kick-off dinner at the Sailfish Club of Florida were extended to the captains and mates of all charter boats, along with the owners and captains of all private boats, in this area. The affair was attended by more than 200 local boatmen interested in sailfishing, and a member of SCC's executive committee quietly picked up the check covering the banquet.

The individual trophies awarded all anglers who release sails are high-grade, pocket-type, seagoing lighters. Each is inscribed with a miniature leaping sailfish and the name of the organization, both imprinted in color. At this writing more than five hundred of these coveted trophies have been awarded by the club.

For an angler to earn a trophy and certificate, the boatman need only certify on the postal application form furnished all boats by the club that the angler fought the sail-

Boats of this area grouped together off Hobe Sound on a winter day when sailfish congregate in sizable schools in that area. Working schools in such close proximity is highly exciting sport. fish in conformity with International Game Fish Association rules, and that the mate aboard then properly released the sail when the angler brought it alongside the boat. The West Palm Beach Fishing Club, Flagler Drive at Fifth Street, serves as distribution headquarters for SCC awards. An angler is limited to one such trophy a year.

The actual release of the sailfish, according to SCC rulings, may be effected by optional methods as the fishing guide may decide most practical under the circumstances. The sail actually may be unhooked by first grasping the fish by the bill and then quickly working the hook out of its jaw. The leader wire may be snipped close to the hook, in which case the mate necessarily may not have to grab the sail by the bill.

A unique release method coming into wide-spread usage locally, however, is for the angler to use extremely light leader wire so that when the fish is forced close alongside the boat the mate then can take a wrap of the wire around his gloved hand, give a sharp, solid jerk on the leader, and thereby generally break the wire at the point where it is looped through the eye of the hook. The cover photograph by Bounce Anderson illustrates this method of releasing a sail.

While this program, as launched last January, currently is restricted to fishing boats sailing through Lake Worth Inlet, it is confidently expected that it soon may be extended to other ports along the Florida Coast. Overtures already have been received from several points to learn if they could be included in this hard-hitting sailfish release campaign.

The Certificate of Angling Sportsmanship carries a reproduction of a grand oil painting done by William Goadby Lawrence especially for the Sailfish Conservation Club. Lawrence's striking oil pictures a frisky, free, high-jumping sail in action. The next step to be taken by the organization undoubtedly will be to reproduce in full color the painting done by this noted outdoors artist.

It necessarily is not implied herein that this hard-hitting campaign activated by the Sailfish Conservation Club directly effected the handling of the Silver Sailfish Derby annually sponsored by the West Palm Beach Fishing Club, but it is perhaps noteworthy to report that considerable interest was centered in the Aksel Wichfeld Trophy awarded the angler releasing the most sailfish during the 1949 Derby. And it further is pertinent at this time to observe that four additional release trophies will be awarded during competition in the 1950 Silver Sailfish Derby, one having been posted for the angler releasing the greatest number of sails during each of the four weeks of the event. Not only is the release theme emphasized throughout Derby competition, but conservation principles are further stressed in that no sailfish under 7½ feet in length may be entered for any trophy posted in this popular competition.

Going a step further, the West Palm Beach Fishing Club now has established an eight-foot minimum length for any sailfish entered for a prize in their annual Winter Fishing Contest. At the same time, this club now also has established minimum weights covering entries of all other species of fish in any contest it sponsors.

An important milestone in the comparatively short history of The Sailfish Conservation Club of The Palm Beaches was reached when Outdoors Unlimited, the monthly bulletin published by the Outdoor Writers of America, carried a full report of the current campaign for its hundreds of members located in key spots all across the country, the greater majority of the OWA membership being composed of leading outdoors columnists for newspapers and feature writers for national magazines in this field. At that time the SCC program also was carried in detail by the press wire services.

There currently are four classes of membership in the Sailfish Conservation Club of the Palm Beach as follows: Sportsman, earned by each angler releasing a sailfish; Associate, as accorded those anglers making a modest contribution to the organization's program; Active, the status of those sportsmen contributing generously to this work; and Sustaining, including those individuals and organizations which so far have underwritten the major portion of the funds required to carry this effort through to a successful conclusion.

'Flame Tree' by Pratt, Saga of Palm Beaches

TED PRATT, author of "The Barefoot Mailman," considered a Florida classic has just come out with another novel based on history and factual happenstances that moulded Palm Beach into the international resort we know today.

"The Flame Tree," title of the new Pratt book, is based on the royal poinciana tree, a native of Madagascar that immigrated to Florida. In its pages the author has described one of the richest periods in American history when the country was reaching its renaissance-expanding, developing, forging at full speed toward the turn of the century that was to pour wealth on the land hitherto undreamed of.

Young Ohioans, Tip and Jenny Totten, pioneers pushing

MR. AND MRS.—THE PRATTS

at home in their own patio out back of a pretty pink house at Boca Raton, Fla. designed and built by Addison Mizner of Palm Beach fame. Mrs. Pratt (Jackie) is neither artist nor writer, insisting one in the family is enough.

into southeast Florida a little in advance of the ever-colorful Flagler, his railroads and hotels, are the heroes of the Flame Tree.

They encounter the hardships of the little better than tent and shack existence all pioneers faced, but quite suddenly fear and trembling Jenny experiences when wild cats claw at her door thatch and she meets a huge rattler in her front yard, gives way to an all-over electrification brought on town-wide by word that Flagler, the financier was actually to bring railway and hostelries to the southern part of the peninsula.

With the opening of the Poinciana, the introduction of Palm Beach to the world's wealth and society created two worlds—worlds which were to stir new emotions, new desires, hopes and fears in the hearts of such as Jenny Totten.

Famous names plucked from the records of the Royal Poinciana's register mingle in the pages of Mr. Pratt's new book with those of the pioneers who like Jenny, were beginning to realize there were "classes" of people in the world.

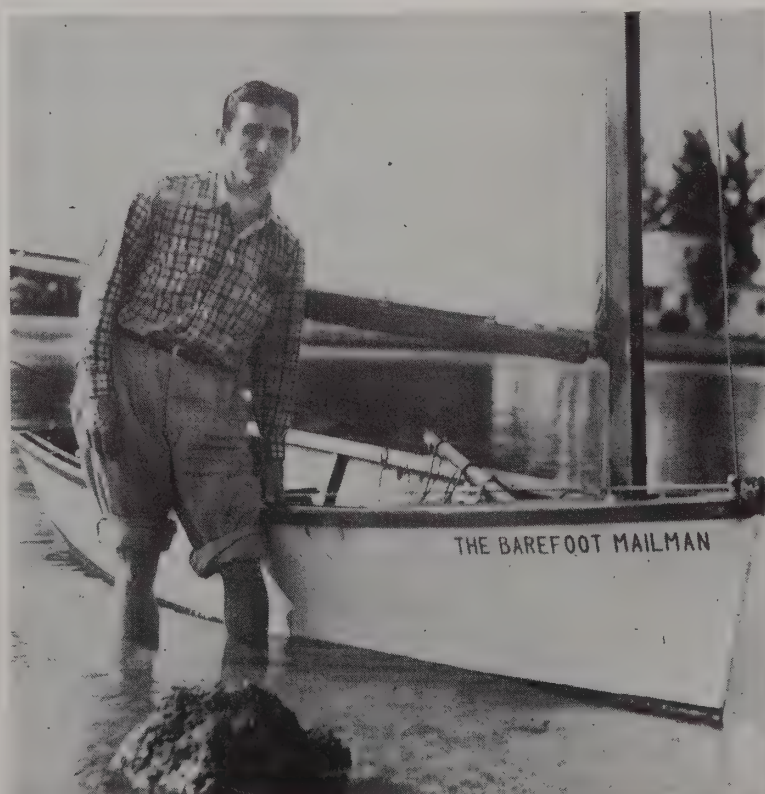

In portraying the change of the isle from a tranquil wilderness to glittering resort, Mr. Pratt forgets none of the landmarks—the conversation pieces. His description includes the railroad trestle over Lake Worth which brought the first visitors straight to the doors of the Poinciana in the privacy of their railway cars; pictures them as they were pedaled about in afromobiles, rode their bicycles past mangrove swamps, danced in the softly lit Cocoanut Grove, gambled and dined at the renowned Bradley Beach Club and rocked easily in wicker chairs on the hotels' wide verandas shaded from prying eyes by green-striped awnings.

Mr. Pratt brings to the reader a moving picture of that era when oil, steel and whiskey millions were being poured into the Land of the Flowers to make it the playground of the famously rich and fashionable. Too, he interweaves the side of life most men know best and leaves his heroine to make a choice!

Born in Minneapolis, the author who is a self-appointed Floridian, lives at Boca Raton. Florida is his Shangri La. He is quick to tell you the sand that fell in his shoes on his initial visit not long after his marriage to Miss Belle Jacqueline Jacques in 1929 stayed there. He has written, with "The Flame Tree," 16 novels, a collection of short stories—"The Owl That Kept Winking," was chosen as one of the year's best in 1945, authored Holiday Magazine's first Florida piece and in countless factual columns to the Saturday Evening Post has informed the world of the vast Peninsulas' Everglades, scenic beauty, its parks, paradises and honky-tonks.

His biggest wish at the moment is that "The Flame Tree" will find as much favor among readers as did "The Barefoot Mailman" which to date has sold half a million copies in all editions. He credits the success of the Mailman to the fact that he used actual incidents and real happenings of the time to give it authentic flavor—he has done the same thing in "The Flame Tree," perhaps even a little bit more.

This is the boat that Pratt built and in which he traverses the waters in and about his home at Boca Raton. Named for his Florida classic, it was in this small craft that Mr. Pratt made observations a year ago which led to a national magazine story about the Sea cow, or Manatee, mammal of Florida waters, fast becoming extinct.

FAMOUS AMERICAN DESIGNERS

"PRISCILLA"

Of Henri Bendel's, one of the topflight American designers.

"FASHION HAS BEEN in a confused state of mind, due to getting off on the wrong tack, via last year's 'new look.' The silhouette has been too cluttered and exaggerated. This season's clothes, however, prove that fashion is overcoming the bad influences of that trend and styles generally, are more conservative and becoming."

The above statements were made by Priscilla, one of the designers of the famous "Bendel originals," in an interview at Henri Bendel's New York City. "I want to see women looking more feminine . . . right now the majority are too thin and they are wearing their hair too short. Women should aim to look beautiful as well as chic and that is the designer's job, to help them achieve that goal."

"When a woman is well-dressed and well-groomed, she can forget herself. She doesn't have to worry about these things and is at ease and comfortable . . . she has poise." And, apropos of this, Priscilla remarked that one can keep up with new trends and vagaries, but they must be adapted to the individual figure and personality. "Select as much of any new fashion as you are capable of adapting."

Extreme styling, this designer said, "can be beautiful and I love doing it . . . always including at least several dresses of this type in every collection. 'Toute a fait special' . . . something quite special that everyone wouldn't be able to wear."

Priscilla transfers her designing ideas to sketches and then to materials, making her own muslin patterns. However, sometimes she deviates from this procedure and designs directly with the fabrics, draping them on models. She is very fond of soft colors, reminiscent of lovely old antique brocades. "Sometimes color influences the silhouette I am creating and at other times, the reverse is true." Museums are a chief source of inspiration, especially old paintings, silver, fabrics, furniture.

In regard to that important question which pops up every year, dress length, Priscilla is making day clothes this season, fourteen inches from the floor and short evening dresses, eleven inches. She thinks the semi-short evening dresses are smart for dinner, night clubs, the theatre and such, but prefers the conventional floor-length gown for dancing and all formal occasions.

"Clothes," says this authority, "should have a certain amount of drama. But should not be theatrical." And, she advises women, "not to be afraid to wear something different . . . that makes for individuality." Other pertinent advice here is "study your own coloring for best results."

People vibrate to certain colors, she believes, and are at their best when wearing these particular hues and tints.

Besides adding new ideas to her collections each season, Priscilla likes to include some of the old. "Because," she exclaimed, "a good dress of simple lines is always good, nothing can happen to 'good' lines. Such a creation will be acceptable at least five years hence."

The aim of this young designer, who creates outstanding daytime and evening dresses, suits, wedding gowns and negligees, is to "have as few seams that you are aware of as possible." Seams, she believes, should do something in the way of design and not be merely functional . . . this technique gives that lovely "molded to the figure" look. It also helps patterns in fabric (prints) to do things for your figure, she contends.

In the matter of trimming, Priscilla is also very definite . . . it should complement a dress or suit, the same as jewels, furs and the like and not be the main issue. In this regard, she chooses soft feathers and conservative embroideries (sometimes in brilliants), as chic trimming for her creations. The fabrics manipulated to give a "flow or motion" and in some instances, there is no embellishment at all.

Priscilla received a fashion award in 1947 . . . as one of the ten best American designers. In a private preview during this interview she displayed some of the highlights of the current collection. Among them were: a mauve-pink taffeta evening gown of Renaissance influence and an iridescent chartreuse and gold taffeta gown with peplumed top of a deeper tone in velvet and soft feathers in chartreuse accenting the bodice.

White chiffon evening gown, designed by "Priscilla" of Henri Bendel. The pannier adding drama to the gracefully flowing skirt is fawn marquisette. A spray of white feathers with natural tips, enhances the flattering draped bodice. A perfect companion for enchanted Palm Beach evenings.

Meet the chic new uneven skirt . . . fashioned of black pleated nylon net, short in front and dipping to the floor in back, in a fascinating styling. The strapless and fitted basque bodice, is black silk faille finished with a deep ruffle of the net. A creation by "Priscilla."

Colorful and smart, this pure silk chanticleer print, styled with low square-cut neckline, brief sleeves and slim skirt. From the southern wear collection of Frances Brewster and available in white printed with red, green or royal blue cocks. White accessories are an effective complement.

Red suede is the effective trim for this smartly simple dress of red and grey plaid English worsted . . . collar, unique yoke and side-buttoned detail on trouser-skirt. The red suede jacket which completes the ensemble, reverses the idea and cleverly uses the plaid for collar and cuff accents. From the spring and resort collection of Sport and Travel.

Scouting The Shops

WALKING SHORTS: To enhance your resort wardrobe, Ladd's in The Breakers, have a smart collection of British walking shorts (Daks), in fine wools and Irish linens. Of the same fabrics, grand golf skirts, made with double kick pleats and side pockets. All exclusive with this shop in Palm Beach.

TELEVISION CHAIRS: You can be comfortable and lazy in one of the new swivel lounge television chairs, upholstered with foam rubber . . . swing all around for your dialing and viewing, without having to get up or move any of the other furniture. Covered to harmonize with the rest of the room. Worrell's have these!

ELEGANT SIMPLICITY: The keynote of the House of Cartier . . . brilliantly cut and beautifully matched diamonds, in fascinating patterns for necklaces, bracelets, earrings, brooches, rings. To add dazzle to smart dinner and dancing gowns!

THE FINISHING TOUCH: Added to the already comprehensive line of perfume and cosmetics, the Everglades Pharmacy now has virtually any noted imported or domestic version of these important "accessories" that you could mention. Their "Soap Bar" is also the talk of the town! The prescription department has a staff of experienced pharmacists.

DID YOU EVER SEE A DREAM DANCING? This is it . . . a pink nylon net gown, with strapless bodice, wide midriff and bouffant skirt of uneven hemline. Rhinestones and silver lace appliques outlined in iridescent sequins furnish the glitter touch. A highlight of the J. J. Jonas formal evening collection.

GLAMOROUS SHORT HAIR-DOS: Jean De Chant, noted hair stylist of New York and Palm Beach, is introducing a number of interesting new short coiffures this season. Flattering, smartly simple and perfect companions for either resort daytime or evening wear.

ON THE GOLD STANDARD: Greenleaf and Crosby, has an exciting collection of gold accents to add dash to your casual and afternoon clothes. Massive bracelets and clips; oversized and conventional earrings; choker necklaces; watch-bracelets. In exotic and conservative designs.

NYLON PRINTS: Are rapidly becoming popular and Anthony's resort selection is particularly attractive. They feature white and pastel-ground flower and abstract patterns in glorified shirtwaist styling, dramatized with brilliant buttons. They launder and require no ironing.

KNIT YOUR OWN: Everyone is doing it this season, and Evelyn Curtis has all of the necessary gadgets, from yarn of every type imaginable to needles, knitting bags. Also, knitting instructions if you need them.

OLD WORCESTER: As a gift to yourself or some discriminating friend, an old Worcester dessert service, featuring gold border and flower motif center, noted in the antique collections at Plummer's, is a clever choice. Their modern china and glass is also noteworthy . . . as varied and interesting as the antiques. Let your preference decide!

WHITE FOR ENCHANTED EVENINGS: And, the Mogabgab salon has an outstanding collection in both the long and short-skirt lengths. White silk chiffon sprinkled with rhinestones is the medium for an exquisite gown, made with draped bodice and very full skirt. Top this with one of their smart little ermine boleros and you have a symphony in white which is really eye-arresting.

DROP EAR CLIPS: Matched pear-shaped diamonds accented with baguettes, triangles and brilliants and all of this set in platinum . . . and you have some ultra-chic earrings to dramatize your short hair-do. Circular ear clips, huge sunbursts and abstract shapes, developed in diamonds of various cut, are other highlights noted in the Koslow salon.

FOR THE SIDELINES: Finchley's women's shop has some of the most glamorous spectator sports clothes viewed in a long time. Glamorous cotton and linens in all of the high fashion and conventional color tones; exotic and conservative prints; one and two-piece versions and sunbacks with companion jackets. The type of thing that can go just about anywhere with complete fashion assurance.

IS YOUR FUTURE FULL OF WRINKLES?: If so, the Frank and Erma beauty salon can change all that, via the Colran method of facial gymnastics, which exercises the involuntary muscles and makes you look years younger. Invented by a noted plastic surgeon and still under his supervision and direction, it eliminates the necessity of resorting to surgery for face lifting. Men as well as women are taking advantage of this "youthifying" method of facial rejuvenation.

AMETHYSTS FOR DRAMA: To complement the low-cut necklines so popular this season, necklaces are a must in the well-planned wardrobe. In the "something different" category at Milton Fuller's saw a choker necklace of 30 large amethysts. set in platinum and bordered with small round diamonds. There are companion earrings, bracelet and ring.

FOR THE MARINER: Or anybody else for that matter . . . a card table with chart and map top, bordered with a white rope. And, companion cigarette boxes for the ensemble-minded. Among the many, many interesting items noted at Cabbages and Kings. For the Canasta enthusiasts, they have score pads, simulated tortoise card holders and other accessories for this popular game.

RARE JEWELS OF THE WORLD: Are exploited by Harry Winston Inc. of New York City. They are the owners of the Jonker, Vargas and other famous jewels. And, most recently, the Evelyn Walsh McLean jewels, including the Hope Diamond and Star of the East.

DIAMOND ENSEMBLES: The lucid beauty of wonderful jewels enhanced with distinctive designs, is a "hallmark" of L. Barton Brookov, for their diamond ensembles. Glittering necklaces with matched earrings, bracelets, clips, rings . . . ensembled according to your own idea of chic in the matter of dazzle and glitter.

BEAUTIFULLY CO-ORDINATED AND ACCESSORIZED: Smart outfits are only that, when clearly co-ordinated as to color and styling and enhanced with smart accessories. This idea is the theme of the entire Bonwit Teller southern collection . . . daytime, playtime and evening. Outstanding interpretations of the season's styles, exploiting topflight American designers.

Yards and yards of debonnaire tulle, pleated and folded in intricate styling, fashion this white dancing gown by Maurice Rentner. The fitted bodice and skirt top are embroidered with glittering sequins. Note the uneven hemline. From the Palm Beach collection of Bramson's.

An Oriental print of brown and blue cotton, which has the appearance of crepe. Designed by Bonnie Cashin of Adler and Adler in the new sleeveless and deep plunging V neckline, with full skirt and shirred waistline. One of the "go everywhere" type of dresses, from the resort collection of Finchley.

Queen's lace: Numerous loops of small pearls encircle and entwine around a collar of slightly larger pearls, to fashion this regal looking necklace, designed by Jacques Fath exclusively for Marvella. Matching bracelet and earrings complete the chic ensemble, which would add a delightful feminine touch to the most pretentious dinner, or dancing gown.

For women who desire the effect of a short hair-do, but do not want a shingle bob, which by the way is one of the latest ideas in smart coiffures, Bernard of Elizabeth Arden, has created this youthful style. The hair is brushed up, from the temples and swept back in a soft, graceful line.

In the manner of the French couture, this chic taffeta dancing gown, styled with strapless, fitted bodice and double-draped skirt. Clusters of handmade roses, snuggled in the huge pouffs which enhance the skirt, add color interest and a delightful touch of femininity. From the southern collection at McDonald's and available in mauve, pink, beauty red and cornflower blue.

The Colony Hotel

THE COLONY HOTEL, with individualized service, many added features and the charm of being the "baby" of the colony makes its bow this season under the new direction of Mr Bernard Cooley, General Manager.

The Colony is unique; large enough to command all the hotel facilities of a large Metropolitan hotel, yet small enough to permit "service personalized," as a private club could offer.

All of the one hundred, beautifully furnished rooms are scientifically air conditioned, and also may be heated.

Palm Beach's newest hotel, with its tall and stately columns was artistically designed, both inside and out. Each corner of the Colony has a personal touch, from the hand painted square coffee tables in the lobby, to the personal letter of greetings which are extended to each guest as they arrive.

Their sixteen special services are offered to guests in an auspicious manner, in a folder in each room. Services listed include, room service, personal valet and maid service, laundry service, barber shop, beauty shop, garage service, credit, private club facilities in Palm Beach, and many others. It is most unusual for these many services to be offered in such a personalized manner.

Food, at its best, is one of the claims of the Colony Hotel dining room, which combines American and French Cuisine. This year they have a complete new unit, and they offer everything to delight the palate. With their own pastry chef, they also can offer the very finest in pastry delights.

A special buffet or banquet may be arranged, at off-hours from the regular dining room schedule, in any of the spacious rooms available for this purpose. Especially attractive for party service is the Colony Terrace, which adjoins the air-conditioned dining room. It's beautiful floral design and Floridian pictures offer an atmosphere of delight.

The Colony Bar, which was formerly known as the Bird Cage, has been remodeled, and unusual paintings depicting nightblooming cactus, flowering cactus and other exotic flora grace the murals against the tropical background.

The Terrace, located in the East wing of the hotel has also been designed for outdoor dining. It is enclosed with an awning-type Twindo glass. The twindo glass, is being used at the Colony for the first time in this section. It is supposed to be especially good during high winds, and strong enough to resist hurricane blows. The bar, on the terrace, has a personal swing to it, in that it appears to be a small bar, similar to one in many homes. To dress it up, in contrast, to an ordinary bar, it has louver openings, through which soft lights appear. Henry Harding, noted architect, Palm Beach, designed the bar, in similarity to one he had seen in Nassau.

The historical mural over the desk in the main lobby depicts the Floridian scene from the very beginning of our sunny land. The story of the first coconuts that floated ashore from a boat, carrying the stem of a palm, including the old Royal Poinciana Hotel, the picturesque horse-cars, the famous Palm Beach wheel chairs and bicycle riders have all been retained as a part of the Colony history, which was too good to remove.

Many other changes have been made including the green paint job in the corridors, and the bleached oak coloring of the elevators. The new taupe paint job on the exterior of the building strikes a new color line in Floridian hotels, which usually follow the pastel or white pattern.

SIR FRANCIS AND LADY PEEK, prominent in Nassau and Palm Beach social circles, shown at the entrance of the Colony Hotel.

It is as different as its color might suggest, and their services live up to the distinctive pattern that they have set.

The Colony is fast becoming an active place with the Cottage colony set enjoying their food and delightful bar.

Many of the socially prominent people stay at the Colony until their homes are opened, or spend the season right at the Hotel. The beautiful pent houses which the Colony has, are in great demand. They have three of the most outstanding penthouses in the South.

MR. AND MRS. KENT COOPER AND COL. AND MRS. ROBERT R. McCORMICK in the dining room of the Colony Hotel. Mr. Cooper is Executive Director of the Associated Press, while Colonel McCormick is the well-known Chicago publisher.

Occupying the pent houses this year are: Mr. Paul G. Brown of New York City, Mrs. John C. King who has been a member of the Cottage Colony for many years, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buchanan, who are well known in society of Washington, D. C. and Warrenton, Va.

Visiting over the holidays, in the Buchanan house, is Mrs. Gale Archer of Southbury, Conn., Mrs. Buchanan's mother.

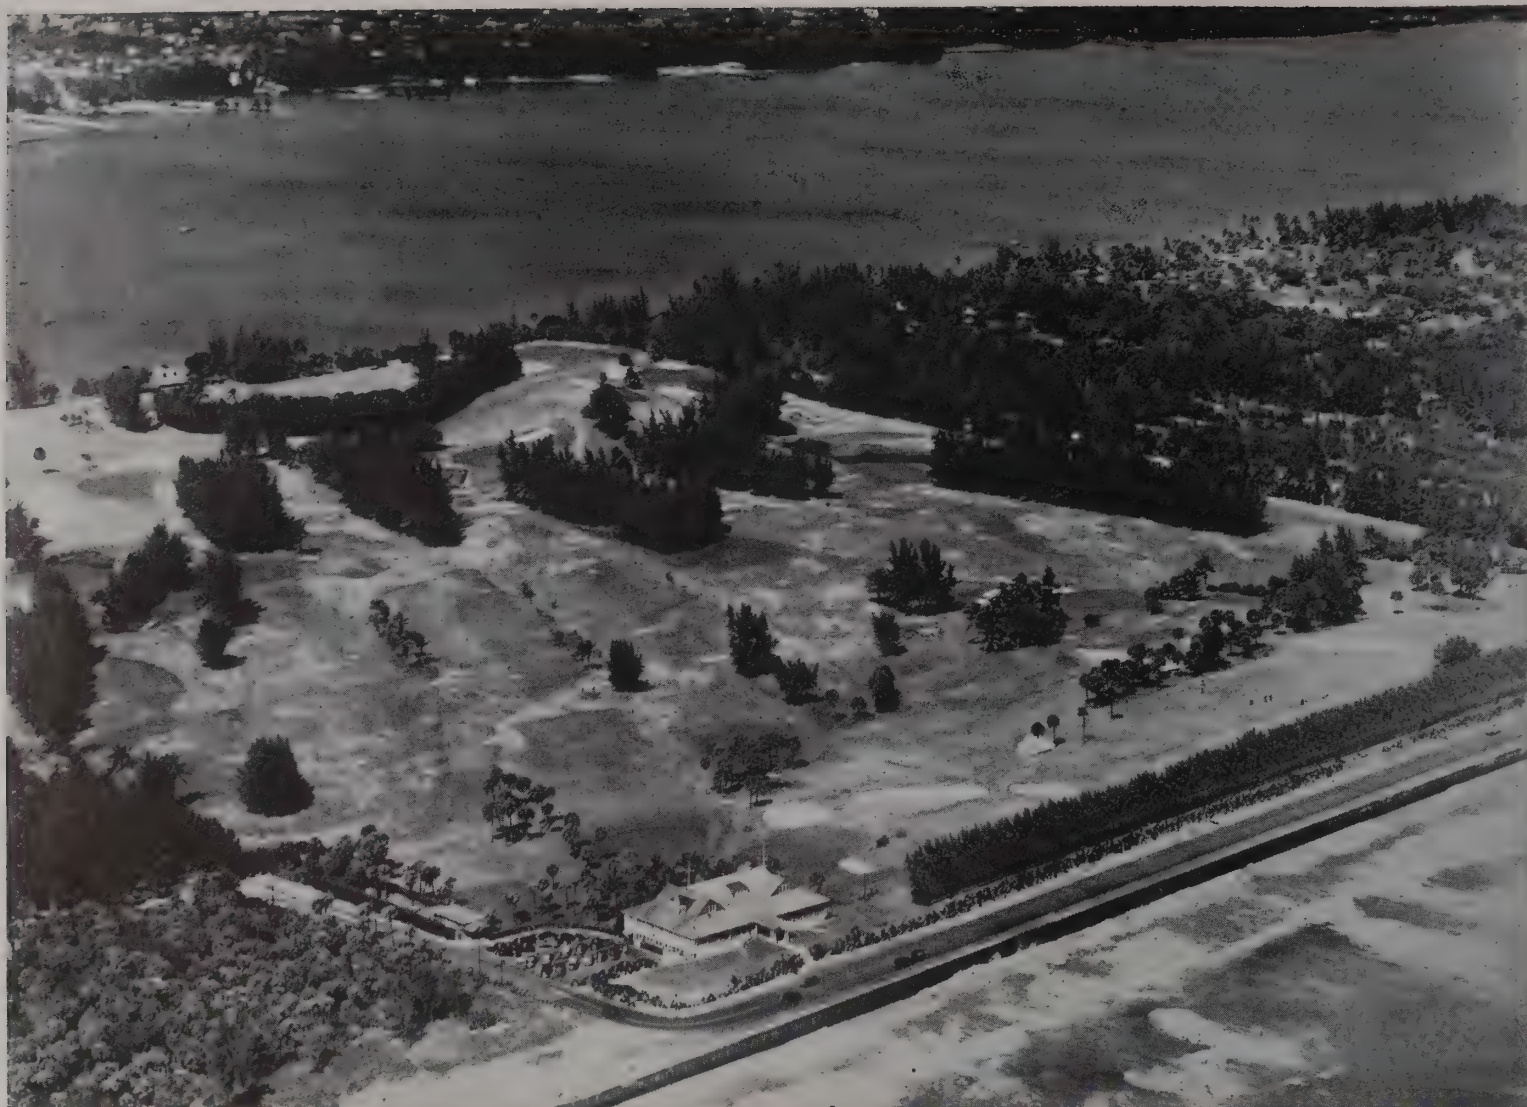

Unique among the services offered to Colony guests is the idea of when ordering breakfast in your room, a special toaster is also set-up on the table, so that you may make your own toast, and as much as you like. Small personal items, like crome kleenex boxes in each bedroom, and the circulating ice water blend with the unusual tone of this hotel.

The Colony goes to great lengths to serve the finest foods, such as Russian caviar, smoked salmon and other delicacies. Their bar boasts of over 50 varieties of Scotch. One bottle on their bar is over 100 years old, which is armagnac Marques de Caussade.

A new innovation, will be the gala luncheon buffet to start on January 15th. It will be served daily in the Terrace and dining room.

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Hanna of Winter Park, Fla., who are at the Colony, are now writing a book on the East Coast of Florida.

The Colony Hotel is geared to remain open year around. It will be one of the few hotels who plan to prove their enthusiasm for Palm Beach "all the time." Mr. Cooley, general Manager, says the population has grown nearly 40,000 in 20 years, and he feels that Palm Beach really has something special to offer to all vacationers, so he is seeking similar enthusiasm from others, to build for the future of Palm Beach. His enthusiasm, which he has brought, this year to Palm Beach, stems from a visit back in 1923 where he vowed he would become a Palm Beacher. Today, he sees that promise as a reality.

A typical scene on any sunny morning at the Palm Beach Country Club. One of the most interesting courses in Florida, its rolling fairways and knolls delight the many golf enthusiasts who make their winter home at Whitehall.

Palm Beach Country Club

PALM BEACH COUNTRY CLUB is not the oldest golf course in this island resort, but it is one of the oldest and is a popular club for golfers of all ages.

What makes it so popular?

It's a short, sporty course, with more hills than most south Florida links. It isn't killing to the rank and file—a fine course for those persons already arrived in life. A high handicap man often gets pars, and good putting often gets him birdies. Instead of long hitting, skill is the important thing. The rolling terrain makes it just enough of a test and still is not too tiring.

Although in his middle-seventies, Mr. Samuel Paley is a frequent visitor to the course. One day recently he fashioned four pars on nine holes. And once, a year ago, he traversed nine holes in just 38 strokes.

Another who likes to play the course when in Palm Beach is the Duke of Windsor, who calls it the nearest thing to Scotland, where the game originated, that may be found in south Florida.

The professionals like it too. A few weeks ago, Al Brosch went around in 64, and the best ever made was a 62 by Stan Bernard. Sammy Snead has done it in 64. Some considerably longer courses have been negotiated in even less, so it is not a pushover.

Palm Beach Country Club grew out of the old Palm Beach Gun Club where, prior to 1917, society marksmen participated in regular shoots.

The clubhouse, the original of the gun club days, was noted for its social functions. At the halfway point of the 18-hole golf course, it now is a favorite place for golfers to stop for refreshment and to enjoy before and after their day's play. Henry Missbach is clubhouse manager.

In Bert and Charley Nicolls Palm Beach Country Club has two fine teaching professionals. Bert, elder of the two brothers who learned their golf in Scotland, is the pro in charge. He was induced to come to Palm Beach five years ago by A. M. Sonnabend of the Whitehall Hotel, whose guests have use of the club and its facilities.

Bert Nicolls came here from Pinehurst where he had served for 24 winters. One of seven pros at Pinehurst when he came to the nation's No. 1 golf center, he saw more efficient methods introduced that brought about a drastic cut in personnel and found him as ranking pro when he left to come here.

Playing almost as long as he's been "able to walk,"

Bert Nicolls started as an aide to Fred Findley at Montrose in Scotland. Fred Findley was a brother of Alec Findley, pioneer of golf in the United States. At the age of 17, while serving his apprenticeship, he won the Montrose championship. Then he came to the U. S. about 1917 to teach in Arthur G. Lockwood's indoor golf school, first of its kind in this country. After three years at the school, Lockwood, who was golf chairman at Belmont (Mass.) Country Club, got the pro job at the club for Bert. And Bert still is associated with Belmont where he has spent the last 28 summers.

Bert Nicolls has taught many well known golfers, but the one whose feat moved him most was Deborah Verry, who won the Massachusetts women's championship about ten years ago and later the North-South Tournament. What made her winning the Massachusetts title so remarkable was the fact that her father was critically ill in a hospital at the time and she visited him before her matches. Her victory brought a turning point in his condition and led to recovery.

Another student does not bring back such fond memories. He instructed a Jap of royalty who then won the spring tournament at Pinehurst. A short while later, he was called back to Japan and World War II followed.

Brother Charley also got his start at Montrose, beginning his apprenticeship at the age of 14 under an uncle. His first position as a professional came in 1921 when he was 19 at Aston Hill, Buckinghamshire, England. He came to the U. S. in 1922 as assistant to another uncle at Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale, Mass. After a year at Auburndale he got a head pro job at Framington (Mass.) Country Club. In 1926, he moved over to the now extinct Arlmont Country Club at Arline Heights, Mass. Three years later he was at the Sequin Country Club (now Indian Hill) at Hartford, Conn. In 1933, he went to Rockledge Country Club at West Hartford for a seven-year stay. After two years at Shennecosett Country Club, New London, Conn., he went to the Army. The summer of 1945 found him back in golf at Ardsley on Hudson, and in 1947 he went to Breton Woods where he is at present located in summer. Charley came to PBCC with Bert.

Two real Palm Beach veterans on the Country Club staff are Ted Drury, tournament director who also served under Gil Nicholls in the early 30's, and Bill Wilson, shopman, who came here as a caddie in 1919 and has been here ever since. He began caddying in 1913 at the Breakers course.

The late Arthur H. Fenn was the club's first professional, dividing time between Palm Beach Country Club and what is now the Breakers course when both were owned by the same company. Pros George Gordon and Alec Ritchie, now associated with Miss Bess Fenn, who succeeded her father at the Palm Beach Golf Club when he died in 1925, were assistants to Mr. Fenn.

Gordon Smith was the next pro at the Country Club. Then came Sid Coventry, Gil Nicholls, Steve Ploudre and then Bert Nicolls.

The course is used mainly by Whitehall guests and club members, with the Whitehall Christmas Handicap, Whitehall Championships and the Red Cross tournaments features of the season. Convention tournaments are also held here.

One tournament, the Christmas Handicap, has already been held this season. Mr. J. Hoffman of New York City won in the men's division and Mrs. J. M. Marks, also of New York City, won the women's section.

A near hole-in-one was shot in this tournament by Mr. Stewart Krisell of Great Neck, N. Y. Teeing off for the 230-yard seventh hole, Mr. Krisell dropped his ball onto the green and it rolled across the hole, stopping a scant yard beyond.

Stretching from the Atlantic Ocean to Lake Worth in the northern part of the island is Palm Beach Country Club. In the foreground is the clubhouse on County Road.

AMONG the PALMS

ONE OF PALM BEACH'S finest, the Brazilian Court continues to be a mecca for winter visitors with discriminating tastes. Designed for gracious living, the hotel boasts luxurious tropical patios, a bamboo dining room and cloister and smart cocktail lounge and bar.

Luncheons and dinners are an added specialty at the hotel, and members of the cottage colony as well as hotel guests delight in entertaining friends in this typical Palm Beach setting.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Mulford, of Montclair, N. J., have arrived at the hotel for their annual seasonal stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund P. Cassell, of Providence, R. I., are also at the Brazilian Court for the season. Others there for the winter include Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hollingsworth, of New York; Miss Helen V. Carr, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. Myles J. Tierney, of Rye, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Roland H. Zinn, of South Orange, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shields, of New York and Southampton, L. I.

Mr. John E. Rovensky, of Greenwich, is there for his annual visit and others at the Brazilian Court included Mr. B. Sumner Welles who was there for a short stay before opening his house on Via Bellaria.

Miss Helen V. Carr entertained at cocktails honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. Murray-Jacoby, of Delray Beach, and their son-in-law and daughter, Don Alfredo Holguin and Dona Beatrice de Holguin of Bogota.

Holiday guests were Mrs. J. D. E. Allen and her two daughters, Charlotte L. Allen and Martha Pitt Allen, of Upper Darby, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vonderlieth are there for an indefinite stay.

THE SIX CHARMING villas that overlook Lake Worth and are located across from the famous Everglades Club have played host to hundreds who have become a part of the Cottage Colony. Under the direction of Miss Miriam Stowers, The Villas continue to reign over the Palm Beaches very much in their original state, as they were in the Addison Mizner period.

The Villas Restaurant, which has always been a delightful place to dine, is under the new direction of Mr. B. F. McKenzie. It is the only bar and restaurant in Palm Beach which overlooks beautiful Lake Worth. The enticing Florida sun sets at its front door.

A new terrace bar has been added to the Villas Restaurant this year, offering more space than previously and an even more attractive setting than in the past.

A VINETA HOTEL COTTAGE at 353 Chilean Avenue has been taken for the season by Frank J. Birk of Chicago. He was here for the holidays with Herman Bartholomy of Winnetka, Ill., as his house-guest. His sisters, Mrs. Minnie Birk Whitehouse, Mrs. Carrie B. Hohner and Miss Amelia Birk, all of Chicago, are at the Vineta cottage for the season and Mr. Birk will return in mid-February. Mr. Birk has been a regular Palm Beach visitor for the past eighteen years when he was an annual guest at the old Breakers.

Lady Gladys Burney of London arrived Jan. 7 to pass the season with her mother, Mrs. George H. High of Lake Forest, Ill., at The Vineta.

Mrs. Raymond Schumacker of Newark, N. J. is at the hotel for the season. Mr. Schumacker passed the holidays here and was successful in his deep-sea fishing jaunts, landing among others, a 60-pound sailfish.

Others who arrived recently for several weeks for the season are: Dr. Willis A. Potter and his sister, Mrs. Mabel Whitman of Detroit; Herman W. Vaughan of Rutland, Vt., Joseph D. Coleman of Madison, Wisc., Miss Julia Carpenter of Boston, Mrs. P. Compton Miller and son, P. Compton Miller, Jr., of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brawley of Greensboro, N. C., Mrs. A. M. Anderson of Kenilworth, Ill.,

THE MAYFLOWER HOTEL overlooks beautiful Lake Worth, in its ever pleasing manner of entertaining its guests. Cocktail parties are held twice weekly, and every effort is made to interest the guests in the hotel activities.

First place on the hit parade of entertainment open to hotel guests is the large swimming pool and sun accommodations. A fresh fruit bar is always present near the swimming pool so house-guests and their friends may enjoy fruit juices, at their convenience.

through its many seasons it has entertained names of fame.

The excellence of its food, its good entertainment and fine music is attractive to Palm Beachers, who return to The Patio year after year to make it their winter-time rendezvous for formal affairs, or informal get-togethers.

Under management of Dan Shalek, assisted by Maestro Val Ernie as director of entertainment, The Patio opened its new season almost as it was closed last Spring for, Manager Shalek said, long-time patrons asked that no changes be made in the club itself, and that its colorful decorations of blue, white and yellow, and the live green shrubbery surrounding the building and the dance floor, be left as they were.

Few changes in personnel have been made. Shalek himself remains as managing director with Maestro Ernie again, for the 20th season in Palm Beach, as director of entertainment. Another familiar member of the club's staff is Capt. Eddie Zimmerman, known "from coast to coast as a greeter and host."

To the right may be seen the twin-towered Palm Beach Biltmore and glimpsed in the background, to the left is Whitehall, the former home of Henry M. Flagler. The three largest and most fabulous hostelrys in the resort . . . the scene of some of the most important social affairs during the winter season.

A beautiful black and red bar and cocktail lounge, a spacious dining room with a beautiful old band stand, and many large lobbys and card rooms are all available to the guests. The Mayflower, this season, ranks among the leading hotels with its reservations, and in the early season led many of the larger establishments.

THE PALM BEACH PATIO, which has held a high place in restaurant and night club life in the resort for more than 20 years, opened its 1949-50 season on December 28, and patronage at the beginning of its new year indicated that the swank rendezvous once more will hold its place as the hub of fun and gaiety through the winter.

Known as "The Place to See, and the Place to be Seen," The Patio's guest books records names known through the world in society, sports, business and entertainment, and

But Victor Crotta, with the Stork Club for 20 years, and operator of the Atlantic Beach Club of New York, has been installed as maite d', while Gaston, "found" by Manager Shalek in Paris has taken over the kitchen, and his culinary art already has been hailed by Patio patrons.

Val Ernie's famed orchestra has returned, featuring three violins again this season, and the music of the prominent maestro again is calling old-time and new patrons to The Patio. This year he has added the solovux to his musical equipment.

Much of the club's program of fun and entertainment, said Maestro Ernie, will be devoted to audience-participation games, which proved to be so popular last season.

In late afternoons, the Patio Terrace again is available for cocktails and informal parties, and many gala events will be on the schedule for The Patio's entertainment of Palm Beach this season.

Social Notes from Nassau

THE GAY FANFARE of social activity which heralds the start of Nassau's season has sounded earlier than usual this year.

Visitors flocked to Nassau this year before ever the first snowflake fell. Winter homes opened early—some of them as early as September—and a great number of Nassau's winter residents arrived before the Christmas holidays.

One reason for the record number of early season guests is devaluation of the Pound Sterling, which has put bargains in quality British wares without the reach of all American and Canadian visitors. While existing stocks last, Americans visiting Nassau can save up to 30 per cent on the quality sterling wares for which this resort is famous. Canadians have a little less, because their dollar was devalued.

Transportation, too, is good this season. Air service has never been faster, more frequent or more comfortable, and while there is no regular passenger ship service to Nassau this season, more cruise ships have visited Nassau so far this winter than at any time since the pre-war days.

Air travel to Nassau has increased 30 per cent. over the preceding year, and two out of three of Nassau's visitors now arrive by air. Flights on all air lines which serve Nassau this season will be increased to meet the season's demands.

Visiting cruise ships this winter have included RMS. Caronia, SS. Queen of Bermuda, SS. Veendam and M/Y Stella Polaris. Due to arrive are RMS. Mauretania, January 23, March 15 and April 1, and SS. Veendam on February 16.

Most of the hotels and guest houses here were open by December 15, although the large hotels saved their "formal" openings until New Year's Eve.

Nassau's new Governor, His Excellency Sir George Ritchie Sandford, will arrive the day after Washington's Birthday. Former Governor Sir William Murphy left last July to enter retirement.

The season's spectator sports styles had their first airing January 6, when Hobby Horse Hall opened for the racing season. Nassau's smart set are becoming increasingly aware of the chic, tropical motifs developed by Nassau's local designers. At the moment, the Nassau "Jay" shoe and the dresses designed by Tropiclads of Nassau are especially popular.

Sports events scheduled for the season so far, include the Fort-Lauderdale-Cat Cay ocean race, January 23; that famous annual sailing classic, the Miami-Nassau Ocean Race, now coming up for the twelfth year, on February 14; followed by the Governor's Trophy Race, in Nassau under the aegis of the Nassau Yacht Club, February 17 and 18. Golf and tennis tournaments will highlight the season's sports programme and the British Colonial Hotel will stage another of its Water Shows—this year introducing international diving stars who will compete for the U. S. National Acrobatic Diving Championships in Nassau.

Early arrivals here include: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McNeill of London and Washington, and who have opened their lovely Montagu Heights residence for the season; Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van Vlaanderen of Ridgewood, N. J.; Lady Iliffe, who has opened her "Marion House" for the season and will be joined by Lord Iliffe in January; Mr. Arthur Vining Davis, who has returned to his Three Bays Farm development at Rock Sound, Eleuthera; Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Worswick of West Palm Beach and Nassau, whose first house guest at their Nassau home, "La Playa," was the most Honourable the Marchioness of Huntly, the charming wife of Scotland's Premier Marquess; the Hon. Norman Armour, former U. S. Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Armour, who have opened their winter home here; Miss Diana Huggins, attractive young daughter of Jamaican Governor Sir John Huggins and Lady Huggins; the most Honourable the Marquess of Winchester, Premier Marquess of England, who has returned to his "Three Roofs" home to recuperate from a recent illness; Lord Beaverbrook, who is one of Nassau's oldest friends; Lady Bain; Air Vice/Marshal Reginald Marix, whose son, Squadron/Leader Nigel Marix, is General Manager of Bahamas Airways here; Sir Victor Sassoon, whose new apartment house development here was completed recently; Sir Bede Clifford, former Governor of the Bahamas, and currently directing Mr. William E. Butlin's $8,000,000 Grand Bahaman development; Sir Oliver Simmonds; and Lady Jane Williams-Taylor, who has returned to her Charlotte Heights residence here.

Cat Cay

NEW YEAR'S holiday celebration was observed in the traditional manner of Merrie England at Cat Cay in Bahamas, and open house hospitality was extended by all cottage colonists now in residence there for the season.

The Louis Rice Waseys of East Hampton, N. Y., were gracious hosts New Year's Eve in their home, Second House, when they entertained all the Islanders with an elaborate cocktail party and buffet supper. This gay affair was climaxed by a dance in the palm bordered patio of their palatial home. Softly illumed, vari-colored lights added a note of beauty to the setting. Many a toast was given to the New Year as the midnight hour rang out gayly. The Waseys were assisted in entertaining by their daughter, Jane Wasey, New York sculptress of considerable note, and who is here on one of her infrequent visits, and their granddaughter, Miss Nina Wasey.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Hollingshead, Jr., Philadelphia, are here aboard their new Gruman Mallard plane, with air cruise guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Clark. They will occupy the Strong cottage for a few weeks. Their visit was a surprise to Mr. Frederick Coolidge Crawford of Cleveland, who, with Mrs. Crawford, is occupying their cottage Hi-Tide, for the season. Mr. Hollingshead shipped a jackass to Cat Cay, which was adorned by a large red satin ribbon bow, and presented during the New Year's Day celebration to Mr. Crawford, with a card inscribed "From One to One."

The Crawfords entertained at their cottage, Hi-Tide, on New Year's with an egg-nog party and luncheon for all the Islanders in compliment to their house guest, Mrs. Scott Follansbee of Shaker Heights, Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Patterson, Carlton House, New York, joined other colonists here the other day for a stay at the Cat Key Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bacon and Mr. and Mrs. W. Wallace Kellett, Philadelphia, are making their first visit in Cat Cay, and are staying at the Cat Key Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Engle of Coconut Cr ve, Fla., are arriving at the Cay early in January aboard their yacht, Blue Gold. They will drop anchor in Pirates Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shevlin, Palm Beach, made a farewell visit at the Cat Key Club before their recent departure for Africa, where they will devote a few months to fishing along the East Coast of that Country. They will be piloted by Captain Bill Fagan aboard his cruiser Manana III. Captain Fagan aboard the Manana left his usual berth at Cat Cay several weeks ago, heading across the Atlantic for Africa. Captain Fagan hails from Miami.

The Breakers

ONE OF THE FOCAL points of interest for the social life of Palm Beach, The Breakers opened for its 23rd season on December 15, with reservations exceeding those of last year. The hotel's program for 1950 will be one of the most interesting and varied in the history of this fabulous hostelry, reports C. W. Wannop, who is entering on his fourth year as manager.

As in former years, guests this season will include numerous celebrities and famous personages. And, as usual, a great many old patrons who have been wintering at the hotel for years will return; some since the old Royal Poinciana days. A number of persons who have been absent from the Palm Beach scene for a number of seasons are returning this year and reservations have also been made for many new patrons.

Among the innovations this year to add pleasure to the guests' holidays, is dancing on Saturday nights in the Grand Ball Room, and movies in the Grand Loggia every Wednesday evening. Tea-dancing will continue daily on the terrace, to the tuneful rhythms of Walter Miller and the Meyer Davis Orchestra; with terpsichorean exhibitions by Betty and George Montgomery. Highlighting the Sunday night semi-classical concerts by the orchestra, is the singing of Ted Milford, British tenor, formerly of the D'oyly Carte Opera.

Among Breakers' guests now in residence at the hotel, who will be here throughout the season are: Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Crowley of New York; James Belden of Atlantic City; Mrs. Nathan D. Bill of Boston; Alexander Phillips of New York; Andrew S. White, Fayetteville, N. Y.; Lindsey Loring, Westwood, Mass.; Mrs. William Seyfert of Reading, Pa.; Miss Ida S. Griesemer and Mrs. Herbert G. The Palm Beach Hotel UNPRECEDENTED IN THE ANNALS of Palm Beach has been the record established by the Palm Beach Hotel during the holiday season. Long before the opening date of December 18th, the reservation lists were closed and the hotel completely full for the holidays.

Awaiting the capacity group of guests were the many improvements costing more than $50,000. While the Palm Beach Hotel offers practically every facility and feature to fulfill the heart's desire of most every one, the Seiden Management always seeks the betterment of its facilities and services for the happiness of the guests. To this end, there have been many improvements that have been made that do not meet the eye of the guests, but all of which serve to serve them better. The major improvement has been made in the dancing patio, which has been completely rebuilt at considerable cost, so that it is more beautiful to the eye and provides better seating for every one. It is quite glamorous looking now and dancing and enjoying the shows under the stars will be much more exciting.

The Hotel and the Beach Club have both been completely repainted and redecorated, quite a few miles of carpet have been installed, the entrance lobby and the main lobby both have been refinished, the card rooms and the coffee shop have been sound proofed, a bandstand and dance floor have been added to the cocktail lounge so that dancing indoors during inclement weather can be better enjoyed in the cozy and informal atmosphere of the lounge; and there are other renovations, installations, improvements and new services which, while each in itself is minor, all add together for a much better holiday.

Opening the holiday fortnight Wednesday before Christmas was the formal cocktail party. It was given by the Seiden Management for its guests and, like all events planned by the Palm Beach Hotel, was beautiful to the very last appointment. The buffet table was breath-taking in its beauty and served as an appropriate background for the smartly gowned ladies and their escorts.

Alan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Minskoff.

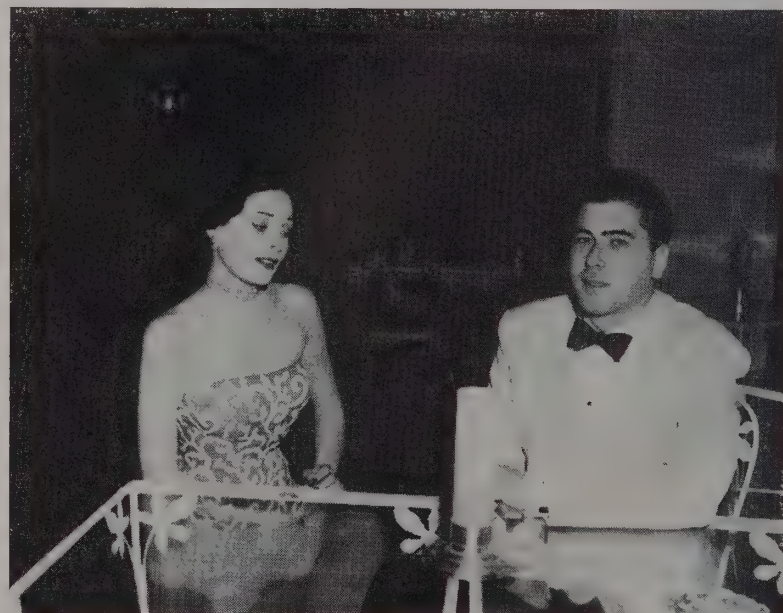

Equally delightful was the cocktail party which ushered in Christmas Eve. It was followed by a festive dinner and an unusually good bill of entertainment. Dick Gasparre again capably handled the music for dancing, style show and concerts held during the holiday fortnight. Pepe Lara a most personable young man with a very beautiful voice and his orchestra took charge of the Latin American music. They are new to the Palm Beach Hotel this season and have already gathered many enthusiasts.

Long to be remembered for its beauty and distinctiveness is the New Year's Eve celebration held at the Palm Beach Hotel. The dining room was decorated in such a manner as to bring out its unusual beauty. The guests thronged there after the Cocktail Party given by the Seiden Management. They then changed into formal dress for the Gala Show and the dancing.

Plans for the immediate future include many events or the Younger Set is more varied than ever before. It in-show with a different note will be held, with the models as debs. A moonlight aquacade with outstanding stars has been planned for the adult guests while the entertainment for the Younger Set is more varied than ever before. It includes a Sub-Deb Prom, a Deb Fashion Show, a Carnival, treasure hunts, a moonlight cruise, game nights, arts and crafts classes, egg nogg and cocktail parties, special luncheons and other interesting activities.

Resuming his duties again as resident manager of the hotel is Mr. James Hitz. Dan Howard is again genial host of the Cocktail Lounge, the West Patio and the Top O' the Palm. Jack Reese has returned as Maitre 'd and Mr. Morton Sunshine is again on hand to supervise all the activities of the popular Cabana Beach Club.

New to the staff this year is Miss Marion Rubinstein, public relations director who has a very distinguished background in newspaper and magazine work. A contributor to American and other national magazines, she is also an author of note and is on the Alfred A. Knopf list.

The splendor of the Palm Beach Hotel, its excellence of service and the skill and competence of its staff has attracted a large number of new guests who are famous in many fields of achievement.

Due to arrive here this season are many literary luminaries. Among them are Miss Alice Hughes, fashion columnist for King Features Syndicate which serves 1500 newspapers, Mr. David Appel, book editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and author of the widely discussed "Polio Made Me Stronger" recently published in Reader's Digest, Merle Miller, editor of Atlantic Monthly and author of several best selling novels, Irving Kupcinet, columnist for the Chicago Sun Times, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Kalmus of the National Broadcasting Corporation and Mr. Carl Carmer, author of the best selling "Dark Trees to the Wind." ANCIENT CHINESE RITUALISTIC JADE

The Shao Lin Ssu Temple and environs, in China, where a number of the treasured ritualistic jade altar pieces were found, at the beginning of the present century.

"IF WE ARE TO UNDERSTAND the present, the past can in no wise be neglected, for it is only by the aid of such retrospect that we may appreciate the inner workings of the spirit which is today motivating our national life." This statement from the old Chinese, quoted by Dr. Stanley Charles Nott, internationally-known authority on jade, is wonderful advice for either the scholar or the layman.

Ancient Chinese classified jade as Chian, Quan, Chien and Yu, he commented. "And, in this mineral which radiated all the colors of the rising and setting sun, the early sages saw the personification of the grandeur of the qualities of perpetuality."

The "soul of the stone" which is so radiant with life, was enlivened by the five virtuous properties of Chieh, Tsi, Yung, Jen and Yi, they contended. So, they adopted it as their emblem of the "braveness of pure intelligence which fosters love in the perfect understanding of righteous living."

Small wonder then, this precious medium of the mountains and rivers, was later said to "control, direct and restrain the entire life of the communities." In Jade, the Chinese saw the element of perpetuality and of supreme temporal authority, Dr. Nott said "Thus they chose it as their medium of intermediary between heaven and the people. It was used in all of the ritualistic devices, altar pieces and the like."

"In rituals dedicated to the praise of the essence of living and to the grandeur of the seasonal elements, it was fitting" exclaimed this authority "to find that jade figured as the symbol of imperial autocracy, fashioned in emblematic forms, evincing the fervor of fraternal understanding."

"What better implement for promoting friendship could have been conjured," Dr. Nott noted "than the universally acknowledged master of conviviality, the teapot?" Among the oldest known extant Chinese ritual teapots, he asserted, is one recorded in numerous writings on Chinese jade, which was discovered in the early part of this century, in the environs of the Shao Lin Ssu Temple.

Other ritualistic Chinese jades which came from the precincts of this temple include: the world-famous ritual jade buffalo, which for centuries stood on an "Altar to Earth" in lower Szechuan and the Buddhist elephant, which is said to be one of the earliest jade Buddhistic ritual animal creations of the Chinese.

The animal in the form of Pi-Hsich and which is described by international Chinese art experts as "the most sensational ritualistic jade to have come into the possession of the Western World," was discovered in the environs of the Chung Yueh Miao Temple in the foothills of the Sung

Shan mountains. Several other notable prehistoric ritual pieces have also come from this locality.

All of these specimens of ancient Chinese ritual accoutrements, said Dr. Nott, give evidence in their design of the symbolic links which were forged by the Chinese leaders between the human, animal and universal harmonic powers in prehistoric times. "And, throughout the ages," he continued, "the Chinese creators of ritualistic and religious forms, have all been influenced by these early basic inspirations of life motion."

"Ancient ritualistic Chinese art is today esteemed by sinologists as the world's most forceful exponent of rhythmic vitality. All students of Chinese art realizing the validity of Hsieh Ho's analysis of the fusing of the spiritual and the material, and thereby developing a visual symbol of Chinese life."

In the galleries of the House of Jade, Ltd., New York City, many of these rare Chinese carvings are on exhibition. A wonderful collection which features the outstanding pieces of Oriental culture.

Among the books which Dr. Nott has authored are: Voices from the Flowery Kingdom; The Working and Dating of Chinese Jades; Chinese Art of World Renown; Chinese Culture in the Arts.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora,

While you are down there sitting in the sun garnering good health Washingtonians are ruining theirs because of the most strenuous social season since the war.

We had royalty visiting us in the last few weeks in the form of the slim, good-looking Shah of Iran who gave a most glittering "white tie and decorations" reception at the Shoreham Hotel. The reception was preceded by a dinner he gave in honor of President and Mrs. Truman. The Persians had fresh caviar flown from the Caspian sea for the occasion. Long stemmed red roses, tall white tapers, and etched crystal graced the table.

After the dinner President and Mrs. Truman received the first 100 guests in line with the Shah and popular Ambassador Ala. The reception was held in the ball room which had been transformed into a garden of American Beauty Roses. There was an excellent orchestra all making a fitting background for the be-medalled, be-ribboned men and lavishly gowned women from Washington society. I saw exquisite gold and silver saris, be-jewelled noses, fezzes, Chinese and Philippine dresses, as well as glowing satin gowns worn by such ladies as Mrs. Daisy Harriman, former Minister to Norway and handsome Mrs. Patrick Hurley. Mrs. Joseph Davies was resplendent in a 3 inch wide diamond necklace and pale gray taffeta. The buffet of lobster, pheasants "en plumage" and Iranian delicacies was something to write home about.

The Shah is the first Oriental monarch ever to visit

It's conversation time. At a Washington cocktail party Princess Pignatelli chats with Hugo Gouthier, the Brazilian Counselor, and Miss Sharman Douglas, daughter of the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The President and Mrs. Harry Truman. His Majesty Shah Pahlavi and Ambassador Ala of Iran in the receiving line at the beautiful reception tendered the young ruler in the main ballroom of Washington's Shoreham Hotel.

America. Although he is only 30 years old he is a trained military man, an excellent boxer, and skier, and flies his own B-17.

There was a delightful reception held at the Australian Legation by the Austrian Minister and Mme. Kleinwaechter after the magnificent collection of Viennese art was opened for the first time at the National Gallery here. It's reputed to be the finest art collection ever exhibited in America and will be shown in San Francisco and New York before being sent back to Vienna.

Mrs. Paul Healy has been in Washington seeing old friends since her return from France where she spends every summer. She left just before Christmas for Palm Beach and her apartment at the Everglades Club where she will stay until April. While here Mrs. Healy was entertained by scores of her friends including Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Holdredge and Mr. Clarence B. Hewes. She rolled out the welcome mat herself at several small dinners at the Sulgrave club. Mrs. Healy will be off for Paris again early in May of this year.

Distinguished Mrs. Clarence Wadsworth came through Washington recently on her way to Palm Beach and was entertained at a reception given by her talented sculpturing son and his artistic wife Cleome both of whom I knew in China when son Julius was in the diplomatic service.

Mrs. English Gordon is one of the Washingtonians who will be leaving for Palm Beach in January as will J. Deane Rucker, and Mrs. Justice Reid who visits there every year. Mrs. Charles Sawyer will return to Palm Beach after having spent Christmas in Cincinnati with her husband. She expects to remain until February in Florida. Mrs. Sailing Baruch had a whirl of parties given for her in Washington before leaving for her winter home in Florida.

Popular Vice-President Barkley and his bride Jane rushed into town for the famous Grid-Iron Dinner given on December 11th. The Grid-Iron is strictly stag, but Mrs. Barkley made her appearance at a party for the distaff side given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilson at which the amusing skits from the dinner the night before were repeated. Most of the officials and politicians get a gentle ribbing from the cynical Fourth Estate Gentlemen who put the party on. Defense Secretary Louis Johnson sat and smiled rather stiffly as they sang this little ditty to the tune of one of the "South Pacific" hits:

"Ail by myself I'm the whole Army
I'm the Navy and Air Forces too,
I nod my head and Congress plays dead.
And now I have the White House in view!"

Getting back to Mrs. Barkley, she is prettier by far than her pictures and seems to be a warm friendly person. She wandered around smiling and chatting with all the official wives who were longing to get a look at her. Her sophisticated step-daughter took her aside and told her she should let people come to her as she was the wife of the Vice-President. The story is she listened, and then went right on around the room leaving admirers in her wake.

By the way, this is only the third time that a Chief Executive has failed to be present at the Grid Iron dinner, and everyone admires the septaugenarian Veep for coming and taking the political jibes good naturedly. He even ended up the show by doing a solo of "Wagon Wheels." When the Barkleys return from their Sea Island retreat they will surely be the most popular couple in Washington.

While I was in Paris this summer I went to the fashionable "Salon" of blonde Duchess de la Rochefaucauld who receives every other Wednesday in her magnificent "Hotel Particulier." While there I met handsome, blue-eyed Viscount Eric Duncannon who told me that he and his wife, the former Mary Munn and their new baby will be spending the winter in Palm Beach.

By the way the Duchess de la Rochefaucauld is currently on a lecture tour in the United States and hoped to include Palm Beach in her itinerary.

At another cocktail party given by the Princess Colonna Di Sciarra of Rome in honor of a nephew of the King of Italy, who is becoming quite famous as a painter, I met not only the handsome King, but ran into Howard Railley who is the American Civil Air Attache in Paris. Howard who has been recently divorced is expected to be making news soon by marrying Sue Rosenberg of Washington and Paris.

You'd never know to look at beautiful Ruth Hurley that she and her dashing husband Pat could possibly be celebrating their thirtieth wedding anniversary. They invited a group of Capitalites to their marble mansion on Massachusetts Avenue recently to celebrate their anniversary and to view the large scale portrait of the hostess done by Howard Chandler Christy. Helping her parents receive the guests were pretty post-deb Mary Hope Hurley who was born when her father was Secretary of War during the Hoover Administration, and their son Wilson Hurley. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alf Heiberg (she the former Louise Stotesbury), Sir Wilmott and Lady Lewis, former Ambassador Stanley Hornbeck, Mme Pandit, the dynamic Indian Ambassador, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, Eric Johnston, and many others.

I understand that the Joseph E. Davies will not be opening their Palm Beach house this year. They intend to take a cruise to Latin America instead. Speaking of the Davies they launched the debutante season by entertaining 300 guests at a dinner dance recently with Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Riggs 4th (Mrs. Riggs is the daughter of Mrs. Davies.)

The dance was in honor of Marjorie Munthe Morganstierne, daughter of the Norwegian Ambassador and Miss Anne Martin, daughter of Mrs. Bartholomew Pleydell-Bouverie of Syosset, L. I. The party was held at the Hotel Shoreham. Mrs. Davies was in a white chiffon gown appliqued in black velvet, and if you had looked around you would have seen chic Mme. Bonnet in a Fath model of gold brocade, Mrs.

Max Truitt in a cloud of gray tulle, and Mme. Morganstierne in soft gray taffeta. Handsome Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg and his wife, Belgian Ambassador Robert Silvercruys, the Patrick Hurleys and Col. and Mrs. Tony Biddle were some of the others seated at small tables for ten. Sidney played for the dancing which only stopped when an English comedy team came to put on their act.

Went to a tea recently at the Gifford Pinchot's in honor of Mrs. John (Jeanie) Anderson, the new Ambassador to Denmark. She is fortyish, intelligent and attractive. To cope with the social contingencies in Copenhagen she is taking along 15 evening dresses and various and sundry other costumes for the afternoon, luncheons etc. She will no doubt find use for them in Copenhagen which is famous for its sparkling night life—theater, opera, ballet, plus some of the best restaurants in Europe. Not only that, King Frederick is under 50, Queen Ingrid under 40, and during the winter season court life is very active.

A romance that began in Washington and is now flourishing in Geneva, Switzerland, it is said will lead soon to the altar. The polished, lovely looking Austrian Princess Sophie Zur Lippe-Weissenfels who was exceedingly popular here in Washington will soon become the bride of Sergio Figueroa, member of a prominent Chilean family, and the grandson of a former President of Chile. The couple will live in Florence, Italy.

I understand from Alec Ulmann and his pretty wife who are spending the holidays in Palm Beach that there has been something unique introduced into Palm Beach life . . . a 'round the houses Motor Race of the Palm Beaches' that is something like a miniature Grand Prix de Monaco. The enthusiasm of the Colliers seems to be the reason for the whole thing.

Colonel Herbert de Schinkel, Swedish Air Attache, hosted a delightful dance for the younger Washington group at his charming home out in Spring Valley. Dancing went on until three a.m. and there was a lavish Swedish smorgasbord served at 1:00 a.m. The piece de resistance was a pancake dessert which was pancakes thin as silk spread with whipped cream, hot butter, and berry preserves, the whole works cut through like a layer cake. There was a notable stag line and some of the most beautiful girls of the International set including Martha Rountree of "Meet the Press" radio fame, beautiful Margaret Thors, daughter of the Icelandic Minister, Joan Exnicios, the beauty Queen of Italy, Mrs. Blake Clarke, wife of one of the roving editors of Reader's Digest, and many more including the slim graceful Mme. Boheman, the wife of the Swedish Ambassador, Mme. Hagglof, wife of the Swedish counselor, and dark-haired attractive Mme. Thor Thors of Iceland.

Popular Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy, Hugo Gouthier, had as house guests recently Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Mallard of Paris and Cannes. While the Mallards were here Hugo held an international cocktail party honoring them and blonde Sharmon Douglas who had just flown in from London and New York. Sharmon seems a very modest young girl with a great deal of charm. Washington was sorry to see her go. After Christmas in New York she left for the family ranch in Arizona, and a trip to California before she leaves with her parents to go back to England around the first of February. This is all for now, darling, there'll be more news of Washington doings coming your way soon.

Affectionately,
Garnett

WHITEHALL

WITH THE OFFICIAL opening of Whitehall successfully initiated by the Christmas holidays and the sounds of merriment which marked the welcoming of the New Year still resounding through the old Flagler mansion, this world-renowned winter resort hotel is embarked on the most brilliant season in its history, according to A. M. Sonnabend, President, and Larry Borsten, General Manager.

More than just a guest house for northerners weary of slush and sleet, Whitehall is a complete playground, offering the Sun and Surf Cabana Club for sunny days of relaxation at the beach and the exclusive Palm Beach Country Club, where many of the famous can be seen daily enjoying the beautiful 18-hole golf course.

At the Sun and Surf Club, every facility for comfortable living is made available to the sun-worshippers. For those who shy away from ocean bathing, there is the sparkling emerald pool whose refreshing waters soothe both young and old. In the Palm Patio, a perfect setting is found for luncheons, teas and steak parties.

In the hotel proper, where the very atmosphere is conducive to gracious living, flawless service and perfect organization combine to create an effect of effortless operation. Caught in the magic of the old-world charm of this tropical paradise, Whitehall guests are whirled through nights of enchantment in the lovely Jardin Royale, where music for dancing is provided nightly by Ruby Newman's orchestra. Bob Russell, the dynamic show personality, lends his talents to emcee guest talent shows, staff nights, as well as offering an amazing variety of entertainment of his own.

At home in their charming penthouse apartment are Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sonnabend who have been joined by their sons Paul, Stephen and Roger and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Roger Sonnabend.

Also at the Whitehall are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sonnabend and daughter Joan. In their party is Mrs. Harry Burroughs.

Among the Manhattanites enjoying the Palm Beach sunshine are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Solovei and children; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lang and family; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Weisberger; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rubensohn; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Chase and family; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bentley and children; Mr. and Mrs. Saul Rosenstein (she is the famous dress designer, Nettie Rosenstein); and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Paul and sons.

Here from the City of Brotherly Love are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Pleet and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Radbill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Duane Jacobs are here from Pikesville, Maryland . . . from Jersey City come Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Newman.

MR. AND MRS. JERRY FINKELSTEIN

Guests at Whitehall's famed Sun and Surf Club, pause for the photographer on their way to the Jardin Royale. Mr. Finkelstein was campaign manager for Mayor O'Dwyer of New York City and was in Florida for the Mayor's wedding.

Also sojourning at the Whitehall are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Watkins and family of Merion, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rabb of West Newton, Mass. and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Macklowe from New Rochelle, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Weil of Chicago are here for the entire season. Spending their winter vacation at Whitehall are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rosner and Mrs. Lawrence Marx, Sr. of Gotham. Seasonal guests from Long Island are Mr. and Mrs. A. Wineburgh.

Vacationing at the Sun and Surf are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baker of New York City and from Ridgfield, Mass., comes another seasonal visitor, Mr. Edwin Masback.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, AS AMENDED BY THE ACTS OF MARCH 3, 1933, AND JULY 2, 1946, OF PALM BEACH LIFE, PUBLISHED SIX ISSUES EACH SEASON, TWO IN JAN., FEB., AND MAR. AT PALM BEACH, FLORIDA FOR OCTOBER 1, 1949

State of Florida.

County of Palm Beach, ss

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Ruby Edna Pierce, who having duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that she is the Editor and Manager of the Palm Beach Life, and that the following is, to the best of her knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily, weekly, semiweekly or triweekly newspaper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1933, and July 2, 1946 (section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations), printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher, Palm Beach News and Life, Inc., Palm Beach, Fla. Editor and Manager, Ruby Edna Pierce, Palm Beach, Fla. General Manager, George W. Archer, West Palm Beach, Fla.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding one percent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.) Palm Beach News and Life, Inc., Palm Beach, Fla. John H. Perry, President, Palm Beach Fla. John H. Perry, Jr., Vice President, Palm Beach, Fla. Farwell W. Perry, Vice President, Palm Beach, Fla. E. A. Kettel, Sec. Treas., West Palm Beach, Fla.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) None.

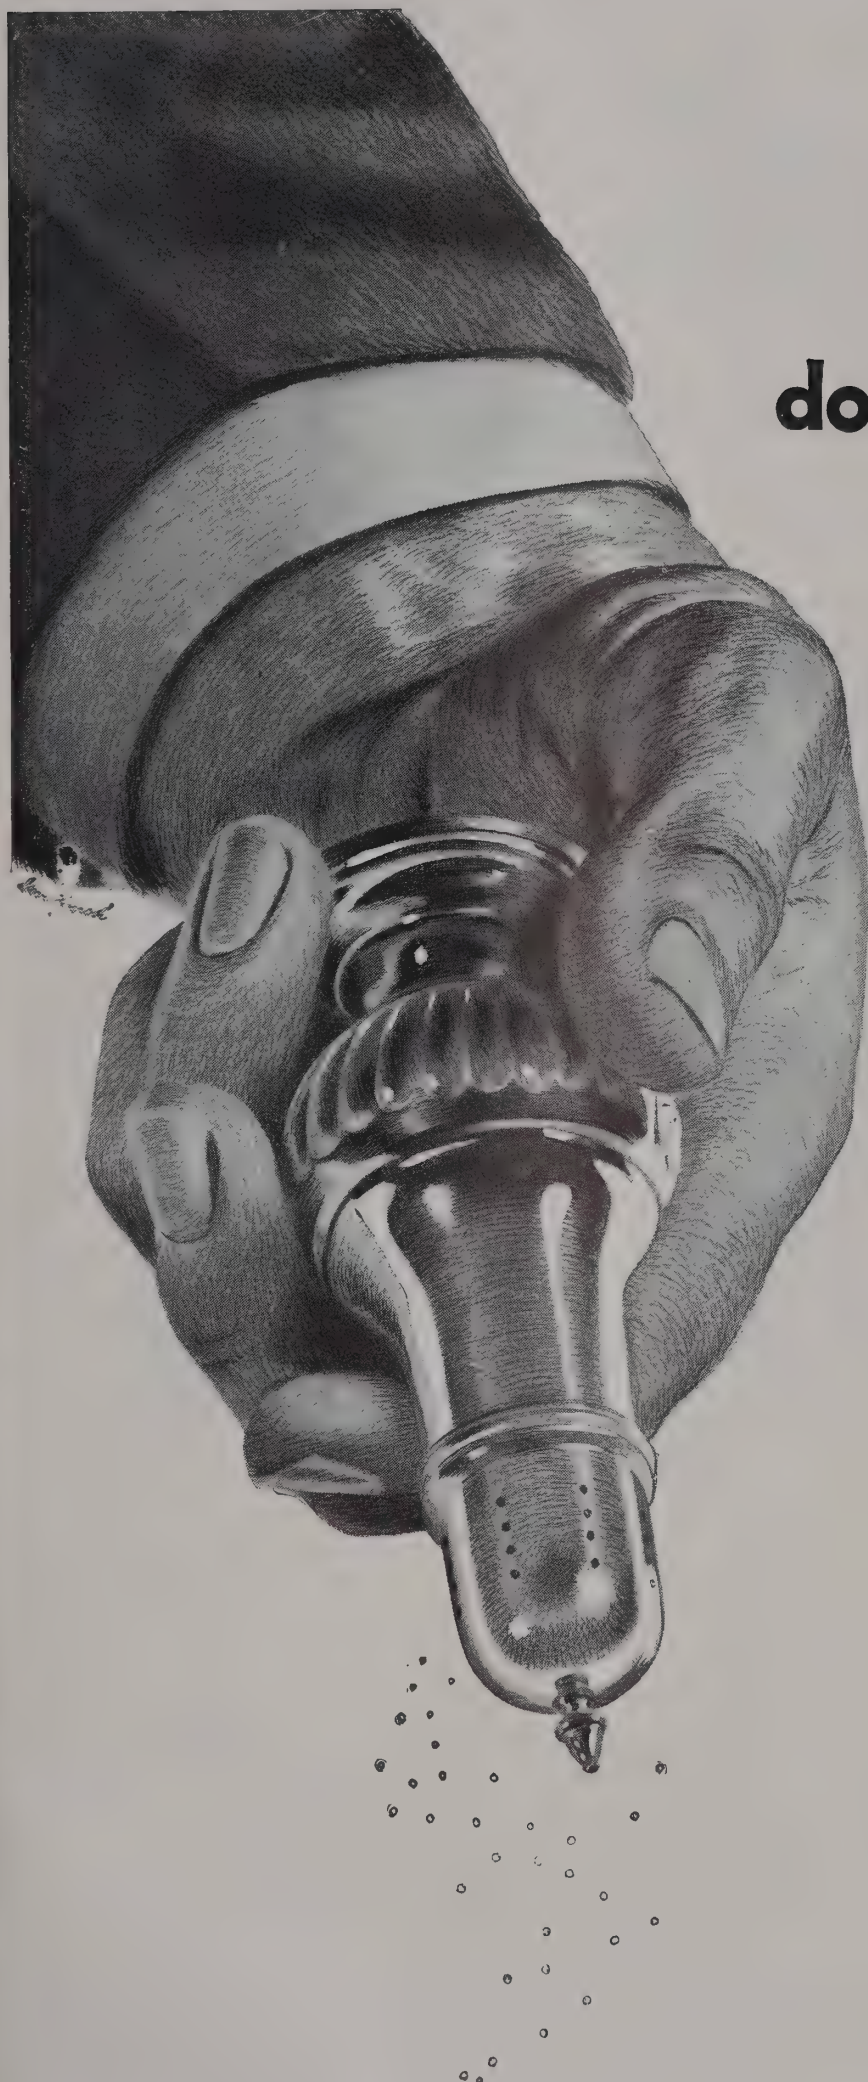

RUBY EDNA PIERCE,

Editor and Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 30th day of September, 1949.

SARAH E. KIRK,

My commission expires August 11, 1950.

Better start doing this to part of your money

YOU KNOW how money is!

Today it's in your hand, and the next day it isn't!

A lot of people, however, have found an excellent way to make certain they will have money when they need it most.

They salt away part of their pay each week in U. S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where they work.

They know that saving this way assures them of the money for a down payment on a new home . . . a new car . . . or retirement when the time comes.

Furthermore, in ten years they get back $4 for every $3 invested in U. S. Savings Bonds.

Why don't YOU start saving money regularly and automatically where you work, or at your bank through the Bond-A-Month Plan?

Automatic saving is sure saving — U.S. Savings Bonds

Better start doing this to part of your money

YOU KNOW how money is!

Today it's in your hand, and the next day it isn't!

A lot of people, however, have found an excellent way to make certain they will have money when they need it most.

They salt away part of their pay each week in U. S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where they work.

They know that saving this way assures them of the money for a down payment on a new home . . . a new car . . . or retirement when the time comes.

Furthermore, in ten years they get back $4 for every $3 invested in U. S. Savings Bonds.

Why don't YOU start saving money regularly and automatically where you work, or at your bank through the Bond-A-Month Plan?

Automatic saving is sure saving — U.S. Savings Bonds

NOW... enjoy Nassau

at prices lower than ever...

stay at the Fort Montagu
BEACH HOTEL

NASSAU in the Bahamas

For the first time in its lustrous career, the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel can offer you the finest in resort living AT POPULAR PRICES. The reason, naturally enough, is devaluation. When the magic wand was waved over the monetary system of the British Empire, we were able to reduce our room rates 15%.

And that means that you can take advantage of this fiscal miracle now, when the smart winter season is in full swing. A holiday on the beautiful 50-acre estate of the Fort Montagu is luxury-living at its best. There's a golden beach stretching from your front door to the sea... the gala Jungle Club, social center of Nassau society... tennis... golf... deep sea fishing... and an atmosphere of friendly colonial charm.

Don't forget that devaluation means lower shopping prices, too. In the city of Nassau, fine cashmeres, linens, china and other British and native goods will be a delight to your pocket-book.

It's easy to get to. Only 60 minutes from Miami by air, Nassau is served by daily flights on British Airways and P.A.A.

The Anhinga, Versatile Bird, Can Look Like A Stick, Turkey, Snake

THE ANHINGA IS A stick-in-the-mud! This three-foot water turkey, snake bird or darter, whose real name is Anhinga anhinga, lives along the sluggish bayous and rivers of the Gulf Coast.

It swims rapidly under water with the aid of its curved webbed feet. The long sinuous neck is drawn in a multiple kink . . . when approaching a fish, the kinks straighten out with the force of a released bowstring and the 'darter's' long sharp beak is driven straight through the surprised victim.

This bird is easily seen when it wants to be seen . . . the plumage is a glossy black with green highlights and a streak of white on wings, neck and tail. The firm elastic feathers look somewhat like fish scales; (the immature anhinga is blackish-brown.

When sitting in the top of a tall cypress tree, where it goes fishing, the anhinga is really a beautiful picture. But when swimming in the water where enemies or perchance a good meal may be "just around the corner," it can do the disappearing act in no time flat . . . sinking in a flash, feet first.

It can remain under water for quite some time and when it eventually reappears, it does so with neck pointed straight upward . . . looking exactly like a stick or a dead limb, sticking out of the muddy water . . . a veritable "stick-in-the mud." At such times, anhinga is an enigma even to the ornithologist!

Very often the anhinga swims along the surface of the water, with only its sinuous neck and head visible . . . at such times it has the appearance of a water snake, as it undulates in its swimming. In the river bogs and fresh water lakes near the Gulf Coast, these birds will perch silently for hours, singly or in pairs. They are excellent flyers and when taken by surprise in their roosts, they are apt to take to the air in preference to diving.

The water turkey, snakebird, darter, anhinga (choose your favorite name) build their nests close to the water's edge . . . the two to four eggs are pale blue with chalky white covering. Sometimes they breed in groups with ibises and herons!

Florida, the Gulf Coast, Georgia and South Carolina are the usual habitats of the anhinga in the United States. It has been unjustly called a competitor of fishermen . . . in reality it operates in places little used for commercial fishing and subsists mostly on minnows, mullets, sunfishes; plus aquatic insects.

Old Sea Chests

SEA CHESTS, TREASURE CHESTS
What mysterious and romantic thoughts conjure up, at the mention of these relics of the old whaling days! "Works of art" some of them, representing an era and a breed of man, long since gone and an art that would be lost to posterity, except for the interest of some of the more sentimental modern yachtsmen!

The use of the inevitable sea chest by sailors, came to an end with the passing of what was known as the "era of sail." From the beginning of time perhaps, men have roamed the seven seas, for various and diverse reasons, with their worldly goods stowed in picturesque and oftentimes, very beautiful chests . . . which, in the ancient days, became a trademark as it were, of their vocation.

The old sea chest was the sailor's trunk . . . his secret hiding place for treasures, his wardrobe, hope chest . . . his only bit of privacy, where such a thing was virtually non-existent. They varied greatly in size and decorative theme . . . from those which were almost as small as ditty boxes, to those which were ultra-large and very impractical-looking. The average length however, was around thirty-six inches; light enough for ease in handling and small enough to place in a crowded forecandle.

Some of these mysterious chests were made with slanted fronts and backs . . . a few had short legs and the majority, a framing piece around the bottom to keep them clear of the deck. Corners were always dovetailed, with the sides, bottom and top made of a single plank (about three quarters of an inch thick). The wood chosen by American sailors for their sea chests, was usually white pine . . . but some of the old versions found from time to time in attics, barns, storage places and such, were fashioned of sandalwood, mahogany, teakwood, cedar and rare foreign woods.

Practically all chests were painted on the outside . . . in neutral colors. With nautical decorations, gracing the inside of the lid. It was the becketts (handles to you), which were the piece de resistance in the decorative scheme here! These were complicated and interesting arrangements of metal, canvas, twisted rope, etc.

MRS. BRITTON B. WOOD

A portrait by J. Wesley Jacobs. Mrs. Wood, the former Miss Betty Mosher has arrived from her home in Cincinnati, Ohio with Mr. Wood to spend the winter at "Sea Song," their Artemis Rd. residence at Jupiter Island, Hobe Sound. Golf enthusiasts, the Woods spend much time at the beautiful Seminole Golf Club where they are members.

Cottage Colony

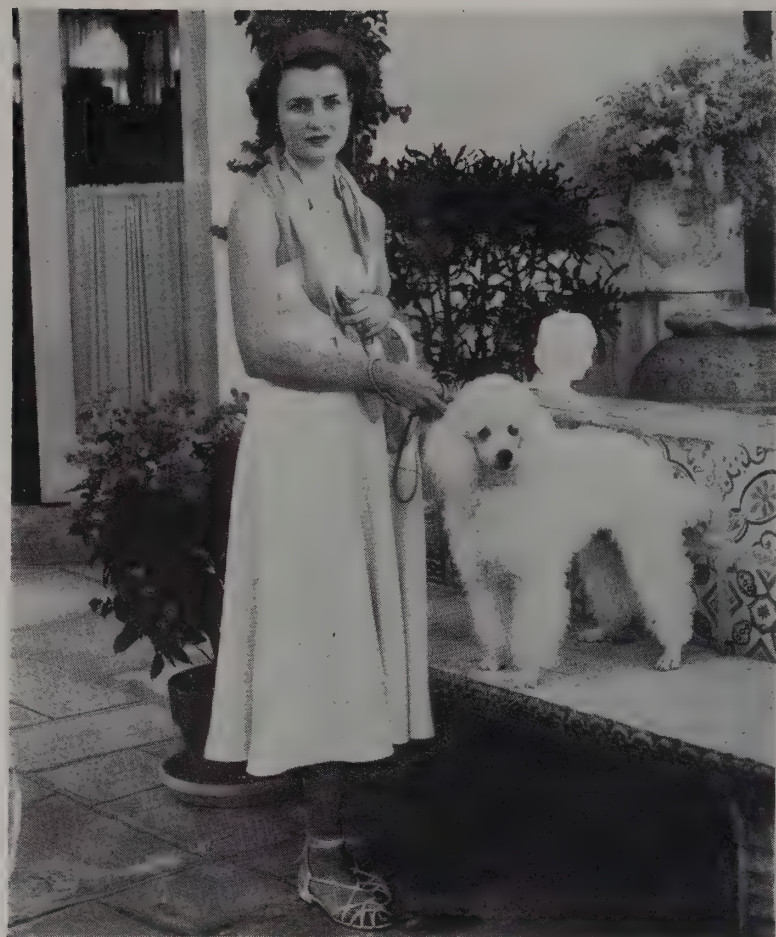

Society Life

WHEN THE TEMPO INCREASES and time is at a minimum—a sure sign of the approaching seasonal height. Late January finds more and more winter visitors flowing into Palm Beach with one intention foremost in their minds—to enjoy and relax in the country's most luxurious setting.

Cocktail parties, canasta groups and small informal dinners are highlights of the early season here. Days are filled with golfing dates, fishing excursions and tennis and swimming meets. The social aspect hasn't changed at all—informality is the trend, whether it be for luncheon, cocktails or dinner.

Countess Dorelis has entertained at several small dinners at her home on Adam Road. Mr. Charles A. Munn's "Amado" was the setting for a recent dinner. Included in Mr. Munn's houseparty was Mme. Michelin who arrived here from Nassau.

Opened for the first time in several years is "Concha Marina," the seaside villa of Mrs. Dodge Sloane. Mrs. Sloane, who has been spending the winters at her house at Aiken, is here for the season. In recent winters she was the guest for a short time of her sister, Mrs. Wesson Seyburn at "Casa Giravento." Mrs. Seyburn was among the late January arrivals, coming from her place at Grosse Pointe.

The Stephen Sanfords are dividing their time between "Los Incas," the ocean front estate, and "Rattlesnake Ranch," their place at Kenansville, Fla. Mr. Sanford's Hurricane Polo team captured the West Coast Open last spring, defeating the Argentines, and the Monte Waterbury Open at Meadowbrook in the fall, when the South American team was also defeated. The Hurricanes will compete this season at Gulf Stream.

Mrs. Pamela Churchill, former daughter-in-law of Winston Churchill, was the guest for several days of Mr. Milton W. Holden at his home on Tangier Avenue.

Mrs. A. Felix duPont of New York is at "Villa Tranquillo" for the winter. She was accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Shettle of Pocomoke, Md. and Mrs. Sidney Scott of Wilmington, Del. In mid January Mrs. duPont was joined by Mrs. Glendinning Frazer of the Philadelphia contingent who is her guest for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore arrived early this month from Convent, N. J. and are "Collado Hueco." Other colonists who have recently joined the winter colony for the season are Mr. and Mrs. R. Laurence Parish of Brewster, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nesbitt 2d of Dallas, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs.

Joseph L. Werner of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett Jr. were hosts at a dinner at their home on Jungle Road in observance of their fifth wedding anniversary. Mrs. James H. Kennedy entertained twelve for dinner followed by cards at "Kenlewami."

Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Boettcher have been giving a series of dinners at their home on Via Del Lago. Others entertaining include Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, Mr. and Mrs. Josef F. A. Comstedt, and Mr. Herbert Pulitzer.

In celebration of his birthday anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry Jr. entertained a group at a cocktail buffet at their home on Esplanade Way. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry Sr., Mr. and Mrs. James A. de Peyster, Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Barbey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Back Nine Of Everglades Club Revamped

ALTHOUGH THE SEASON STILL is young, several hundred members and guests have taken advantage of the beautiful green expanse of the Everglades Club Golf Course. Tombstone competitions are held every Friday and putting tournaments every Wednesday afternoon, and both are very popular.

Major event on the golf calendar is the annual Invitation Mixed Foursomes Tournament, which gets underway on February 13 with a gala jamboree dinner at 7:30 p.m. An 18-hole round to qualify three sixteens for match play will precede the dinner, and match play will begin on the 14th and continue daily until the finals on February 17.

Many of the nation's leading amateurs will play in this tournament, and last year Jean Hopkins won with Al Bes-selink, University of Miami golfer.

Another popular event is the novel Piece of String tournament on March 4. In this tournament, each team, consisting of a lady and gentleman, is given a piece of string, the length determined by their handicaps, and a pair of scissors. The string is used to save strokes, a piece being snipped off to equal the distance the ball is lifted in improving lies or in holing short putts.

Mrs. John R. McLean and Count de Bendor won this tournament last year, with the Dutchess of Marlborough and Mr. John Sims Kelly placing second and Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Sanford third.

Then there are the club championships, both men's and women's starting March 21 and lasting four days.

The annual Community Chest Fund benefit exhibition match, played by four outstanding golfers, will this year present Claude Harmon, Seminole Club pro; Bob Sweeney, former British Amateur champion; Tommy Armour, Boca Raton Club professional, and Bobby Cruickshank, pro at the Gulfstream Club. This exhibition is scheduled for Feb. 5.

Mr. LeRay W. Berdeau is chairman of the golf committee, which includes Mr. J. E. Hollingsworth, Mr. Elmer Rich, Mr. George S. Ross, Mr. George T. McCarthy, Jr., Mr. A. B. Rittenour and Mr. Harold W. Sweatt.

The women's committee is headed by Mrs. J. E. McAuliffe and includes Mrs. B. S. Cunningham, Miss Mary Kenny, Mrs. J. M. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Robert D. Huntington and Mrs. Hamilton Pell.

Mr. Richard C. Heather is chairman of the putting committee. Others on this committee are Mr. Frank C. Jones, Mrs. Charles Long and Mrs. Henry Pelzer.

The back nine of the Everglades Club course has been completely revamped during the last two years. A new lake, covering about an acre of land, was constructed on the site of the old No. 14, excavations being used as fill for greens. Par is one less than it was last year.

No. 10 fairway has been "lifted" from four and a half feet at the tee, sloping to the green. Behind the green, which has been leveled somewhat, is the lake. The lake runs from the 11th tee to about 110 yards out and slightly to the left of the fairway.

No. 12 is a new hole. The old 12 was 208 yards long and a par three. The new 12 is 335 yards and par four. Here, the lake is to the right of the green. The new No. 13 was the old 15, but it has been increased by about 30 yards to 550. The fairway runs along Lake Worth.

This picturesque view from the eighth tee of the Everglades Club course, with late afternoon shadows cast upon the fairway, show a foursome nearing the green. That body of water in the foreground adds to the beauty, but also catches a lot of golf balls.

What was No. 16 is now the 14th, and the new 15 is where 14 used to be, except for a new green to replace the one now under the lake. The 15th green is almost surrounded by water, but there is plenty of space to get on.

No. 16, which was 13, has a water hazard in front of the tee. Seventeen and 18 are unchanged.

Jack Ross, who began his apprenticeship under his father at Sutton Coldfield, Birmingham, England in 1907, heads the professional staff. He has been here since 1933.

Early season members playing the course included the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Adair, Mr. Frank A. Ahern, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Alger, Mr. Ward Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum, Mr. LeRay Berdeau, Mr. Frank J. Birk, Mr. Clifford V. Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cameron, Mr. James W. Carnahan, Mr. E. P. Charlton, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. G. New Acquisitions
Presented
Norton Art Gallery
by
Ralph H. Norton
Founder

REINSTALLATION OF THE PERMANENT collection at the Norton Gallery and School of Art this season which presents a fine new group of acquisitions, gift of Mr. Ralph H. Norton, founder of the gallery, reveals a bold step in the building of an art center for the Palm Beaches, representing as it does a wide variety of approaches well suited for public display.

The search over a period of seven years for quality rather than historical continuity, reaches a new milestone of success in 1950 with a dramatic increment to the collection of ten outstanding pieces of sculpture. Nine paintings that range from the deeply reverent Flemish Triptych, portraying the Crucifixion, to the delightfully quizzical Joan Miro, "Women and Bird in Front of the Moon," enrich the Norton collection, considered the finest in the Southland.

Accomplishing a marked shift in the character of the sculpture, where the balance of the new group is modern European, most of the paintings are the work of American artists. Important among these are the early majestic figure by Max Weber entitled "Alone;" the charming "Figures on the Quay, Dinard," a superb example of Maurice Prendergast's sensitive use of colorful grays; and Charles Demuth's brilliantly handled still life, "Eggplant, Carrots and Tomatoes;" in which the painter's assurance is emphasized by sharp contrast of paint and untouched white paper.

Splendid examples of other American painters of considerable stature are a watercolor and ink drawing by Reginald Marsh, "The Golden Horseshoe;" the freely handled "Between the Acts," by John Corbino; and "Sun Bathers," by Gertrude Schweitzer.

Also of special importance is that of the masterful "Portrait of Marie Lani," by Chaim Soutine, a painter surely as unique as Miro and one whose contribution to modern painting is considered of great importance.

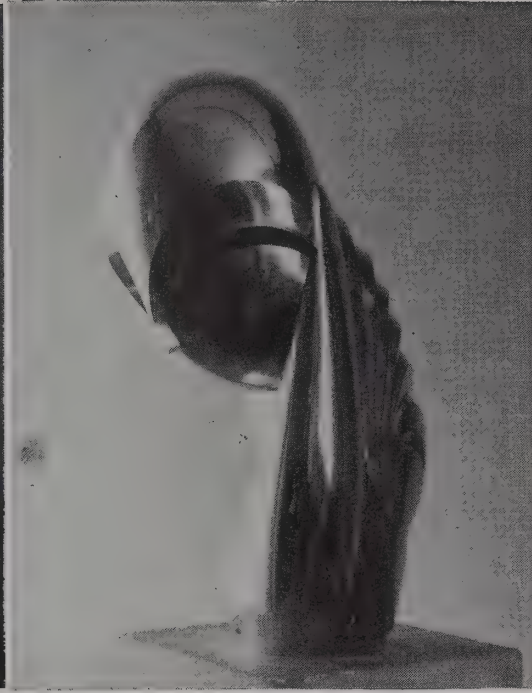

A standard of painting of the highest level is found in

Charles Demuth still life—"Eggplant Carrots and Tomatoes."

A Joan Miro prized acquisition

"Mlle. Pogany," Brancusi

"Oriol Ross," by Jacob Epstein

the Flemish Triptych, circa 1500, which was shown last year in the Old Masters show at the Norton Gallery. The picture now occupies a dominant place in the present reinstallation of the collection, a combination of deep feeling with a masterful handling of formal elements has produced a painting of unquestionable integrity.

Removal of four large pieces of sculpture from the Sculpture Court to the patio, made room for the new acquisitions and a rearrangement of the original group.

Placed in the entrance of the gallery is the magnificent Constantin Brancusi's "Mlle. Pogany," a wonderful, eloquent, simplification of a portrait head which has proved to be one of the landmarks in the history of modern sculpture.

In the collection of less than thirty pieces, the addition of ten more is bound to create striking changes in the overall character of the Norton sculpture collection, and in present listing of the new acquisitions, a sense of the wide creativeness of modern trend is to be derived.

Besides the Brancusi, the group ranges from "Dancer," by Edgar Degas, and Despiu's movingly serene "Head of a Woman," to the provocative statement in three dimensions of the aims of cubism found in Pablo Picasso's "Head of a Woman," and Epstein's boldly romantic portrait of "Oriol Ross."

Beauty that comes with organization of uncluttered forms is to be found in John Hovannes' stone carving "Bather," and in Jose de Creeft's solid and humorous "Two Friends," in lead there is presented an artistic transformation of a usually inartistic material.

John Flannagan's "Squirrel" offers the observer a vision of a unique combination of tenderness and force. Forming a sculptural triptych in collaboration with the Flannagan sculpture is a recently acquired bronze by Ann Weaver called "Haircutting." Delicately contrived, it is in strong contrast to the sculptress' deeply moving "Casualties IV" also in the collection.

"Family Group II," a work by the English sculptor, Henry Moore completes the listing. His significant approach to natural forms and the problems of sculpture is strongly indicated in this monumental but vital bronze.

Though the Norton Gallery and School of Art is an active civic center, it is well known nationally and considered among the best. Stemming from the activity of the Palm Beach Art League, a small group of artists and laymen now celebrating twenty-eight years as a moving factor toward the expansion of an appreciation of art in the Palm Beaches, in addition to the gallery, there is also housed in the splendid modern classic building, a progressive art school and Little Theatre group, each contributing annually to the fast-growing center according to their respective merits.

"Dancer," Edgar Degas

"Figures on the Quay-Dinard," by Maurice Prendergast.

Providing for its students the advantage of a permanent collection ranging in date from the Romanesque period to the present day in almost every medium, courses include supervised study in the galleries. In addition a library which contains a careful selection of books on the fine and applied arts together with a wide group of periodicals and photographs dealing with the history of art is available to students.

Instructors carefully chosen and retained season after season because of the excellent enrollment, cover sufficient branches of the field to attract a wide variety of students.

Again offering courses this year are Eliot O'Hara, N.A., watercolor; Eric Lundgren, oil painting and children's classes; James Mallory Willson, life painting and drawing and portrait painting; and Walter Colebrook, watercolor painting as assistant to Mr. O'Hara.

Each season closes with a "Norton Student Annual," in which pupils are given an opportunity to display their work in the exhibition galleries and patio leading from the classrooms.

Selected exhibitions held annually, open to the public, present the best examples in a widely covered field, to bring to this area work by present and former-day masters intended to aid gallery goers in keeping abreast of the taste trend in art.

Chinese scroll painting by acknowledged masters of calligraphy, fifteenth to the eighteenth centuries, on display since Jan. 6, merged on Jan. 20 with a collection of Archaic Chinese Jade, Masque of Shang Dynasty, 1766-1122 B.C.

Some of the very earliest carved in the history of man, it is an important and rare exhibition, the first of its kind ever to be held in the South.

Arranged by foremost scholars and collectors of the world's oldest jade, there is included examples from the collections of four separate individuals, including Mr. Alfred F. Pillsbury, Minneapolis, Minn. and Palm Beach; Mrs. Edward Sonnenschein, Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. William T. McKim, New York and Palm Beach, and Mrs. Irving Snyder, Coronado, Cal.

The show came to the Norton Gallery through arrangements with C. T. Loo, New York, noted authority on Oriental art.

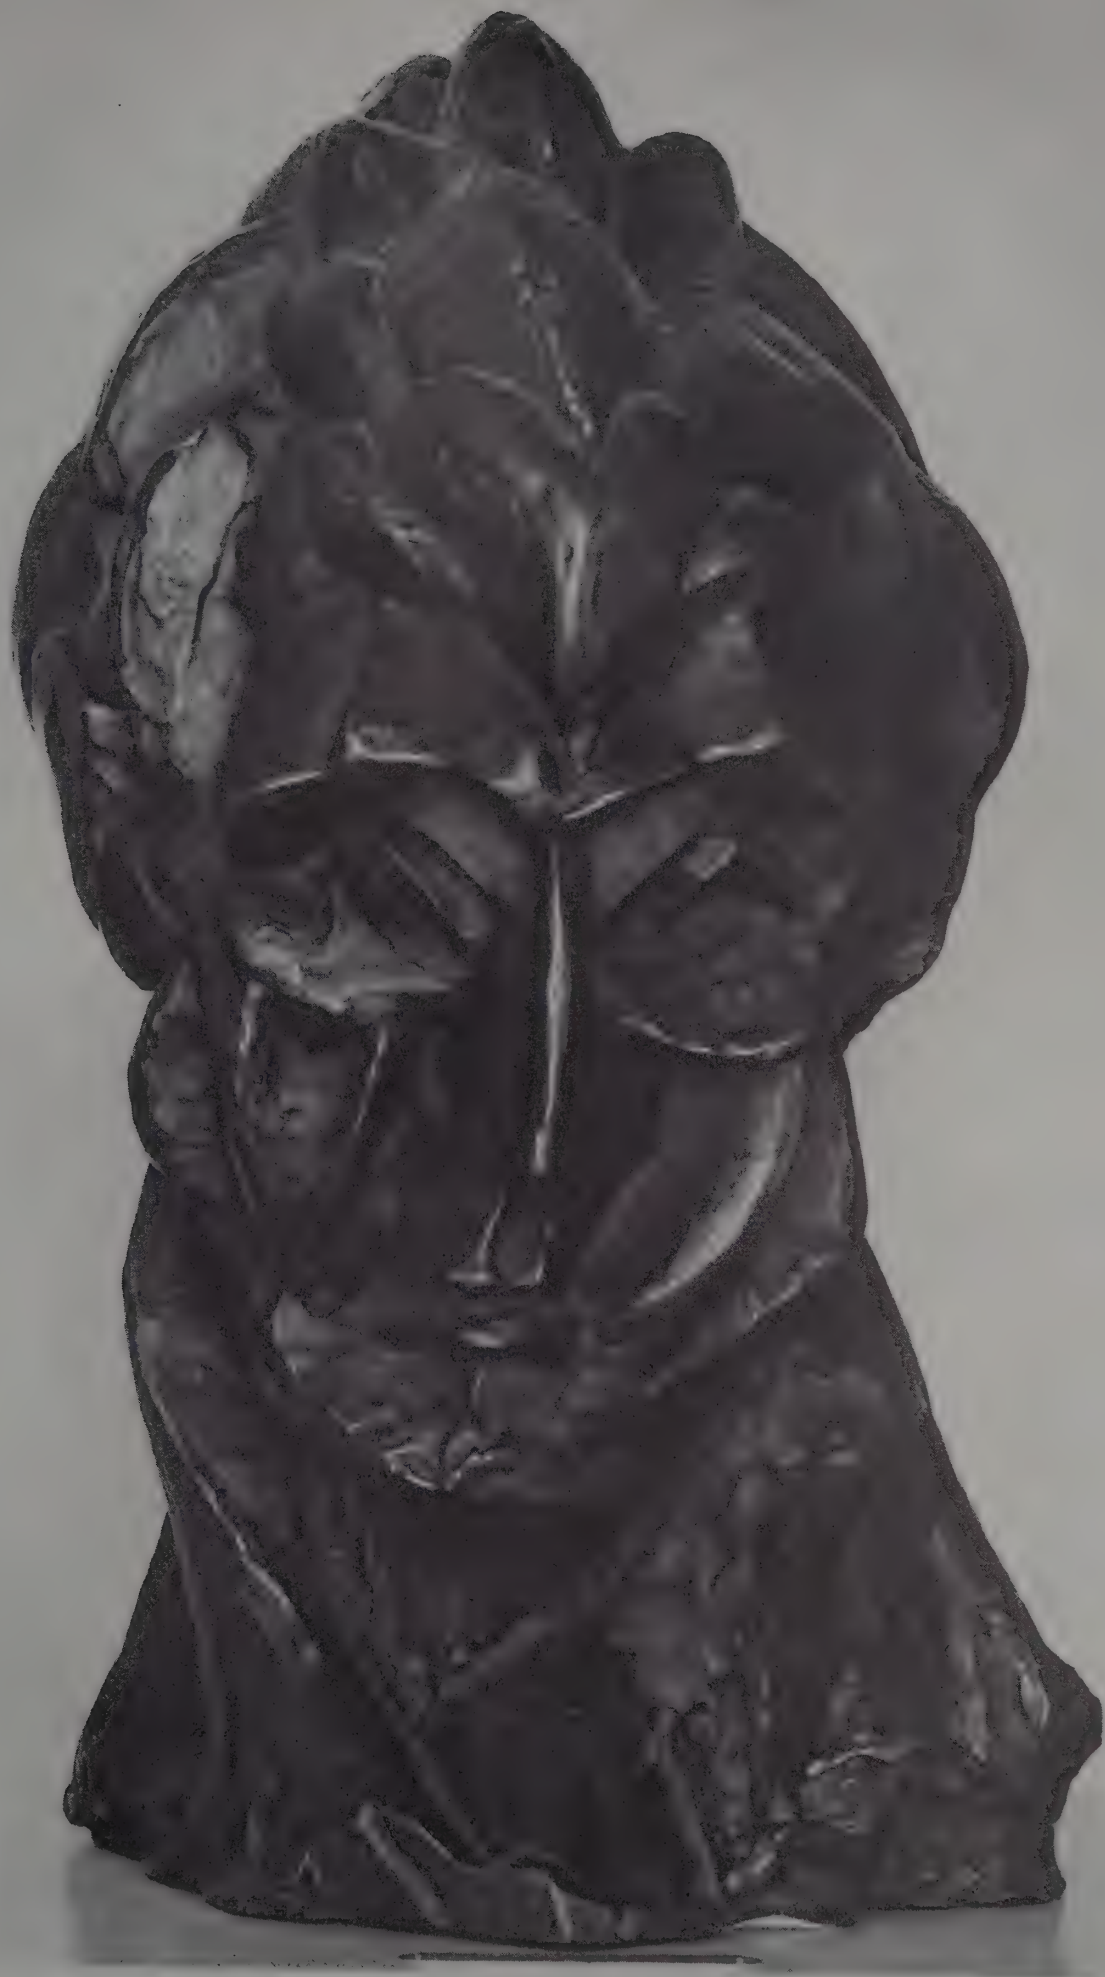

Taking over in mid-1949 as head of the Norton Gallery and School of Art, was Willis F. Woods formerly assistant director at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

A graduate of Brown University, Mr. Woods also attended the School of Fine Arts at the University of Oregon and later, after serving in War II, the American University in Washington, D.C., where he worked as manager of the Watkins Memorial Gallery in conjunction with his studies.

The new director succeeds E. R. Hunter who served as head of the gallery for six years. He left to assume directorship of the High Museum at Atlanta, Ga.

Howard Chilton, Palm Beach, serves as President of the Art League, official custodians of the Norton collection, with other officers as follows:

E. Tinsley Halter, and Mrs. J. F. Kirkton, vice presidents; Mrs. Paul E. Twitty, treasurer; and Miss Helen W. Burgess, secretary.

"Head of a Woman," by Pablo Picasso, (bronze). It is one of the most important additions to the Norton collection of sculpture.

Holiday Destiny

THE EXQUISITELY BEAUTIFUL Palm Beach Ambassador, 3400 So. Ocean Blvd., rises like a Taj Mahal on the golden strands of Lake Worth and the blue Atlantic. Today, it has become the mecca for a discriminating clientele, and a gourmet's delight.

Claude B. Hoagland, managing director of the Ambassador, and perhaps the most outstanding personality in the upper circles of hotel life, has carefully chosen the men and women who form a part of this vast establishment. He is the owner-manager of The Cliff House in the Adirondacks, and formerly held executive posts with the Statler and DeWitt hotels.

In describing how he became associated with the Ambassador, Mr. Hoagland makes the simple statement: "I fell in love with the place . . . it's like living in a dream palace. It's truly a new luxury in Florida living!"

The Ambassador offers Palm Beach life at its very best, perfectly blending the privacy of a fine residence with the comfort and luxury of a superb resort hotel.

The Palm Beach Ambassador is located on the exclusive South Shore of Palm Beach, away from the bustle of city life, yet it is only a few minutes' drive by limousine to all resort activities. Two championship golf courses are conveniently located nearby, and Gulf Stream fishing is included in the daily calendar of sports events. Here a guest may design his leisurely or lively vacation, as he chooses, and enjoy the Ambassador's incomparable facilities without leaving the premises.

It's only a "skip and a jump" into the ocean and to the hotel's private beach. Luncheon for bathers at the beach terrace is a delightful experience. The new beach-brunch idea affords sprites and mermaids the convenience of emerging from the surf and enjoying an ultra-fastidious luncheon within a few feet of their Shangri-La. The Palm Beach Ambassador skillfully combines hotel and family life with the intimacy and refinement of a "home away from home."

The spacious foyer just beyond the main entrance is cheery and tropical in its decoration—sets the tempo for gracious living the Ambassador affords.

This magnificent seven-story structure contains 62 apartments which are divided into one and two-bedroom suites. Each apartment affords a sweeping view of Lake Worth on one side and the blue Atlantic on the other to create an illusion of literally "being at sea."

A huge living room and dining alcove, bath, shower and kitchen, executed with discriminating taste and subtle restraint, are contained in each suite. The Ambassador's four luxurious penthouses include two and three bedrooms with one and two private terrazzo terraces for lounging and informal parties. These lavishly-decorated suites cast a spell of carefree contentment over the visitor, for each is dressed in appointments in harmony with the flora, fauna and terrain of the Southland. All of the units, including the transient rooms, represent a masterpiece of unusual design and elegant living.

Complete maid service is available to all suites and rooms. Room service for dining alfresco or for leisurely entertaining "at home" is always as near as the telephone.

The Ambassador's decor is Chinese moderne at its loveliest. It represents the spearhead of a new approach to the problem of vacation living, and is tremendously significant of the new trend in luxury environment.

The lobby presents a breath-taking picture with its rich appointments in cerise and chartreuse. The whole forms an exquisite background for the huge matching cerise Chinese

Modern and sleek in its striking beauty, the Palm Beach Ambassador is surrounded by the age-old treasures of nature's handiwork—the sea, the sky and stately palms. Right now guests from everywhere find holiday fun out both doors—the ocean affords bathing, Lake Worth sailing, and close by are all the good things in the world to make everyone as “happy as kings.”

rugs which were specially designed and woven for the ensemble.

The several daringly-designed imported Chinese black lacquered tables complete the Oriental motif. Wide marble stairs lead to the foyer balcony and into the patio adjoining the Vogue Room.

The underground garage accommodates 60 cars, and is accessible to the hotel by swift elevator service. Here, too, bathers are whisked to and from their suites to the private beach. Limousine service is provided for Palm Beach shopping, and for airport and railroad terminal convenience.

To describe the French cuisine served in the Vogue Room is an utterly exhilarating experience for the connoisseur of fine foods.

All food preparation is directed by the Chef d'Cuisine, Albin Lesponne, formerly of the Palm Beach Patio Club and other famous restaurateurs. Dining at the Palm Beach Ambassador is a “must” for guests and Palm Beach socialites. Other top-flight Vogue Room artists include the incomparable “Catherine,” who deftly handles the serving of all foods; Felix Biviano from the Bath and Tennis Club, Palm Beach, and “Bolton Square,” Southampton, N. Y. Felix is a well-known figure in the society “cocktail” world, and presides with gusto in the “wee” and cozy bar adjacent to the main dining salon.

An added highlight presents Gene Murray at one of the two pianos, with superb rhythm at his fingertips. During the summer Gene's famed band swings the circuit of outstanding Eastern resorts. Miss Paula Bane, talented young singing star of Broadway's success show, “Call Me Mister,” who is a guest at The Ambassador, is frequently heard during the supper hours.

It's a fabulous experience, dining in the Vogue Room. Excellent cuisine is served in an atmosphere of subdued elegance. Its exquisite appointments, incomparable service and fine foods reflect the utmost in luxury dining, charm and intimacy.

A “flaming touch” is added when “Frank” creates his superb crepes suzettes, brandied black cherry supreme or, with infinite skill, concocts a Jerboam coupe! Par excellence, fittingly describes the beautiful Vogue Room.

Elegant appointments equally luxurious in comfort are the rule rather than exception in each of the Ambassador apartments.

Just a corner, but enough to show the “at home” feeling achieved at the Ambassador in restful sleeping facilities.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora,

Along with the warmest weather Washington has seen for 69 years there has been a killing round of parties. How the little debs stood the pace of more than two parties a day for 11 days I don't know. Two diplomatic debs had their parties on the same day. One tall, slender, pink-cheeked, blond and blue eyed . . . Marjorie Morganstierne (for whom Mrs. Joseph Davies gave a dance last month) . . . and the other, diminutive, dark-haired, black-eyed Sylvia Nabuco with the ivory complexion.

From 5 until 7 big black limousines, long convertibles, and taxies pulled in and out of the drive of the Norwegian Embassy where Ambassador and pretty Mme. Morganstierne entertained for their daughter. The embassy was a bower of flowers, tributes from the great of the United States who have known the Ambassador since he came here as a young attache in 1910. Mrs. Dean Acheson was there in a pale mauve velvet hat, and Mrs. J. Borden "Daisy" Harriman, our former minister to Norway, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, and at least 600 more.

As soon as this was over it was time to leave for old-Washingtonian Rose Saul's dinner at the Sulgrave Club . . . just one of the dozens which preceded the next deb party . . . a white-tie Ball given by Brazilian Ambassador Nabuco for his little niece.

The Brazilian Embassy with its crystal chandeliers and Louis Quinze decor makes a perfect background for a Ball. Miss Nabuco received in line with her famous uncle and her mother and father, the Jose Nabucos, who had flown in that afternoon from Rio. Sylvia wore a simple, but elegant tulle gown by Jeanne LeFaurie of Paris. Miss Morganstierne came along from her own party, as did Deb Frederica Sterling from the dinner that had been given for her by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. It was a handsome party — complete with dignity, beautiful young things, excellent music, and a buffet produced by the Ambassador's Italian chef that defies comparison. . .

Kathryn Early Holmes, another deb, was a picture in her Paris gown of flattering tea-rose net and lace as she received with her mother, Mrs. George Holmes, in the fashionable flower-decked and fire-lit 1925 F. Street Club. Young Kathryn is the niece of popular Steve Early, Deputy Secretary of Defense. Mrs. Holmes who received in a silver lame gown, entertained later at a dinner in honor of General and Mrs. Omar Bradley.

Still receiving rave notices is the brilliant small dance at which Mrs. Dwight F. Davis entertained to welcome the New Year and which was attended by President Truman in resplendent "white tie." The President received with Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Clark M. Clifford, the President's special counsel . . . because in keeping with protocol a chief of state automatically becomes the host when he is entertained.

Mrs. Davis, one of the town's handsomest and most accomplished hostesses, received in rich red velvet in keeping with her request that all the feminine guests come attired in either red or white. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth was regal in Chinese red brocade which had been given to her years ago by the Empress Dowager of China. Mrs. Truxton Beale wore a diamond tiara, Mrs. Millard Tydings created a sensation in her grandmother's dress of red corded silk, Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare wore white satin with a ruby-red ribbon splashed across the bodice like a decoration.

Also getting to be a Washington tradition is the New Year's Eve party hosted by the popular Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch. Mrs. Bretsch is the former Princess Emina Toussoun of Egypt. Their handsome home in Georgetown accommodates perfectly over 100 guests, and is filled with rare objects of art from all over the world.

The Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Erkin, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Jas. Foskett, Admiral and Mrs. John W. Roper, the Charles Hurds who had come down from New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rosengarten from Philadelphia were among the guests. The hostess looked stunning in a Jean Desses midnight blue satin gown she brought back from Paris this summer. The gown was enhanced by the most fabulous jewels these eyes have ever seen . . . suspended from a diamond necklace is a diamond bowknot encircling a pear shaped pink diamond that was at least an inch and a half in length. It is as large as the famous star-of-the-east, one of the McLean jewels, and is matched by smaller copies of the pear shaped stone in earrings. Mrs. Bretsch with her brother, Prince Said, inherited them from her parents and since he is now divorced from his handsome wife, Emina Bretsch brought them back to the United States for safe keeping until her brother's children are old enough to have them. I consider Mrs. Bretsch one of the most glamorous and fascinating figures in America.

Attractive Mrs. Rahel Davies Fitch gave a dinner in honor of her father and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies at her home before the traditional dance given by the former head of the National Resources Board, Mr. Arthur Hill and his wife, Jerry. Other dinners were hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John William Herron, the Thomas E. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carusi.

Jerry Hill wore a Schiaparelli gown in red faille which she bought in Europe. It was perfect against the winter-white background of the decorations at the Sulgrave Club where the "annual Hill dance" is always held.

One of the loveliest ladies there was tall blonde Mrs. Peter Ansberry who looked sylph-like indeed in an all black Piguet gown. Unhappily divorce rumors are prevalent regarding this attractive young couple who are well known in Palm Beach. Oh, then there was the Spanish Ambassador at large and his wife, Mme. Lequerica. Incidentally rumors have it, right from the top too, that soon we will be sending an Ambassador to Spain . . . to go on with the dance . . . the Arthur Gardners were there with their house guests the John Heminways and Edward McIlwaine from

New York, and Capt. Chas. Evans of London, the popular Bill McCrackens, dark-eyed chic Senora Echegaray of the Spanish Embassy, and the James Hedges who flew in from Cuba especially for the party. The party carried on through turkey tetrizzini and much champagne until the early hours of the morning.

A Christmas card from General Burdette Fitch former husband of Rahel Davies Fitch from Heidelberg shows a delightful snow scene in one of the squares of Heidelberg and informs us that the General has acquired a fabulous house there. Heidelberg is one of the most beautiful little cities I have ever seen in my life and while there this summer I gathered the Army considers it one of the most attractive posts in Germany.

While in New York recently I went to a small party given by the Frank Delaneys in their Park Ave. apt in honor of Lady Deterding who had just arrived from Paris. She is a chic, blonde White Russian famous on the continent for her hospitality and collection of rare emeralds. Lady Deterding arrived in Washington in January for a stay with the recently married Mario Luciollis. Mr. Luciollis is one of the counselors of the Italian Embassy.

The same week the Emil Hurjas hung out the party flag for their annual holiday party in their friendly house set in its pretty garden all aglow with lights in the trees. . . the party usually goes on from "six to six" with holiday grog and a fine supper for late comers. Guests admired a recently finished pastel of blonde Mrs. Hurja done by talented artist Alexander Clayton who has done quite a few fashionable ladies around town. Former Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius Krug dropped in as did slim, smart Swedish Mme. Boheman and her tall Ambassador husband, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, much discussed General and Mrs. Harry Vaughn, Olga Roosevelt Graves, and husband Sidney who do some of the finest entertaining in these parts, Senator and Mrs. Kefauver, he recently back from a European junket, and dozens of others.

There's one less handsome bachelor in this town of too few bachelors since Donald Baruch, a few weeks behind his uncle, former Ambassador Herman Baruch, married the feminine blonde Margaret Long Welfer at a quiet ceremony here. Margaret hails from Pittsburgh and is the widow of Frank Welfer of that city. Donald is the son of Lenore and Sailing Baruch of New York and Miami, and the nephew of Bernard Baruch. He is at present with the motion pictures section of the Army Air Forces. He was with Paramount Pictures before the war, and is a major in the reserves. He has directed and produced shows on Broadway.

The couple plans to live here in Washington. Before they left for their wedding trip, they had a reception for a half hundred of their close friends in Mr. Baruch's attractively decorated apartment.

Is it true that Dick Cowell, tall handsome son of Mrs. Thomas Richard Cowell, is off to the west coast where his millionaire-producer chum, Huntington Hartford will help Dick get started in an acting career? Exit one more nice bachelor!

That stunning, sassy "Bootsie" Hearst who is certainly the best looking woman in Washington, and recently put on the list of the "Ten Best Dressed" during the holidays, knocked 'em dead in California with a simple gray suit with two pairs of pants, one for street, and one for evening. They're draped in such a way, I hasten to add that they look like a skirt. With them she wears a mauve and cream colored blouse. "Bootsie" hates mink except in the new mutation shades, and goes in for colored great coats made by her pet designer, Charles James . . . she uses the glamor of furs only at night. I couldn't agree with her more when she says that those short evening dresses that seem to make women's feet look so big are completely passe. Women she passed up in the race of fashion here in Washington were Mme. Henri Bonnet, who dresses almost exclusively with Dior, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, ditto, and the Jean Desses gowned Mme. Vassili Dendramis . . . all of them very smart indeed.

Mrs. James Webb was a holiday hostess herself receiving all afternoon at Prospect House, the Government's official guest house, for a group of the diplomatic corps. Mrs. Webb wore a gown of soft mink-colored satin which blended in well with the gold satin furnishings of the lovely old drawing room. I saw the Peruvian Ambassador and Mme. Berckemeyer, she in an amethyst taffeta dress, the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, in fact exactly half of the entire diplomatic corps was there . . . as the other half will be invited to a similar party at a later date.

And so it goes, dear, this is truly getting to be one of the most interesting cities in the world . . . nor does it look like the social life will slow down as the official part of it is just getting under way now that Congress is back.

All the best until I see you,
GARNETT

FAMOUS AMERICAN DESIGNERS

JO COPELAND

JO COPELAND says, "fashion is a contemporary affair . . . an interpretation of the lives we lead. And, it is all related to business and political conditions, with emphasis on headlines and current events."

The guideposts to successful designing, she contends, are subtlety and clever manipulation of fabrics. And, speaking of fabrics, this outstanding American designer is going in for linens in a big way for her southern collection. "Linens have a rustic air and are formal at the same time. They don't go limp in ocean dampness and therefore, are perfect for Palm Beach wear," she explained.

"Scattered pockets" are interesting whimsies of Mrs. Copeland's designing scheme of things this year. At the side, back and even on the sleeves of some of her chic creations. Raw silk (Italian) in oyster white is the medium for a number of interesting costumes . . . it has a wonderful texture and adapts itself well to casual styling. Such as her one pocket, one strap sunback dress!

White by the way is one of her pet colors and she has done a large percentage of the winter resort things in this color, for both daytime and evening. "White and the creamy tones are flattering to sun-tanned skin tones," she noted.

Starting her career as a commercial artist, strangely enough, she does not sketch her designs . . . creates directly with the fabric. "I formerly sketched ideas first and then did the cutting," Mrs. Copeland recalled. "But, a number of years ago, clothes were much simpler. Today, they are a matter of cut, rather than applied design, and working with the fabrics from the start, I find it is a more satisfactory procedure."

Garnering her ideas from "anything, everything, anywhere," she creates all types of clothes with the exception of active sports things. And, is particularly fond of materials that have a "crisp, stand-alone quality." They are not only easier to work with, she avers, but the designing results are more satisfying than when using fabrics that cling.

Spending a month in Europe last summer, most of the time in Italy, Mrs. Copeland's collections show this influence. "It was most inspiring . . . the Italian fabrics are wonderful." Her use of embroidery, traced in beads sometimes, is also Roman-inspired. This theme is adapted to daytime clothes as well as those for formal evening and dinner.

During this interview at Patullo's, she gave me a preview of the collection she was then creating. Among the interesting models were: chiffon sweater dresses in gay colors, finished with rhinestone buttons; a pearl grey nylon net evening dress made with low décolletage and full skirt, accented with black and white pearl trim; beige taffeta with white lace applique, dotted with rhinestones . . . pleated skirt and fichu collar of white organdy.

A blue linen "duster" evening coat lined with taffeta and companion dress of white taffeta embroidered in turquoise beads, pearls and rhinestones, was especially exciting. "Little dresses" with matching fitted jackets, which gave the illusion of a dress rather than a suit, are also important. These are developed by Mrs. Copeland in small-printed taffeta.

"After five O'clock" dresses in the Copeland manner, are either floor or ankle-length. "I don't like the street-length evening dress for formal occasions or for dancing . . . skirts need to be a certain length, to be graceful and flattering on the dance floor."

In the controversy of slim versus full skirts, she has this to say: "Narrow skirts are smart for winter fabrics, but for summer and for winter resort materials (which are the same), they should be full."

Mrs. Copeland, who is now an annual winter visitor in Palm Beach, first came to the resort in 1922 . . . she hadn't been here since that time until 1940. "It is an entirely different place now than when I first saw it in the 1920's," she volunteered. "It has lost the simplicity and way of life that distinguished it then, but is now much more beautiful, comfortable and interesting. In New York, I live right in the middle of the hustle and bustle of the city, because I am a very urban person and want to know about everything that is going on. That is why the contrast of a Palm Beach winter vacation is so relaxing . . . I wouldn't miss it for anything."

Linen is the medium for this glamorous dress designed by Jo Copeland of Patullo, for southern wear. The classic-inspired trim is traced in chalk white beads. A grand companion for cocktails, informal dining and dancing.

Feminine and chic, this black net over taffeta evening dress by "Mildred Gowns" from the southern collection of J. J. Jonas. Frou frou ruffles accent the strapless bodice and the back-dipping skirt points up the effective molded torso line. White accessories are a smart contrast for the all-black theme.

Multi-Colored Sapphires: Are the inspiration for this dazzling jewel ensemble by Milton Fuller. A veritable rainbow of gems ranging from subtle pinks to warm reds, golden yellows, greens and a full series of blues, set in platinum, to encircle your throat! Matching earrings, bracelet, brooch and ring, complete the colorful ensemble.

Scouting The Shops

TAKE THE "MAIN CHANCE": This comprises a day at the Elizabeth Arden Palm Beach salon, with the same treatments as those given at the famous Arden "Main Chance" farms in Arizona and Maine. You get "the works" and emerge a new person. Includes Ardena or Foam baths, facial massage, coiffure styling, pedicure, manicure and glamorous make-up.

OLD JUGS: For the collector . . Plummer's have an intriguing array of antique jugs including the colorful old lustre versions and the whimsical Toby jugs. If you are a collector of old Bristol in the pale amber shade, now is your chance to add to your selection.

JEWELLED POWDER CASE: For gifting or keeping, noted a gorgeous 14 carat gold engine turned poudre case, studded with rubies and diamonds; at Greenleaf and Crosby's. Very new and very modern in design, is the smart bracelet, fashioned of round and baguette diamonds. Wonderful conversation pieces!

'GOODBYE MR. CHIPPENDALE': R. John Gibbons, who wrote an interesting book by that name and who is acclaimed one of the outstanding designers of modern furniture, is represented at Worrell's in a number of smart chair and sofa ensembles. Featuring simplicity of design, the pieces are a wonderful background for the gay chintz and brocade upholsteryings.

SEAFOAM MARQUISSETTE: Is the elusive medium for an exquisite dancing gown at J. J. Jonas, designed by Kiviette . . . basque bodice and bouffant skirt. Large lace flower appliques, outlined with narrow silver braid and sprinkled with iridescent sequins, furnish the glittering trim. For luncheon or cocktails, a shirtmaker dress of taffeta by Molly Parnis, features "stand away" pockets.

"LEND AN EAR": To the dazzling diamond earrings by Cartier . . . in modern and period-influence creations. Some hug the ear lobes very closely, others are of the "chandelier" pendant type, considered very chic with the popular short coiffure.

IT'S IRISH: The smart linen, which is the medium for a series of casual dresses in the Palm Beach manner at Anthony's. White, pastels, dark and bright colors . . . beautiful texture and crease-resistant, and adapts itself well to a variety of stylings.

"LITTLE BOY BOB": And other versions of the popular short hair-do are being featured this season by Jean de Chant of New York and Palm Beach. It must be kept feminine however, he advises. And adds, "the shorter the hair, the softer the styling, or the wanted effect is lost."

SCRAMBLED MONOGRAMS: A new idea in individualizing sweaters and tremendously popular with the younger crowd. The initials, large or small, are scattered all over the garment and you choose your own color scheme, according to Evelyn Curtis, whose knit shop in the Via Parigi, is a popular rendezvous for knitters.

THE SHORT EVENING DRESS: Which has taken the fashion world by storm is being exploited at the Mme. Mogabgab salon in numerous exclusive versions. Such as the ivory lace of simple styling, depending upon the material for chic effect. Outstanding style notes, are slit pockets in the skirt which has an uneven hemline, and a mere suggestion of sleeves. A printed silk cocktail suit in navy and rose, has the small design traced with sequins. A waist-length companion jacket is lined with the dress print.

DAZZLING THROAT-LINES: Are the trend . . . jeweled necklaces to complement the season's low necklines. Koslow's diamond interpretations are the smart answer to exclusive accent; baguette, emerald-cut and pear-shaped diamonds in very modern patterns. And, for the ensemble-minded, harmonizing bracelets and other pieces, in the same theme.

DEEPER COLORS: If you want to be "in the swim," you'll go down to the sea in deeper colors this season. McDonald's are showing such smart ideas as royal blue, dark green and deep red in their beachwear collection and sun dresses. Terry cloth beach coats also echo this new style trend. A grand foil for the sun and sun-tanned skins!

FOR WHAT AILS YOU: The Everglades Pharmacy has one of the most up-to-date prescription departments in the resort. And, a staff of registered pharmacists are always on hand to give you prompt and efficient service. Prompt deliveries and telephone orders are other things for which this establishment is noted.

MIX OR MATCHMATES: Ladd's in The Breakers Casino, have an interesting collection of Moygashell (chanel) linens . . . sleeveless blouses, skirts, short, British walking shorts and jackets. The colors are light blue, navy and cocoa and may be matched or mixed to suit your preference in the matter. Perfect companions for golf and other sports.

THEY HAVE A PEDIGREE: The sports clothes at Frances Brewster . . . exploiting chic stylings and made of distinctive materials. The theme throughout their collections is smart simplicity . . . simple casual clothes especially adapted to the resort way of life.

RINGS ON HER FINGERS: And, L. Barton Brookov, Inc., have some of the most alluring interpretations that you can imagine. Single stones of great brilliance and "theme" rings of gem combinations in fascinating patterns. With accent on diamonds on every instance!

BAUBLES FOR BUBBLES: As light and airy as the bubbling refreshment they will hold, are the silver, gold or clear Czechoslovakia cocktail glasses at Cabbages and Kings. "Jewel" accessories for your important entertaining. This shop also has an incomparable selection of glasses of all types and kinds . . . garnered from all over the world.

FROM SILKS TO SUEDES: As the name of the shop implies, "Sport and Travel" have clothes appropriate for both vacationing in the resort and traveling. Their pure silk prints and shantung in casual styling and the woolen ensembles trimmed with suede answer both purposes. And, speaking of suede, this shop does a terrific job in designing coats, suits and toppers of this fascinating leather . . . in a rainbow color range, and designed by Zita Plautt.

EXOTIC JEWELS: Or those of more conservative design . . . are offered by Harry Winston, Inc., New York, in all of the newest interpretations to accent your daytime and evening Palm Beach wardrobes. They are also owners of some of the outstanding diamonds (and other gems) of the world.

Oriental Influence: For a smart dress of bamboo-colored linen, featuring Mandarin neckline, bowknot ties and silver embroidered motifs, dramatizing the sleeves and bodice. An ideal companion for Palm Beach casual wear and designed by Bonnie Cashin of Adler and Adler. From the spectator sports collection of Finchley.

"Blue Eyes" butcher linen, is the medium for this classic sunback dress with companion bolero. The full, flaring skirt and lace bodice trim, are distinctive style notes. A grand "go everywhere" dress from the Palm Beach collection of Frances Brewster. Also available in navy blue and white.

Navy blue marquisette and lace merge to fashion a glamorous evening gown in the new and popular above-the-ankle length. Aside from the beauty of the materials, the styling detail is also distinctive; lace buttons point up the basque bodice. This is from the salon of Mme. Najla Mogabgab, in their one-of-a-kind evening collection.

Modernism In Palm Beach

TRADITIONAL CHARM in a tropical setting keynotes the new Lake Drive Apartments as modernism in community dwellings continues in Palm Beach.

Rising three stories high at Australian Avenue and the Lake Drive, the brand-fire new 24-unit apartment house is one of the architectural prides of the Island. It's designed for luxurious and convenient living from smart appointments in each of its three, four and five-room apartments to the more utilitarian facilities providing off-street parking of all tenants' cars.

A tour through the glistening white structure with its overhanging balconies brings to mind the lines of Robert Louis Stevenson—"the world is so full of a number of things, I'm sure we should all be as happy as Kings."

Harmony and continuity in the decorative scheme gives evidence of much thought and planning. Elegant simplicity has been achieved in spacious rooms of each unit. Draperies of hand-blocked linen frame the wide windows, and rugs of smooth and smart leaf design broadloom cover the floor. Gentle blonde woods and the rich beauty of solid mahogany create individual homes of distinction.

There are no jarring notes, and none of the garish colors that frequently invade attempts at the ultra modern. It's a superb combination that's been initiated in the "new-as-now" picture at the Lake Drive Apartments. Even the pictures adorning the soft-colored walls are the kind you don't pull down and hide away. Mauves, corals, greens and pleasant browns predominate as you pass from one apartment to another, with chocolate and turquoise popping up here and there in lamps, hangings, sofas and chairs.

And speaking of chairs, the powers that bestowed the Lake Drive Apartments on Palm Beach, have furnished each unit with a "television" chair. Commodious and big-backed they are best compared to the turn-about types found in such observation cars of sumptuous rail conveyance as the Florida Special and Super Chief.

"Just one of our features in anticipation of video," said the Manager John A. Hughes, explaining "television conduits were installed with the completion of the apartment house."

In every way architecture meets the scenery. Atop the building, overlooking the palm tops, Lake Worth to the west, and the Atlantic's horizon eastward, a landscaped sun deck affords relaxation for residents, and a means of outdoor entertaining. Equipped with a top-side kitchen, bar facilities and powder rooms, the setting is again a reminder that nothing has been forgotten at the Lake Drive Apartments to make "a man's home his castle."

And with reference to kitchens, those at the Lake Drive manse take a back seat only so far as floor plans are concerned. Gleaming anew with upper-crust silver and nappery, pottery, china, chrome and glass, each is large enough to allow a fancy hitch-kick, and sufficiently equipped to turn out a seven-course feast.

A living room for comfort and in good taste. Furnishing and floor covering harmonize in smart colors while each table, chair and sofa invites relaxation while at the same time presenting an appearance of chic in interiors that it would be difficult to top.

Practical, functional, and withal, beautiful, Palm Beach's newest apartment dwelling has everything. Far fetched from the first wooden structures on the Island, for those who enjoy knowing how firm a foundation they live upon, the Lake Drive Apartments, fire-proof and sound-proof, rise in 24 separate units under one roof from a piling of bedrock. Service stairways are a big city feature, and self-service elevators eliminate watching and waiting.

All in all, the Lake Drive Apartments measure up to the ultimate in mid-twentieth century living accommodations. East, West, North, South, with North and South east-west exposures, the splendid new building stands free and independent of adjoining property, allowing ample influx of Florida sunshine and salt air.

Erected by the New York builders, Lewis Cowan, architectural design was begun in May of 1948 after a ship-to-shore telephone conversation with the Palm Beach architect, Howard Chilton.

Howard Chilton, Palm Beach architect designed the building, making the first hurried sketches aboard his yacht while cruising in the Florida Keys, May 1948. Following a ship-to-shore phone conversation with the builder, Lewis Cowan of New York, Mr. Chilton went to work.

"I wanted the Lake Drive Apartments to have a little bit of everything I was enjoying when the deal was closed," he commented recently when queried concerning his choice of design.

Thus the modern tropical and marine influence, the port-holes decorating the shiny-armour balconies, and the general scheme of decor bearing resemblance to a floating palace . . . in short, a Palm Beach palace, practical, pretty, and promising to become one of the resorts' outstanding community dwellings.

In residence at the Lake Drive Apartments just now are the following:

Palm Beach Biltmore

THE NEW Palm Beach Biltmore, since the glamorous three-day house warming party at the formal opening early in December after its more than a million dollar glorified face-lifting interlude, has attained international acclaim. Mr. Daniel E. Taylor, who heads the West India Fruit and Steamship Company, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Waldorf Astoria, New York, is president of the Palm Beach Biltmore Hotel. Mr. James J. Farrell, a nationally known managerial figure in resort hotel-dom, is general manager.

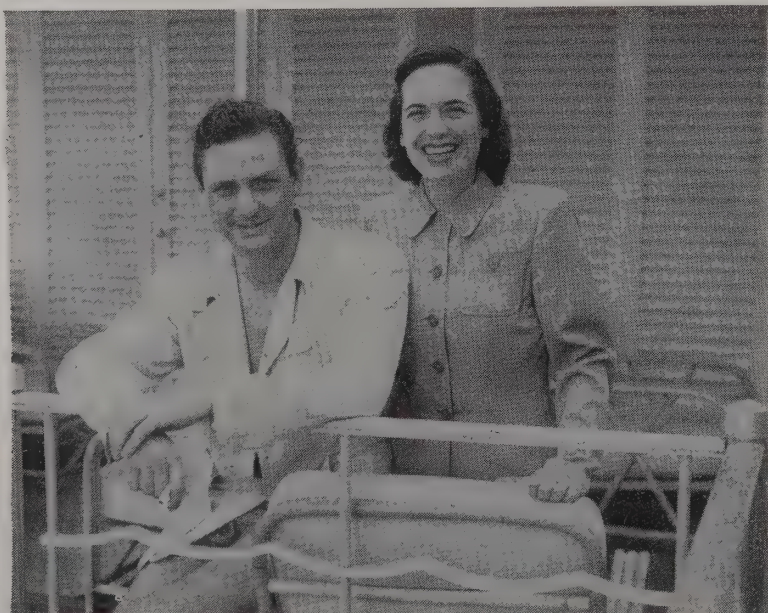

Many delightful and spectacular events have been staged at the Palm Beach Biltmore since the hospitable doors of this luxury hotel swung open for the reception of guests. Among these affairs was the Beaux Arts Ball, so magnificently presented at the Biltmore on Friday, 13th. The artistic decoration of the Grande Ballroom by club members, transforming it into an alluring setting in a Sultan's Palace, accented the illusion of the Arabian Nights, the theme of the Ball. Many gorgeous and fantastic costumes, reflecting the Arabian, Persian and Chinese influences based on the Arabian Nights story, were worn by the guests. A colorful ballet, beautifully done by members of the younger set of the resort colony, was danced to the rhythm of Oriental music. Sambas, tangos, rumbas, fox trots and the waltz were enjoyed by the several hundred socialites in this gay assemblage before and after the elaborate midnight buffet. Many prizes were awarded after the Grand March, which in itself was a fascinatingly bizarre feature of this affair. And so the first annual invitation Beaux Arts Ball has passed into history as one of the outstanding artistic achievements of the season.

Palm Beach Biltmore colonists have many sport and social diversions on the weekly program. In addition to these things, there are frequent impromptu water sports in the Olympic Pool at the hotel, as well as swimming parties at the Biltmore Beach Club directly on the Ocean. There are also shuffleboard and tennis tournaments. Speaking of tennis, Peter Lawford, Hollywood cinema star, attracted a large gallery of admiring spectators when he played a few sets the other day on the Biltmore Courts.

Square dancing, reviving the rhythms of the folk dances of Colonial days, a diversion which has skyrocketed to a top pinnacle of popularity all over this country, and even in the most so-called sophisticated spots, has been introduced to the Palm Beach Biltmore as a weekly Tuesday night feature by Gene Gowing of Folkways Foundation, Peterborough, N. H. Concerts, lectures, movies, card parties and other pastimes are on the agenda. Another highlight is the Thursday night Champagne Hour arranged by Carlton and Juliette, Royalists of the Dance. Two bands, Bill Doherty and his Orchestra and the Walter Feldkamp Orchestra present the musical background for the many and varied affairs staged at the Biltmore.

Visitors from far-flung parts of the Globe have joined the colony at the Palm Beach Biltmore. Mrs. D. L. Hedges, Los Angeles, is wintering here.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM J. REILLY, Attleboro, Mass., are glimpsed in their cabana at the Palm Beach Biltmore. They are colonists in the hotel, having arrived aboard the motor sailor Migrant, with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Carpenter.

View of the Palm Beach Biltmore Tropical Gardens, the new Pool, Sun Decks, Tennis Courts and Biltmore Pier. Spectators are glimpsed during the recent Yale and Penn Varsity Crews Race Classic, with attention at the moment focused on Pool, where an Aquacade was in progress in connection with the Regatta of the Palm Beaches.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Le Moul, Larchmont, who arrived at the Biltmore for the formal opening celebration, and are here for the entire season, were recently joined by their sons, Mr. Adolph, Jr., and Mr. Everett Le Moul. The newcomers take great delight in participating in water sports in the Biltmore Pool.

From across seas have arrived Mr. and Mrs. Axel Orregaard, Copenhagen, Denmark, for a sojourn. They came here from Nassau in the Bahamas, where their daughters, Misses Jette, Lena and Hanne remained with their Governess. Later in the season, the Orregaards plan to have the entire family at the Biltmore.

Mrs. William J. Briggs and daughter, Miss Joan Briggs of South Amboy, N. J., are recent arrivals at the Palm Beach Biltmore. Another charming Jersey family in this hotel colony is Mrs. Denis A. Hughes and daughters, the Misses Jane and Dorothy Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Mikkleson, Milwaukee, apparently commute between Wisconsin and the Palm Beach Biltmore, since they recently arrived at this hotel for their second or third stay this season. On each occasion, their daughter, Miss Jane, who is the 1949 Home Coming Queen of Rollins College, has joined them for long weekends.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. McLaughlin, Bronxville, are at the Palm Beach Biltmore for the season, as are Mr. and Mrs. Emery L. Walker, Milwaukee, and Mr. Frank Hutchins, Highland Park, Ill.

Mrs. Joseph Narcisse Dupuis, Chicago, a Palm Beach

Mr. and Mrs. Gumprecht, Oyster Bay, N. Y., formerly of London, England, are seen aboard their yacht Hadji, flying a British Red ensign and which is tied up to the pier at the Palm Beach Biltmore. colonist for many seasons, is a guest at the Biltmore. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. Joseph Griffin, also of Chicago, have been sojourning here for some time. Mrs. John William Ryan and son, Mr. John William Ryan, Jr., also Chicagoans, are guests for the winter at the Biltmore.

Mr. Charles K. King, Mansfield, Ohio, is wintering at the Biltmore. He is former president of the Ohio Brass Company, and is now chairman of the Board of Directors of that Company.

month at the Plaza in New York, are guests at the Palm Beach Biltmore. Mrs. Olga Andrews, Phoenix, Arizona, is a guest here as are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Dunkak, Baltimore, Mrs. Allan Schoen, Spring Lake, N. J., Mr. Maurice Matlow, London, England, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Murray, Portland, Me., Mr. and Mrs. George Frederick Schrafft, New York, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Dodge, Forest Hills, N. Y.

The yacht fleet at the Palm Beach Biltmore Pier, with comings and goings, is a colorful adjunct to the hotel. Maurine C, berthed here for the season, has owners, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice B. Frank of Evanston, aboard frequently. They are occupying a suite in the Biltmore, pending completion of their new home in this resort.

Motor Sailor Migrant is now tied up awaiting return of owners, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Carpenter, now at their home in Attleboro, Mass., while their cruise guests, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Reilly, also of Attleboro, joined the Biltmore colony.

Yacht Electra, with owners, Mr. and Mrs. Porter B. Chase, Barnstable, Mass., and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. Joseph Chase, Hartford, recently arrived cruise guests, is on a few days' trip in waters off the Florida Keys.

Yacht Wallaby, now that owners, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Barney of Hartford, have returned to the Biltmore after celebrating the holiday season at home, will soon cast off lines, and head for a cruise in tropical waters to the South of this resort.

Several other handsome craft are tied up at the Biltmore Pier, but more about them anon.

New York Letter

Dear Dora:

What is there to say? The trouble is that there's sooo much! Mostly we're all recovering from lots of surprise romantic packages. The Hollywood bachelors seem to diminish as quickly as our New York water supply. And quite as suddenly! Clark Gable's big step with Sylvia Stanley left enough girls heartbroken, not mention the men casting eyes in her direction. Still lots of people insist they "knew it all these years," including Sylvia's ex-son-in-law, Doug Fairbanks Jr. who approves wholeheartedly. Not quite as surprising was pretty Betsy Drake's merging with Cary Grant. Remember the articles Betsy's father used to write for Town and Country in the good old days of editor Harry Bull's literary regime? Harry, by the way is living very quietly in Delray Beach, and working on a novel which is a source of worry to old acquaintances!

Just back from Fort Lauderdale clime is raven-haired Joan Krag Phipps. After her publicized divorce from socially prominent Bill Phipps (who just wouldn't stop playing) last year, Joan took wings to warm sun and cool breezes. Could a young lawyer be the reason for her unseasonal return? First name might be Ewing. . . .

was introduced to young-man-about-town Bob Neely during the summer lull by Bob's equally about-town papa of Shanty Restaurant fame and fortune, and it's been Bev and Bob everywhere ever since. Of the reliable romances, pretty Alice Shea is still smiling (after two years) upon Harry Patterson, son of New York's Budget Commissioner. The Stork Club set is taking odds on the two starting a budget of their own one of these days.

Debonair Bill Dobbs is still dating Alice's vivacious sister Angy. After two and a half years of uninterrupted courtship, their friends are confidently singing "Hitch Old Dobbie to the Shea." Things are supposed to be in three's so let's put something on another likely pair—Missy Travers of the Empire Race Track family and Betty Ammidown's young brother, Bud Ryan, should be making the home stretch any day now.

Among the guests who were flown down for the week-end event were Bernard Gimbel, Gene Tunney, Florida's Governor Fuller Warren, Admiral Halsey's son Bill, jr., and sportsman Michael Lerner. Everybody's favorite, Arthur Godfrey, one of the party's featured attractions, pulled a Houdini, and wasn't seen from the day he arrived with the party. Sixty-four dollar question????

tournament news in Palm Beach this month!

Seasonal Palm Beach beauty, Patricia Kelly, has cancelled her Jamaica honeymoon, as a matter of fact she's cancelled the whole romantic episode with Lee Chandler of the Pittsburgh family. After a series of the torrentous bridal showers and parties in honor of the starry-eyed twosome, Pat upped and informed Gotham cafe society that all was off, with no chance of reconciliation. Pat is now back in circulation and will be heading South any time now.

A romance of Palm Beach origin which has definite overtones of Lohengrin in the background is that of Diane Bennett and Standard Oil heir, Roger Benjamin.

No news is good news, but a lot is bad. Who can be happy about the sale of the New York Sun, or the rebuilding of Shubert Alley? Lots of stories will linger, but it does seem like the beginning of a new era, what with the news, too, that Vivacious Betty Ammidown (ex-wife of Phil Ammidown) made a quick trip back from Europe, and was in town just long enough to give her pals a hurried glimpse. She cocktailed with Bob Sweeney's attractive brother Charles before setting sail on the Queen Mary's return voyage. New Yorkers are busily discounting the fast-flying rumors linking Betty and Charles, and cocking hungry ears for news of a marital merger with a suave un-named Venezualian diplomat now in Europe!

Reminiscing On The Turn of The Century

DRAWING A COMPARISON PICTURE in recent reminiscing during an interview in her attractive penthouse apartment at the Colony Hotel, Mrs. John C. King, a Palm Beacher since the turn of the century when she and the late Mr. King made the last lap of a journey to the resort over "railroad bridge," only connecting link between Palm Beach and the mainland, said, "it seems but a few short years that have brought all the changes." Mrs. King traced back to the time of the Poincianna, the original Breakers, and the jungles where today stand the magnificent homes of present day colonists. The thickest part of the jungle was where Mr. Paris Singer built a home for convalescent World War I officers in 1918, which is now the renowned Everglades Club.

"For instance present-day night life—where once you traveled to Bradley's Beach Club or a friend's home or to a tea dance at the Cocoanut Grove by wheel chair or bicycle and reaching the Royal Poinciana or the Breakers by means of horse-drawn trolley, today we're whisked about in a matter of moments. It's an interesting change, the more so to those of us who can recall a trip to Miami taking most of a day, instead of a little over an hour, as today in the driving machine."

"We who remember when islanders attended services at the first Bethesda-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church up on the North Lake Trail, reaching the place of worship by small electric boats over Lake Worth feel we have definitely known two worlds—the one tranquil and slow-moving, the other high-gear and rushing, although both can boast 'dash.'"

For instance the gay whirl of the Washington's Birthday Ball that marked the close of the Palm Beach season at the famous Royal Poinciana. It was of such grandeur, Mrs. King said, that actually once over, nothing seemed as animated and colorful again "until you returned the following season."

She recalled that "one year Mr. King and I decided to stay after the Post-ball exodus. We got so lonesome we had to call friends in New York to come down and keep us company, until the hotel closed March 10th."

As an interesting sidelight to the old days, Mrs. King said West Palm Beach boasted only of the railroad station, a general store, and a saloon as its feature tourist attractions.

"But just like today," she continued "there were those of us who had interests other than just having a good time. Both Mr. King and I were interested in projects to promote well being and although the worthy Salvation Army Stocking Fund was originated by the Palm Beach Post, Mr. King and I were actively engaged in the promotion of the Fund for many years."

Another of Mrs. King's activities was the Canteen and Bath House for enlisted men during World War II. She laughed when she said she was a "working girl" from 1 to 7, six days a week during the war years. Saturday was "my day off."

It was not unusual to have 600 or more boys from nearby Morrison Field use the facilities of the Canteen Bath House on Sunday, (next to Wert's). The canteen itself was located where the site of the present Wally Williams store, on Worth Ave. and County Road is.

Spending nine months of the year at the Colony Hotel, Mrs. King considers Palm Beach her permanent home. In her opinion present day Palm Beach life is delightful but not to be compared with that of a half century ago.

THE COLONY

As hospitable in appearance as an old Southern mansion, is one of Palm Beach's better known hotels which provides winter headquarters for many visitors and seasonal residents.

AMONG the PALMS

ADDDING TO THE GLITTER of the resort's social whirl, The Breakers is the setting for numerous luncheon, dinner and cocktail parties.

Square dances are being revived all over the country and following this trend, The Breakers features them on Friday nights in the Club Rooms. The Tuesday evening Canasta parties in the Grand Loggia, are also very popular with guests and their friends and a tournament is planned for the near future.

Claire Alcee (Mrs. Andrew S. White) was guest soloist at the Sunday night concert by Walter Miller and the Meyer Davis orchestra on January 22. Miss Alcee, lyric soprano of Fayetteville, N. Y. who has appeared in opera and concert in the States and Europe, plans to return to the Paris Opera after her engagements in the east this winter. With Mr. White, she is an annual visitor at The Breakers.

Among guests arriving at the hotel this month, to remain throughout the season or for long sojourns: the Rt. Rev. and Mrs. Ernest V. Stires of Bolton Landing, N. Y. who have been wintering here for many years. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barnhart, Bronxville, N.Y.; Mr. L. C. Haines and Miss M. G. Haines of New York; Mr. A. M. Haiss, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. IN A TYPICALLY TROPICAL SETTING of palm trees and gay flowers, featuring a wonderful vista across capricious Lake Worth, the Villas Restaurant is one of the most picturesque dining places in the resort.

The colorful out-door rendezvous is popular with resorters on ideal Palm Beach days; gay umbrellas shield one from the bright sunshine and enhance the scene. When the weather is chilly or rainy, the indoor dining room is equally intriguing. . . . Early American decorations dramatized with a quaint fireplace.

The cuisine which features American food only, is noted throughout the Palm Beaches. A specialty of the restaurant is "Gabrielle's Chicken Pancake," which is on the menu each day. A new bar and cocktail terrace have been added this year . . . a popular rendezvous for pre-luncheon and dinner cocktails.

Among the many colonists who enjoyed the Villas charming locale recently were: Mrs. Longfellow Foulke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell, Mr. Clement Hyzre, Miss Frances Bardell, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Crocker of California, Mr. and Mrs. E. On The Sports Scene

PALM BEACH SPORTS got into full swing with coming of the new year, and already two of the major golf tournaments having been completed. All the golf clubs are busy, the tennis clubs are having their round-robins, and polo, although handicapped by a couple of rainy weeks, is started on a campaign that promises to give spectators the best brand of play seen in recent years.

Mr. Cecil Smith, one of the nation's two top-ranked polo players, and Mr. Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, well known Seminole and Everglades Clubs golfer, were to join Mr. Michael Phipps, Mr. Stewart Iglehart, Mr. George Oliver, Mr. George Kent, Jr., Major Frederic Collin, and all the others in the Sunday polo games.

The polo season opened Christmas Eve and will run through March.

The Lake Worth Championship, first of the major golf tournaments at the Palm Beach Golf Club, has been played. Lynn Creason of Harrisburg, Pa., playing in his first tournament in the Palm Beaches, carried off top honors by beating popular young Reginald Boardman, Jr., the defending champion, in the finals.

Players in the championship flight this year played exceptional golf, and par took quite a beating. W. A. Pagan was medalist with a 69, and the next day he came back to shoot a three-under-par 67 in his first round match. Mr. Pagan, the winner in 1948 and a finalist the last three years, was eliminated by Ed Butler in the second round. Mr. Butler, in turn, was knocked out by Mr. Boardman.

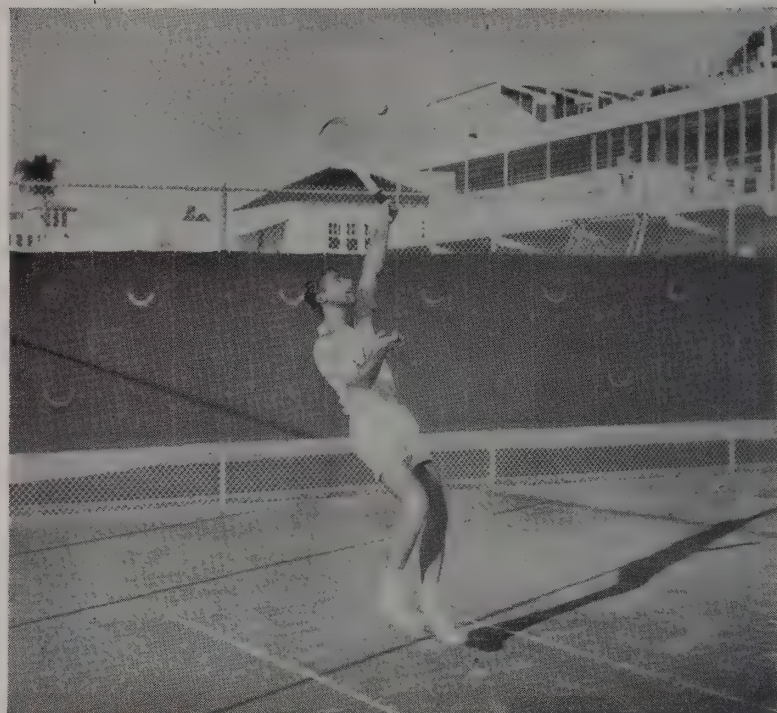

One day, seven of the eight quarterfinalists equalled or bettered par on the front nine. Mr. Creason had a 31, H. R. Ring and Mr. Pagan had 33s, Robert Sweeny, the former British Amateur champion, had a 32, and Mr. Butler, Mr. Boardman and Leon Sikes had par-35s.

The finalists advanced this way. Mr. Creason defeated William Barkley, 4 and 3; Mr. Ring, 3 and 2, and Mr. Sweeny, 7 and 5, to reach the finals. Mr. Boardman defeated Bud Merry, 2-up; Mr. Sikes, 2 and 1; and Mr. Butler, 6 and 5.

Then came the final day. Neither was quite as good as on other days of the tournament, but they were due for a letdown. They had been playing above the standard for amateur golfers. Mr. Creason, stymied on the very first hole, sized up the situation. There was his ball. 28 feet from the hole, and there was Mr. Boardman's just a foot from the hole and directly in line with his ball. But he calmly stepped up to his ball and curled it around the block into the cup. That drew applause from the large gallery, and they continued to show the spectators much fine golf during the entire 31 holes that the match lasted.

Once on the eleventh hole of the afternoon round, Mr. Boardman chipped into the cup from off the green. It was a distance of about 42 feet.

Future tournaments include the Women's Championship of Palm Beach, February 7-11, and the South Florida men's amateur March 6-10, both at the Golf Club, and the Invitational Mixed Foursomes starting February 13 at the Everglades Club.

Putting tournaments at the Everglades Club on Wednesdays are proving popular. Early winners included Mrs. William C. McKim, Mrs. Henry Pelzer, Mr. Pelzer and Mr. Frederick L. Durland.

Tombstone golf tournaments are played on Fridays at the Everglades Club and on Sunday afternoons at Seminole. The first Seminole tombstone was won by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth. The Edward E. Bartletts won one of the meets at the Everglades Club.

The Handicap Match Play Foursomes tournament of the Old Guard Society was won by Mr. Gilbert Drake and Mr. A. B. Drake.

* At Palm Beach Country Club, Mr. Stuart Krisell of Great Neck, N.Y., won the Whitehall New Year's Medal Handicap tournament. Other Whitehall competition—Selected Nine Holes tournament—was won by Mr. J. J. Cooley of White Plains, N.Y. Mr. Samuel Paley made four pars on nine holes.

Bath and Tennis round-robin winners have been Mrs. Robert Hasler-Mr. Farwell Perry, Mrs. Naomi Norris-Mr. Robert Grace and Mr. Thomas O'Gorman-Mr. Spencer Love.

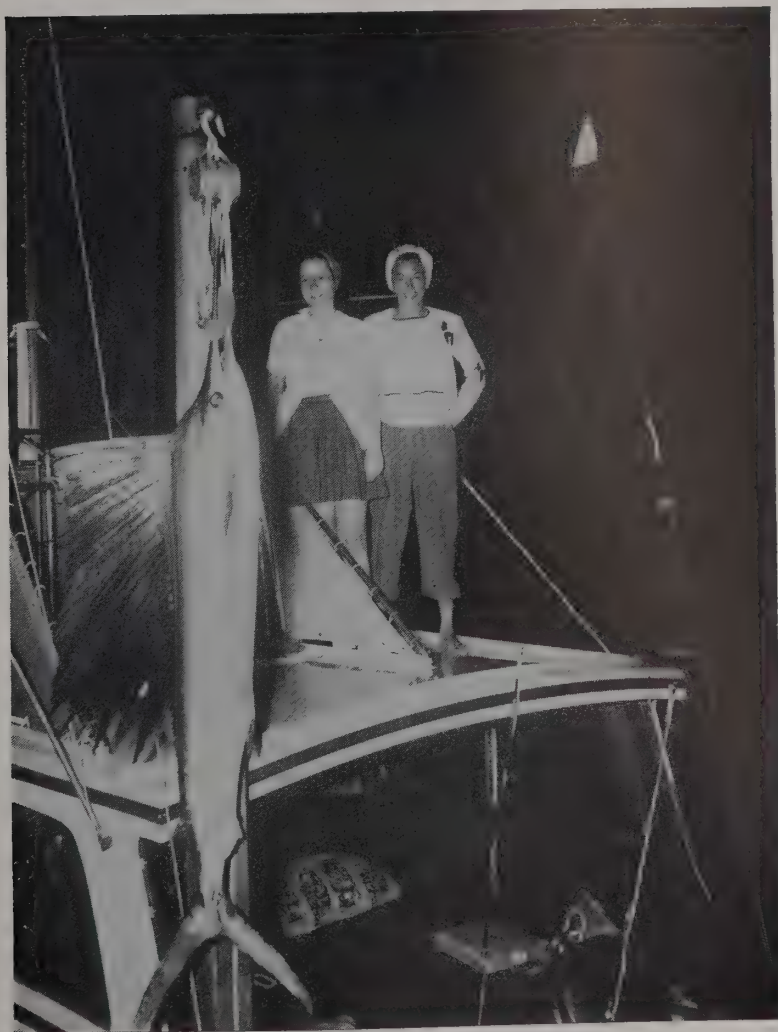

The big feature of the early winter season was the third annual regatta and first annual sports car road race, both events of Scholarship Carnival, Inc.

Yale won the varsity crew race for the third straight time, barely beating out the University of Pennsylvania by three feet. The winning time was six minutes, 42.2 seconds. Members of the winning varsity crew were Don Cadle, Denver, stroke; Robert Jones, Buffalo, N.Y.; Richard Russell, Waban, Mass.; Don Knode, Boulder, Colo.; Gregory Gates, Suffield, Conn.; Richard O'Connor, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Peter Peacock, New York; Ralph Stephan, Shaker Heights, Ohio; and George Carver, coxswain, Hightstown, N.J.

The Penn varsity included Jack Kelly, Jr., Philadelphia, stroke; Curtis Gager, Scarsdale, N.Y.; Al Lawn, Philadelphia; Irving Miller, Newton Square, Pa.; Jack Troster, Euclid, Ohio; Stephan Littauer, New Rochelle, N.Y.; Horace Fletcher, Philadelphia; Frederick Willoughby, Wilmington, Del., and Coxswain William Chapman, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The junior varsity race was also won by Yale in the same close finish.

The first sports car race ever held in this section was viewed by more than 25,000 persons at Palm Beach Shores and the 105-mile race was won by George Huntoon of Miami. He averaged 57.4 miles per hour in bringing Owner I. J. Brundage's Ford-Dusenbergs across the finish line in a race which saw 35 cars start. The race had international flavor with Leslie Johnson of England driving an English Jaguar.

Under The Stars

THE THICK VOLUME THAT lies on the table at the entrance of The Patio restaurant at County Road and Sunset contains only the list of reservations made at the smart resort rendezvous, but it would be a valued "collector's item" for those persons interested in prominent and popular names.

In The Patio's reservation book there are names of personages known through the world in the fields of business, entertainment, sports and society, and a collector of "names" would find great glee in leafing through its pages. For when these leaders in their varied fields visit Palm Beach, they never miss The Patio!

Take a glance:-

Representing the entertainment world, in a visit to The Patio this season, were Norma Talmadge, Ethel Merman, and others of the screen and stage.

From the social pages came Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Balcom, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell and scores of others.

Representing the sports world there was Eddie Brannick, long-time secretary of the New York Giants, who is expected to be joined soon by Joe DiMaggio, slugger of the New York Yankees, who makes The Patio his favorite place to lounge and relax between baseball seasons.

Business interests are found in frequent Patio guests—John McAuliffe, Robert Lansdell, and numerous others.

For his twentieth season as an outstanding musician in the resort, Maestro Val Ernie is once more holding the spotlight at the restaurant, where he also is director of entertainment, offering a schedule of entertainment features that are popular with Patio patrons.

In addition, The Patio this season presents Gaston, a chef supreme in a restaurant where the finest in dining is a gold-plated guarantee, and many are the compliments on the Patio's excellent cuisine received by Gaston and Dan Shalek, Patio director, who brought Gaston from Paris this season after a three-months search in France for the best chef he could find.

Among others who have found The Patio a place where excellent music, fine dining and good entertainment always are available include Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sawdon, Mr. Charles Munn, Mr. William DeMuth, Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Mr. Jack Salisbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Mr. and Charles Francis Coe, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Seeburg, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Noel Seeburg, Jr., and Mr. Justis Seeburg, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dempsey, Mr. Joseph Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lanfranchi, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paley, Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer, Mr. Emil Hemming, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Javits.

TAKE ONE QUICK jaunt to Florida, add quickly the playland of Palm Beach, sifting lightly the sun-washed sands . . . measure out your main ingredient the Whitehall into portions of rooms or suites, whip in the glorious days of relaxation at the Sun and Surf Club . . . toss lightly with a few rounds of golf at the Palm Beach Country Club . . . and sprinkle with star-dusted nights of dining and dancing in the enchanting atmosphere of the Jardin Royale. That is the recipe for a unique winter's vacation, and it is the recipe being followed by many who have found a sojourn at the magnificent Whitehall a never-fail method of melting away worries and cares and restoring a zest for living.

Always the favorite resort of many notable figures, the Whitehall this season is honored to have as its guest Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, president of the State University of New York. A prominent educator, Dr. Eurich was formerly acting president of Stamford University.

Another outstanding couple are Sir Simon and Lady Marks from England.

Cocktail and dinner parties predominate the social activities at the Whitehall this season with lively groups being entertained in the sumptuous Patio Lounge and the lovely outdoor Jardin Royale.

A fad which has taken over New York has been received with much enthusiasm at the hotel. It's the old square dance or barn dance, as it is known in some quarters. Ladies don gay colored sunbonnets and men doff jaunty straw hats while an expert caller takes over the mike to the strains of "Turkey in the Straw."

Ruby Newman and his versatile society orchestra find it no obstacle to swing from a rumba tempo to the square dance beat.

Whitehall guests were introduced to baritone Gene Simms, who comes from the New England Opera Company, conducted and directed by Boris Goldovsky. Mr. Simms is at present playing in Ruby Newman's orchestra while finishing his musical education. Also delighting the guests in the Jardin Royale is Stan Fisher, harmonica virtuoso, with his clever renditions of both popular and classical tunes.

Among recent arrivals at the hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Flusser and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Natelson of Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Sol Patton and Mr. and Mrs. Kent L. Sonnenberg of Great Neck, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Feldman from New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Furman of Forest Hills, New York; Mr. and Mrs. David Zipser of Lawrence, Long Island, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solomon of Brooklyn, N. Y.; the Alexander Blocks from Gotham, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wineburgh of Kings Point, Long Island, and their daughter.

Here for the season are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sterman from Brookline, Mass., and Mr. Siegfried Oestrich of Montreal, Canada.

Murals in Thomas H. Shevlin Home

Calligraphy plays a part too, in Mr. Hawkin's depiction of exotic beauty. Here above wainscoting of a fine circular staircase he has sketched in sepia, studies of mountain and desert plants of the protea, tree and acacia Veldt. Examples of Mr. Hawkin's work are now on display at the Worth Avenue Gallery where he is a frequent exhibitor.

The terrain of the African Veldt in murals on the walls of the Thomas H. Shevlin home, N. Ocean Boulevard is one of the newest additions to unique decor in the resort. The work of John Franklin Hawkins, talented young artist who was a winner in this season's Society of Four Arts' Annual. The artist known for his undersea canvases, turns with equal skill to interior design and in the work just completed at the Shevlin home, combines imagination and a fine technique in portraying a foliageous description of nostalgic scenes for the owners of "Bahiti."

Young People Shall Lead Them

Mr. Chan and students discuss China's age old problems on the lawn of the Institute of World Affairs in America. Students chosen from their respective colleges with as much care as exchange scholars, combine boating and dancing with thorough analysis of where we go tomorrow—politically — economically.

EDUCATION THREE WAYS with concentration on the world's young people is the aim of the Palm Beach Round Table founded by Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden 18 years ago.

The story briefly has to do with the Institute of World Affairs, also founded by Mrs. Hadden when she and her husband visited Geneva, Switzerland at the close of War I.

"It just came about when students talking to us one day as we were making plans for a world cruise suggested we should stay and found a seminar where students could get together in free time and discuss the problems of one another's lands and people."

"Because we were convinced the plan was good we did just that," Mrs. Hadden explained, telling how "almost overnight students from here, there and everywhere began to frequent the forum sessions."

Out of the small beginning the Student's International Union grew into a center where each summer, college men and women of exchange student calibre gathered for study and conversation leading toward the creation of a new world through joint training for leadership.

With the approach of War II, "disillusioned as we all were there was nothing to do but curtail the Geneva center and hope the day would come when we might again hold forth," Mrs. Hadden explained.

Setting up quarters at Twin Lakes, Salisbury, Conn. the Institute of World Affairs came into existence—and that now, is what the Geneva center, reactivated by Mrs. Hadden again last summer, is called.

The Palm Beach Round Table was the outgrowth of the Institute or Union as it was called in 1932—a "little child shall lead them" episode initiated the forum for the Haddens when telling of their youth center while on a visit to Palm Beach, were persuaded to initiate a similar project here.

Thus the Palm Beach Round Table, bringing each season eight or more speakers of outstanding ability chosen for their forthright views on inter-world cooperation in the handling of economic situations.

Also each season proceeds from a number of lectures are turned over to the Institute's Scholarship Fund so that a way is provided for students to attend summer sessions who might otherwise, although chosen, not be able to attend due to financial difficulties.

Working together, playing in their spare time, and in the evening, especially at Salisbury where the scene is one of restful country-side, gathering for chats the young college men and women train for leadership and aim toward "a human understanding and friendship that they hope will one day permanently seal the peace of the world.

In Connecticut last summer, 35 students from 17 countries gathered with Dr. William Y. Elliott of Harvard, director at Twin Lakes, while at the reactivated center in Geneva, Mrs. Hadden led a group of forty from eighteen different countries.

From America broadcasts were arranged for and students speaking in their native tongue relayed to their respective countries the program of the Institute over "The Voice of America."

Charting the way to future peace — Dr. Elliott and group again pictured as seven countries represented, pour over strategic aspects of their respective lands.

Salisbury, Conn.—not ring-around-the-rosey but serious talk on what's wrong with the world.

With Dr. William Y. Elliott of Harvard, Institute students are literally in Round Table session.

An eventful year for the founder and President of the Institute, Mrs. Hadden in addition to reestablishing the Geneva, Switzerland center and presiding at the anniversary dinner at the Ritz Carlton, N. Y. in October was also accorded the degree of Dr. of Humane Letters by Russell Sage College, Troy, N. Y.

Today's problem may be under discussion as students stroll the Palais de Nationale on way to Geneva sessions.

Well worth the pride and joy its backers feel, the splendid new Crippled Children's Society Clinic of simple but elegant lines graces the southwest corner of Royal Palm Way at Hibiscus Ave. A dream come true, within its spacious walls providing ample room and the latest equipment to care for Palm Beach County's orthopedic cases, the building represents nine years of working toward a goal that would bring to this area such a center. Unequaled by any other in the country, the above is an architectural drawing that pictures the structure and grounds about it as both appear right now. Erected at a cost of over ninety-two and a half thousand dollars, the building is debt free thanks to the expert management of its board of directors and generosity of its architect Gustave Maass, contractors and skilled workmen who saw the Clinic become a reality during the summer of '49.

Therapy Marches Forward At New Palm Beach Clinic

("Deformity and imperfections of our bodies, as lameness, crookedness, blindness, be they innate or accidental, torture many men; yet this may comfort them, that those imperfections of the body, do not a bit blemish the soul, or hinder the operation of it, but rather help and much increase it.")

—Robert Burton, Anatomy of Melancholy 1621

RIGHT HERE IN PALM BEACH exists one of the most enlightened and best equipped institutions in the entire country to aid such cases as are mentioned in the above lines by the great English Churchman and prose writer. It's the Palm Beach County Crippled Children's Society, this year celebrating the erection of a splendid new building replacing outmoded quarters at Royal Palm Way and Hibiscus Avenue.

Any day a visit to the center will find it buzzing with activity for all its fourteen rooms are devoted to therapy in treatments that alleviate, cure and promote the well being of patients who suffer from orthopedic disorders—post polio cases, cerebral palsy, arthritis and the many other ailments confined to that branch of disorders to which man is subjected are treated within its walls.

Not just a cold, indifferent organization, supported solely by taxpayers to aid in a do-your-duty sort of way, "helpless" cripples, the Crippled Children's Society represents growth over a period of ten years in a project begun by one who, suffering herself from polio, was able to interest others in this area to start a defined program of therapy to aid the physically handicapped. She was Margaret Pope Hovey.

Growing from one room in 1940 when the Society first set up shop, today's clinic costing slightly over ninety thousand dollars represents thoroughgoing effort and meticulous management of funds, in donations from citizens interested in the work as well as fees collected, and annual aid from the local Community Chest.

Debt free, and set to build up a revolving fund that may one day lead to the center becoming self sustaining, while there is much to be thankful for at the moment, the Crippled Children's Society knows full well it cannot rest on laurels attained.

The very nature of its service—to administer therapeutically, educationally, and it may well be said spiritually too, for every member of its executive board and staff considers the importance of the dignity of man in dealings with patients, requires that the Society continue in growth and expansion in aiding the general public.

Not at all richly endowed or supported by a mere handful of wealthy Palm Beachers, the Society needs EVERYONE to foster its program, and indeed, you have but to talk briefly with those who are its back-bone, and others who frequent its portals as patients, to know the Palm Beach Crippled Children's Society is part of the physical scene of materia medica in these United States.

What a worth-while organization to plan for, to work for or to seek its services when needed. Watch the little girls and boys, not hobbling about, for the very atmosphere of the Clinic would never permit you to use that ugly term . . . it just wouldn't occur to you. They walk, although it may not be so-called normal walking; and if they don't, then whatever ambulatory means is provided, is sensibly and forthrightly accepted with never reference made to "poor Johnny," or "pitiful Mary."

Hubbard tanks, diathermy machines, and a score more including a paraffin bath, one of the newest types apparatus for aiding in cure and alleviation of arthritic cases, the whole day through any day in the week patients of all ages may be observed going through their paces to regain health.

A false notion prevails that the Crippled Children's Society operates only for children. Its patient list as a matter of fact may easily be described as having the proportions of Palm Beach itself, for anyone recommended for treatment by a physician will find ready and willing minds and hands there to aid them.

Like the "necessity-invention" proverb, as the need increased, so have facilities at the Clinic. The staff increased from one, when the present director, Mrs. Audrey Lester first took over a decade ago, there are five members today, each a specialist in her own field. Together with the full co-operation of leading physicians in the Palm Beaches, health agencies—The Palm Beach County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis with Mrs. Ruth McQueeney as executive secretary occupies headquarters at the Clinic, the group meets expertly and willingly one of the most important needs in any community—that of helping to build morally and physically the deformed and crippled.

Therefore in addition to therapy, branches of service extend into the field of education. Pre-school youngsters get their first kindergarten training at the clinic attended three hours daily on a five-day weekly basis. In addition to treatments and mat work to develop their inadequate little muscles, they receive mid-morning nourishment and are helped to rest periods, transported to and from school, and in cases of speech impediment provided with a speech correctionist.

New this year, further growth has initiated a program for such public school children as are recommended to the Society by the Palm Beach Board of Public Instruction, on the advice of the child's family physician.

The need for such a curriculum in conjunction with therapy came after carefully made investigation by the school board, and conferences that followed in which the Society's executive board, staff, and local physicians contributed, and is a result of the combined belief that in certain cases, children will profit by more intensive therapy than through social contacts in the average classroom.

A parent group is now being formed to operate much like the public schools PTA's. Parents will meet weekly with Clinic staff members and through discussion and prescribed reading endeavour to develop further, ways and means of child development that may be carried out at home.

But the educational program by no means ceases there—it encompasses students of Good Samaritan Hospital, West Palm Beach, who take their clinical and practice training in orthopedics at the Palm Beach Crippled Children's center as well as being taught that branch of nursing by Mrs. Lester in prescribed classes approved by the Florida State Board of Examiners of Nurses.

However that's not all; for orthopedic knowledge and skill in services in which the clinic staff is above average, is available to the County Visiting Nurses, and clinics held at the Palm Beach center every few months bring such widely known authorities in the cerebral palsy and orthopedic field as Dr. Winthrop Phelps of Baltimore and Dr. Harriett Gillette, medical director Ardmore Convalescent Hospital for Crippled Children, Atlanta, Ga.

Held in cooperation with the Florida Crippled Children's Society, very often as many as forty-five patients are examined over a two-day period, coming on the advice of their physician from Palm Beach County and adjoining counties as well.

Patients are charged for services according to their ability to pay, and most patients prefer to pay the Clinic finds—the more so because the very democratic, home-town atmosphere of the place marks it as old-time America, homespun, honest, with the horse before the cart in services and attitudes.

Open to black, white, Christian or Jew, the Palm Beach Crippled Children's Society asks only that the same deference be paid it, and that all citizens of the Palm Beaches, winter or year-round, become cognizant of its aim and goal.

Never gaining a cent through public campaign for funds, the organization's growth in short is a miracle. Few have attained the present position of the Palm Beach Crippled Children's Society without resorting to campaign procedures, and it is one big reason for it to be supported by everyone.

Many people do support the clinic, many have left fine contributions in legacies, and according to President of the Executive Board, Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, "it is an organization, nourished and helped to its present position by not a few, but many humanitarian-minded persons."

More are needed now that the new building is in operation and expenses practically doubled, and now is the time for everyone to lend a supporting hand . . . to keep alive and on the forward march, the splendid work the Clinic accomplishes in annually administering to close to 500 patients.

An important milestone in its history has been achieved. It is to be hoped there will be many more and that each new anniversary will see added supporters of the Crippled Children's Society.

Officers besides Mrs. Reynolds include Mrs. R. R. Brown, executive vice president; Mrs. Milton Chamberlin Klugh, vice president; Mrs. George S. Ross, treasurer; and Mrs. E. W. Jackson, recording secretary.

The Executive Board includes Mrs. Joseph F. Gunster, Mrs. M. A. Bishop, Mrs. Thomas Cook, Mrs. Jacob Marx, Mrs. George C. Slaton, Mrs. Walter Goodewillie, Mrs. R. S. Erskine, Dr. David W. Martin, and Mrs. L. D. Mullins, Jr.

Staff members in addition to Mrs. Lester, and Mrs. McQueeney who serves as office secretary for the Society in addition to her position with the polio foundation include, Mrs. Margaret Moore, assistant director, and Mrs. Margaret K. Cuyler, and Miss Naomi Rasmussen physical therapists, and Mrs. W. T. Phoebus, speech correctionist.

Members of the Board of Governors are:

Literary Luminaries

Enjoying the Resort

NEW LUSTRE was added this week to the brilliance of the guest list of the Palm Beach Hotel with the reservation made by MacKinlay Kantor, best selling novelist whose books "The Best Years of Our Lives" and "Bugle Annie" have been made into highly successful motion picture.

Mr. Kantor, whose current fiction "The Fabulous Cabman" appeared in the January 7th issue of the Saturday Evening Post, has a winter home at Siesta Key but he is coming to the Palm Beach Hotel because of the great enthusiasm shown by his friends for the excellent service, the splendid accommodations and fine programs offered there. This is his first visit to Palm Beach since 1944, when he was in Air Force uniform. Mr. Kantor is looking forward to it with great eagerness.

The adjective "brilliant" has not been misused when it is applied to the guests who have chosen the Palm Beach Hotel this season for their vacation spot, for the reservation list there fairly glows with literary luminaries such as best selling authors Merle Miller and Carl Carmer and Editor Jerome Mason of Popular Publications with includes Argosy, the magazine for men with a circulation of over two million.

Author of the best selling "Dark Trees to the Wind," published by William Sloane Associates, Carl Carmer is president of the International Organization of Distinguished Writers, vice president of the Edward McDowell Association, former president of the Authors' Guild and former president of the Poetry Society of America. He will be accompanied by his lovely wife Betty, who is famous in her own right. She is an illustrator of children's books.

Also looking forward eagerly to his vacation here at the Palm Beach Hotel is author Merle Miller, whose latest book "The Sure Thing" has topped the best seller lists since its publication by William Sloane Associates.

According to newspaper reports, this young and handsome author has been scoring great success wherever he has appeared. He hopes to find time when he comes here to finish several magazine articles. He is now a contributor to such publications as the Saturday Review of Literature, Harper's Magazine, Mademoiselle, Survey and the Nation, in addition to authoring such fine books as "That Winter" and "Island 49,"

Direct from an assignment in the British West Indies will come David Appel, book editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, to vacation here. Formerly book editor of the Chicago Daily News, Mr. Appel is also author of many magazine articles, among them "Polio Made Me Stronger," which appeared recently in Reader's Digest. That article brought letters from many thousands of men and women to whom it gave new courage to go on living.

These three writers are noted as lecturers as well as for their literary efforts and the Palm Beach Hotel hopes to influence them to speak before the other guests.

New this year will be the series of style shows which will be put on at the Palm Beach Hotel by national trade associations. This means that the last word in fashions both for men and women will be brought here from the style centers of the world and the guests of the Palm Beach Hotel will have a chance to see them even before they have been announced to the public.

An unusual event which was held recently was the Deb Fashion Show with clothes by Saks Fifth Avenue. Young and attractive guests of the Palm Beach Hotel modeled the newest in resort wear. They drew a great deal of applause and comment for their professional bearing.

Continuing this year is the policy of the Seiden Management to bring the best in entertainment for the pleasure of their guests. The recent performance of two new young stars is evident that they have "arrived." Steve Condos and Jerry Brandow have only recently combined their talents and the merger has proven to be a highly successful one. They received an ovation which was rarely matched or witnessed at the Palm Beach Hotel and a return engagement has already been arranged.

Another clever young man was George DeWitt, whose personable talents drew a great ovation from the audience at the Palm Beach Hotel. He will appear there again soon. Future bookings reveal many famous stars of the entertainment world with high promise of very fine talent shows.

The overflowing program for the past month has included such varied activities as moonlight cruises on Lake Worth, beautiful fashion shows by Bramson's, Saks Fifth Avenue and other fine Palm Beach shops, "pop" concerts by Dick Gasparre and his orchestra, rumba sessions by Pepe Lara and his band, festive cocktail parties given by the Seiden Management.

Popular with the hotel guests have been the moonlight aquacades and swimming meets that are held at the Cabana Beach Club. The submarine lights of the Olympic Pool and the softly lighted palm trees augmented by the harmonious music of Dick Gasparre and his famous society orchestra added to the beautiful setting for those famous after-dark water carnivals.

Enjoying all the many excellent features of the Palm Beach Hotel have been Mr. and Mrs. Allan Kalmus of New York City. Mr. Kalmus, who is a television executive with NBC, considers Palm Beach excellent for television and thinks that many television activities could be developed here.

A glamorous array of evening gowns . . . the finale of a fashion presentation by Bramson at the Palm Beach Hotel. Imported satin, brocade, chiffon and nylon net, in bouffant and slim stylings, featuring outstanding American designers.

Notes On a Florida Cruise

THERE ARE FIFTY bridges between the St. Johns River and Miami harbor via Intracoastal waterway.

North of the St. Johns River in Florida, the sheltered waterway has a project depth of twelve feet and is ninety feet wide through the land cuts and 150 feet wide through open waters.

South of the St. Johns River the depth of the waterway is eight feet and one hundred feet wide.

Before coming into St. Augustine, you pass through the Palm Valley bascule bridge. Also the vertical lift at Vilano Beach. A shoal correctly buoyed is south of the latter span.

The St. Augustine city dock is the first one south of the Bridge-of-Lions, this being the next bascule bridge that crosses the Mantanzas River to Anastasia Island. Watch out for the wash of the big shrimpers.

From Daytona Beach heading south, one observes pelicans for the first time, doing their precision soaring.

Get your daily weather report from WNDB Daytona Beach at 7:55 A. M.

The bridge at Corondo Beach is of the swing type and power operated.

New Smyrna may well boast of its beautifully protected city yacht basin. It is regarded as a required stop for all craft headed for Palm Beach.

The tidal range at New Smyrna is around 2½ feet but varies considerably with strong north or south winds.

At beacon "51" a sharp turn at right angles is made between the jettied entrance to Haulover canal. Midway there is a swing highway bridge operated by U. S. Engineers.

On the Indian River the cans, conical (nun) buoys and lighted beacons are about half-mile apart as far as Cocoa.

Picturesque Cocoa is named after the cocoa-plums grown in this section.

Eau Gallie has a land locked harbor and a well-marked entrance channel.

After dark on the Indian River, a phosphorescent glow can be observed on occasions. Casting your lead line will produce a "shower of sparks" like a swarm of fire flies. This radiation is said to be caused by decaying marine growth.

Thirty miles south of Fort Pierce, north of Can "41" is fashionable Hobe Sound. There is good anchorage in about a fathom of water and good holding bottom.

Next stop Palm Beach!
